To Sarah
(1800-1814)

She was the sister of the author's great grandfather, Andrew Jackson Schooley. She died in a fire one year before the birth of Andrew. It is not known if the death was quick or slow. If she lingered, what treatment was given in the hope of saving her? We have some knowledge of what was in vogue at the time for the treatment of burns; neither dressing the wounds with egg yoke and attar of roses in turpentine, nor the laying on of potatoes, nor tea, nor oil, nor butter, nor incantation could save her. Her death occurred in the same year as the plague of locusts.

PREFACE

Colonel Thomas Henry Silliman Schooley was the author of the original Trails of Our Fathers. He brought his work to completion in the depth of the Great Depression and could not afford to have it printed. His son, Arnold Thomas Schooley, was able to procure for him a used mimeograph machine, and a homemade book was produced in 1937. Only 75 copies were made. The research for the original book covered about forty years of Thomas H. S. Schooley's life. The work of the revision has been spread over some 20 years. It does not, of course, imply that I worked diligently all that time, yet thousands of hours have been invested in the study.

I have not labored alone. The greatest helper in this effort has been George A. Schooley of Zanesville, Ohio. It has been an honor and a great pleasure to know George Schooley through a considerable correspondence which has continued over a period of years. I have also been aided by Mrs. Raymond Schooley (Marie Roelff Schooley) of San Rafael, California. I have received helpful correspondence from Frank B. Schooley, William Schooley of Easton, Pennsylvania, Steven Schooley of Iowa City, Iowa, C. Elwood Schooley of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, George Nunnamaker of Buffalo, New York, Mrs. Lois P. Alu of Burlington, New Jersey, Mrs. Justin Condon, Mary Schooley Spinning, Mrs. Janet Bench, Mrs. Richard Robertson, Alice Herzberg, Richard Irwin, Rebecca Colesar, Kathleen Stavec, and May Schooley Ivey. I am particularly grateful to the staff of the Essex Institute in Salem, Massachusetts, especially to Mrs. Arthur Norton, whose help has been invaluable. The fine library of The New England Historic Genealogical Society in Boston, Massachusetts, has been another rich source.

Mr. Roger Joslyn of New Windsor, New York is a competent professional certified genealogist, a fellow of the American Society of Genealogists. He has made very significant editorial contributions to this work.

This new edition of Trails of Our Fathers is perhaps three to five fold more extensive than the first version. It includes segments of genealogy of persons related to the Schooleys but who have other names: the Willsons, Shinns, Crispins, Wrights, Sillimans, Oakes, Baileys, Nichols, and others. The work also includes a generous amount of anecdotal account which helps one to understand the nature of the times in which our ancestors lived.

INTRODUCTION

Most of the genealogical material in this work is in standard format. Each account of a family group begins with the name of the male Schooley, followed by the dates and places of his birth and death, if known or otherwise approximated. Information about his wife or wives is then given, together with her dates and the identity of her parents. After presentation of any biographical data found about the heads of the particular family, children are listed. Sons who themselves had children are treated later in the work and are followed through the Arabic number to the left of their names. For example, on page 57 begins a list of the children of (No. 4) Thomas Scholey. As his son Samuel also had children, he is assigned Number 11, and to find the information about him and his family, turn to page 132. The histories of male Schooleys who did not have children are presented within the list of their father's children, as are those histories of Schooley daughters. For the latter, an attempt has been made to identify any children, which are listed at the end of the mother's sketch, as the children of Alice Schooley and James Brotherton are listed on page 115.

The Schooley descendants are identified by the number of their generation from the first known surname ancestor. The superscript number following a person's name denotes the generation. On page 98, (No. 7) William^{3} Scholey is third generation from the first-known (No. 1) Robert Scholey. William's children are fourth generation, and so on. Lineage not succesfully proved is indicated with a question mark at the point of the questioned relationship: it has not been proved that (No. 17) Samuel (page 200) was a son of (No. 8) Robert Scholey, so his surname line is shown as (?Robert$^{3-1}$).

It is not necessary to use the numbering system to hunt for a Schooley whose line is not known; the names of all persons mentioned in this work appear in the index. Married females are indexed under both their birth and married names.

In trying to organize the considerable volume of information that is presented here there was a plan to utilize an appendix which would hold the genealogical material that is not of direct Schooley lineage. However, it was decided that related families ought to be presented immediately after that part of the Schooley genealogy to which they are allied. The reader will find in numerous places an apparently abrupt shift to a family which has ties with the Schooleys that are at that place being considered.

For the reader who desires to know the source or sources of a piece of information, references have been listed at the end of each family sketch and at the ends of chapters about other subjects. To lessen the possible confusion with the superscript generational numbers, superscript lower case letters have been used to key the information to References. Besides citations of material used, further information on certain matters is also found in the end notes. Since some sources were referenced numerous times, short form titles have been given in the notes.

In the listing of a couple's children, and in the references and notes standard abbreviations have been used as follows:

bet.=between bp.=baptized bur.=buried ca.=about cem.=cemetery
ch.=child/children

Twp.=Township

Standard appreviations for the names of states are also used.

With respect to dates, most are shown in standard genealogical style, day-month-year, unless they appear otherwise in a quoted record. The expression of "Quaker dates" all in numbers is maintained, with the number of the month followed by a lower case m to prevent confusion, for example, 13 3m 1878, which is the 13th of the 3d month 1878, or 13 March 1878. Before September 1752, however, things were different, and the first month was March, making January the eleventh month and February the twelfth. This must be kept in mind for the early dates, since no numbered months have been altered for this work. Additionally, the historical New Year's Day was 1 January, as it is today, but the religious celebration was 25 March. Hence, dates falling within this period were often "double-dated" before the calendar change in 1752. The 13 1m 1750/1 birthdate of a person could be translated into today's calendar as 13 3m (or March) 1751. Actually, since the day after 2 September 1752 was 14 September as part of the change, eleven days should be added to the date, to render it "New Style" from "Old Style," or 24 3m 1751.

The Quakers were not alone in being inconsistent about double-dating before 1752, but whereas before that time 1m should always be March, a date between 1 11m and 24 1m, without other evidence, could be taken either way, but usually by the addition of the "next" year. For example, the birth of Mary, daughter of (No. 3) Robert[2] Scholey (page 45), is recorded as 6 11m 1681. The date could be expressed either as 1680/1 or 1681/2; either date allows comfortable spacing from the child born before and to the child born after her. The birthdate for Mary's younger brother Robert, however, should be expressed as 10 11m 1687/8, to show he was born fourteen, and not two, months after his sister Elizabeth. This in turn suggests the clerk's practice, in which case Mary's birth should probably be expressed as 6 11m 1681/2.

Schooleys Mountain

Schooleys Mountain is the name applied to a range of hills that runs southwest to northeast across the upper part of the State of New Jersey. The Muskenetcong River flows along its northern base, and the South Branch of the Raritan River forms its southern lines. Lying partly in Warren and partly in Morris County and rising 1100 feet above the sea, the hills derive the name from their earliest settler, Thomas Scholey, who purchased large acreage there in 1714. That might have been their only claim to memory except for one thing: there flows a small rill, "not larger than one's little finger", issuing from a rock by the roadside, and this thin stream, enriched with iron minerals, blessed Schooleys Mountain with the potential for fame.

Long before the English appeared Indians came there to drink the pale brown water of the spring and praise its virtues. They claimed through it to be cured of rheumatic complaints and cutaneous eruptions. By 1799, long after the Schooleys had left this region, Judge Ephraim Marsh was engaged in promoting the health giving values of the mineral water. Before 1810 no major road existed near the mineral spring; however, a stage coach line ran from New York to New Brunswick and thence to Easton. Another road ran north from that road at New Germantown (now Oldwick) to German Valley, providing a way of reaching Schooleys Mountain, but it was not a popular route of travel. In 1810 the new Morris Turnpike was completed which ran through Elizabethtown to Morris, west to Chester and German Valley and to Easton. This brought Schooleys Mountain Mineral Spring within a day's journey of New York.

The promotional plan of Ephraim Marsh was thus given a boost. Originally three families were interested in establishing Schooleys Mountain as a place of resort and a health spa: the Marshes, the Bownes, and the Heaths. By 1815 some new buildings had been erected which could accomodate forty guests. On July 9, 1817 the following advertisement appeared in the New York Evening Post:

> The Heath House is now open in a superior style for the accommodation of those who intend to visit this justly admired watering place the ensuing summer. The peculiar advantages of this situation in point of elevation and salubrious air is so universally acknowledged that no remark is deemed necessary. He hopes from the extensive arrangements he has made with the most careful and unremitting attention on his part to merit a continuace of public favor.
> David Heath, Jr.[a]

At the same time Mr. Conover Bowne, another advocate of the virtues of the spring, wrote and published in the Evening Post:

> This spring has now become a very considerable fashionable resort, besides being frequented by invalids from all parts of the United States, whose various complaints receive so much benefit from the mineral water. The subscriber, for the benefit of the afflicted, takes the liberty of naming the various complaints that he personally knows to have derived relief from this Mineral Water since his residence at the spring, viz --Debility, Indigestion arising from bilious habits, Nervous Complaints, Dizziness of the Head, Gouts, Rheumatism, and that most distressing malady the Gravel. The water affords a certain relief for the Liver Complaint, Jaundice and Dropsy.[b]

How unfortunate that Ponce de Leon in seeking the Fountain of Youth should have wasted so much time in Florida when this "most salubrious place" rested in the beautiful mountains to the north!

Visitors came in increasing numbers. The air was clear and healthful, the view pleasant. The food served at both Heath House and Conover Bowne's place was excellent, and from between the rocks flowed hope.

Three times a week in 1818 the Drakes were running four horse coaches between Elizabethtown Point and Easton through Chester. With four changes of horses at equal distances they went all the way through in one day. The Evening Post carried the following notice:

"As this stage passes near the celebrated spring on Schooley's Mountain, passengers taking this line will be carried to the springs without extra charge. The proprietors pledge that nothing shall be wanting on their part to make this a pleasant route. The drivers are careful and accommodating."[c]

The Schooleys Mountain resorts opened in the spring of 1820 with new and improved accommodations. Everything was being made bigger and better. There were now two hotels, Conover Bowne's Belmont Hall and the Heath House. They could provide for a hundred persons at one time. Everything got larger except the spring which continued its gentle flow. Heath maintained that no other spring anywhere could provide the relief afforded here. People who had tried the waters at Saratoga and Ballston and claimed them to have no effect surely met with gratifying results when they drank the chalybeate water at Schooleys Mountain. Kidney ailments, gall bladder distress, aching joints and nervousness could be cured by exposure to these springs.

Persons of prominent social position came in their own conveyances, large coaches drawn by four or six horses. The healing mineral water was less beneficial than the social life, the excellent cuisine, and the entertainment. The innkeepers spared no effort to ensure that the comfort of their guests would be provided. They brought the best wines and liquors, the best cooks guaranteed that "Schooleys Mountain mutton, fed and grown on the mountains",[d] would please the most discriminating taste. Amusements were provided, music and dancing in the evening, and attentive servants took care of the patrons' wants. No need to go to Saratoga. If a guest should prefer the water of Saratoga Springs, the Bownes and Heaths brought it to Schooleys Mountain!

A considerable stir was created when in July 1820 the distinguished Joseph Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon and one time King of Spain, arrived at Belmont Hall from his country home in Bordentown. He came with his entire entourage in coach and four, serviced by his retinue of servants, footmen, and grooms. This arrival must have given a considerable boost to Conover Bowne's enterprise.

Three times a week the stagecoach came directly from the Swan Tavern in Philadelphia. During the summer season stages came to the Springs from New York, New Brunswick, and Newark. The Dusenberry coaches ran from the Rising Sun Tavern in Trenton directly to the Springs.

In the late 1830s and the early 1840s, railroad connections made ever easier access to the wild beauty at Schooleys Mountain. In 1836 great Tuscan columns 30 feet high and 12 feet apart were added to the facade of Belmont Hall. Glass chandeliers hung from the high ceilings. Gardens and groves were planted with ornamental trees and shrubs. The hotels could now accommodate 700 guests.

An advertisement in the New York Herald of 13 May 1842 described the beauty of Belmont Hall, its pure air, the medicinal qualities of the water, and the splendor so graphically that even the elevation above sea level was given a 900-foot boost to bring it up to 2000 feet!

Yet in time other resorts took the trade away. In spite of ornamental trees, entertainment, the good food, in spite of mineral water, the people turned elsewhere. Eventually the great halls became empty and delapidated. The land became silent again, and the mountain stands there in its solitary granduer, a memorial to the name of a pioneer American family. The chronicle which is presented in these pages is devoted to the history of this family.

The Beginnings In England

The history of the Schooley family prior to the time of the purchase of Schooleys Mountain is mingled with the history of the Quakers, thrifty yeomen and pioneers who helped create the society in which we now live.

There are two major clues to the English origins of the Schooleys who in the latter part of the 1600s came to New Jersey. One is the West Jersey land conveyance of 1687/8 in which John Scholey is identified as "late of Aughton in ye p[ar]ish of Aston in ye County of York within ye Kingdome of England".[a] The other is the 1675 marriage of Robert Scholey--possibly John's brother--in Skegby, Nottinghamshire, to Sarah Bingham. This Robert and Sarah are believed to have been the couple of whom record is found a few years later in New Jersey. Furthermore, Binghams, who may have been Sarah's relatives, were witnesses to her second marriage in 1696.[b] From the information found, some relationships of the early American Schooleys can be identified and a few others can be suggested. The family of Robert Scholey discussed in the next section is in part speculative, and further documentation needs to be found.

At the time the first Schooleys came to America there were persons of the surname in the above-mentioned and surrounding parishes in Yorkshire and Nottinghamshire as well as in nearby parishes in Derbyshire. In earlier times the majority of Schooleys are found in records of Yorkshire, although one prominent family is found in Bedfordshire.[c] While the connection of these earlier Schooleys with the American immigrants is not certain, their records provide a significant background to the genealogy.

The Thirteenth and Fourteenth Centuries

The name Scholey is first recorded as a location in Hemsworth, Yorkshire, England, in 1230. A location in Rastrick was also known by the name of Scholey. Sc(h)ol means hut or shed and the suffix ey means low-lying land, thus the name implies a dweller by low-lying land with a hut. Possibly the suffix was originally leah, meaning a clearing. Whatever the original meaning, apparently the Scholeys took their name from the locality in Hemsworth, which, in more modern times, is referred to as "Scholey's Bridge".[d]

The most common spelling of the name has been Scholey, but it has also been found in several variant forms, among them Scollay, Scoley, and Scooley. Nevertheless, the name Schooley may have a single family origin and all those who bear the name could owe it to the first Scholeys who lived in Hemsworth Parish.[e] The greatest concentration of the Schooley family name appears in the West Riding in Yorkshire, in the neighborhood of what are now Leeds and Sheffield, including the villages between these two cities. A special concentration of farming families around the Village of Hemsworth where the Scholeys were first recorded in 1244 share that name.

The Village of Hemsworth, with the outlying hamlets of Horncastle and Kinsley, lies a few miles from Wakefield. The neighboring villages which play a part in the family history are Wragby, Felkirk, Havercroft, Cold Hiendley, South Hiendley, Darfield, Great Houghton, Crofton, Hessle, Nostel, and South Kirby. Further east lies the town of Doncaster and a ring of villages such as Adwick, Armthorpe, and Campsall. For hundreds of years this area can be considered "Scholey territory". Following are Scholey references in early records of the Hemsworth area:[f]

1244 Dodsworth, a 17th century historian, collected a number of deeds relating to Hemsworth and one of these contains a reference to Alan de Scoley, the son of Osbert de Scoley. No earlier reference has been found to persons of the name, yet clearly the name by this time was hereditary.

1313 Adam de Scolay of Hemsworth.

1330/1 Alan de Scholey and his son William witnessed a Hemsworth deed.[h]

1351/2 "Grant by Adam Kyng of a rent of three halfpence in Carlton, to wit, a penny receivable from the heirs of Alan de Scolay for a certain piece of meadow which he holds".

1352 Grant by Thomas de Skolay to Margaret, dau. of John del Rodes...of a toft with an adjoining croft* in Hemsworth, between the tenements of Margaret Almot and John Gudhayr.[i]

1359 Grant by Margaret, daughter of Thomas de Skollay, of the above-mentioned Hemsworth land, to Alice, dau. of Robert Tuppe[j]

1361 Thomas de Scollay, witness to a Hemsworth deed.[j]

the English population. The Scholeys listed in the West Riding of Yorkshire were:

In South Kirby (a neighboring village to the southeast of Hemsworth):

Isabell de Scolay..... ..4 d.

The numbers and distribution at this period are consistent with the spread of a single family whose name had already been hereditary for over a century.

The Fifteenth and Early Sixteenth Centuries

This is a difficult period in which to establish family continuity, yet there is sufficient evidence available to show that the Scholeys maintained their hold in Hemsworth and also sent out branches to neighboring towns and villages.

The Mid-Sixteenth to the Late Seventeenth Centuries

The year 1539 marks the end of the pre-parish register period in England. In 1540 Thomas Cromwell, the Vicar General, ordered the use of registers by the clergy to record all baptisms, marriages, and burials. Three Scholey marriage entries are found in the registers of the West Riding of Yorkshire:

1548 Henry Jone and Jenet Scolay, Parish of Snaith.[u]

1598 Richard Haldsworth and Alice Scolay, Parish of Rotherham.[v]

Around this period migration became commonplace, an event caused in part by an increase in population. After 1539 it is impractical to list every occurance of the Scholey name, but a summary of the evidence available for the period 1540 to 1600 shows that the Scholeys continued in Hemsworth. In 1558 Henry Scoley was described as a chapman [merchant]; in 1561, another Henry as yeoman. In 1563, William Scoley of Hemsworth was a cooper by trade; in 1578, Tristram Scholey a husbandman. In 1579, John Scoley was a linen webster [weaver], a trade found among the first Schooleys in America. Clearly the Scholeys in Hemsworth were a well established yeoman family with farming and trading interests. The male Christian names in common use were Henry, James, John, Richard, Thomas, and William. Numerous Scholey wills establish other branches of the family in Wragby (1543, 1556, 1657, 1567, 1585, 1589, 1602) and in South Kirby (1557, 1560, 1588). The same Christian names were in use here. Other more occasional references link the Scholeys in this period with Kellington (1567), Hatfield (1558), Armthrope (1558, 1593), Frickley (1547, 1558), Crofton (1574, 1590), Knottingley (1553), Campsall (1588), Great Houghton (1558), Adwic-le-Street (1558, 1590), Doncaster (1556), Felkirk (1557), and Sandall (1588, 1600). On only one occasion is the name found spelled with a double o, in the will of Thomas Scooley of Finningley near Doncaster.

Another important place of residence of Scholeys lay near the Village of Aughton (in the Parish of Aston), a place called Smallage Farm or, at times, "Scholeys Copse", or simply "Scholey". Smallage Farm lies in the valley of the Rother River near the towns of Woodhouse and Handsworth. The parish church in the Village of Aston cum Aughton, All Saints of Aston, lies a half mile southeast of the Village of Aughton. The registry of this church provides an unbroken sequence of information since the year 1259, showing baptisms, marriages, and burials. There the names of many Scholeys are entered numerous times from 1576, and spelled in several variations, including Scholey, Scholeye, Scholleye, Scoley, Scolley, Skoley, Skoly, and Skolye.[w] Inscriptions on the church stone vaults bear the names of Scholeys of Smallage Farm.

For the seventeenth century are presented the following entries from various records of those Schooleys who lived in or near Aston, Yorkshire, or Mansfield Woodhouse, Derbyshire. Perhaps some of these persons were close relatives of the American immigrant Schooleys.

The Journey Across The Sea

Early death was common in the 17th century, but for those who challenged a vast ocean to get to America the chances of incurring disease, accident, and early death were high indeed. The journey accompanied by danger and hardship was looked upon with foreboding. One may imagine that as the ship moved away from its moorings in England the emigrants looked back at what had been their home for hundreds of years and knew that it would never come before their eyes again. As the green of England changed to blue and then to gray, as it faded in the distance, there surely was silence aboard the ship and all that could be heard was the sound of the water against the hull.

Although the logs of the flyboat Martha and the Shield have not survived, one can learn much by reading the experiences of other immigrants of the period. Even for that the literature is not rich, but a picture emerges. They slept with their clothes on. Vermin abounded in the bunks. The water was foul. The air below was fetid, and on occasion the food putrid. Most often the journey from England took about eight weeks. The journey of the Shield is said to have taken sixteen weeks, thus doubling the woe.

It was hard for strong men to endure the drawn out journey, and it must have been a great trial for those who were young. Numerous children were on the voyage as the record of its passengers reveals.

What did they take with them? They were going to a new land to make a new life, to spend the rest of their lives and never return. They took with them simply everything that they owned, everything that they considered they would need in the New World. They took their pots and pans, their pillows and blankets, needles and buttons, candles and paper to write on and quills and ink. To establish their farms they brought their tools, hoes, axes, plows, and dibbers.* With them went the chickens, sheep, cows, pigs, and horses. All together they went in the hold. One of them took English soil to place upon the new land and thus to have by him a little bit of home.

They took seeds to plant, wheat and oats, wheels to make a cart, leaden weights, a ring, a chafing dish, a strik and strikless, a powdering tub (used for salting meat), a warming pan, a parcel of wool, a table board, guns, spits, a pair of bellows, a cheese press, a feather bed, a pair of tongs, a straw kipe (basket made of osiers), pails, a porringer, and an earthern chamber pot. All that they owned went with them.

They did not know how to batten down and make secure, but they soon learned. They had to help each other. Living in close quarters in hard circumstances, in deprivation, in sickness, in foul air may bring out the heroic in the best of us. What it brings out in ordinary men and women one can only guess.

When the sea was heavy, the hatch covers were shut. The casks and chests were thrown about from one side of the ship to the other by the rolling of the sea. A moaning and lamentation would rise from below in the dark hold. Sometimes they could not lie down nor sit nor stand. All they could do was hold on in the stifling and stinking air. And the children? It would seem there was no time for childhood.

The ship was run by trained seamen. Their qualifications were based on experience as well as training. An example of their preparations is contained in The Seaman's Companion published by the Booksellers of London and Westminster. It gives a lesson in mathematics. The first chapter bears the title "Vulgar and Decimal Arithmetick." A quotation is given:

> It sometimes falls out that the number will not consist of three places, but of one or two, in such a case, you are after your Comma's are plac'd, consider what Denomination belongs to it, whether so many Thousands, or ten Thousands,or Millions, and reckon these Figures to be so many of its proper Denomination, as if it were 23,725.[a]

If the reader wishes to ponder this statement for awhile, it may possibly come to have some meaning!

Someone had the responsibility of "victualizing" the crew. To determine the number of pounds of bread needed for the crew one simply multiplied the number of men by the number of days the ship would be at sea. And then, if one could determine the number of pounds of bread, everything else could be readily figured. For example:

> "Then for your 4480 pounds of bread divide by 17 for the four pound pieces of beef, and two pound pieces of pork. Then for your 640 Quarts of Pease, multiply by 3, and divide by 8, and it gives you the Gallons of Oatmeal."[a]

A traveler on another ship maintained a record that is available to us, The Diary of Henry Teonge. From this we can gain an understanding of how conditions were on the ship coming to America. Here are some of the entries:

> Now very often the sea breaks over our waist and come in at our scuttles and do us some small injuries. Our tables and chairs are lashed to the boards, our dishes held on the table. Many on ship are not able to eat or drink.
> Our ship doth roll so much that we scarce can stand or go on the decks. The dishes run off the table at dinner. The chairs tumble o'er and o'er.
>
> Many in the ship are casting up their reckonings and not able to eat or drink.
> We sat close around the beef, some securing themselves from slurring by setting their feet against the table, which was fast tied down. Another set his feet against the bed, another set his back against a chair..[b]

We have the record of another seafaring man who also made a diary, Edward Coxere. During the course of his life at sea he became converted to Quakerism. His diary entry about his conversion says,

> "I lay all night there, but in the morning very early I waked as if something had got me hold by the throat to strangle me."

This did not serve well his want to go to sea, for

> "it was noised about as a dangerous thing to carry a Quaker to sea," fearing he might convert someone else, and if one became a Quaker, then

"who would do the work?"[c]

He married a maiden of the enchanting name of Wealthan Peace, and some of his children born while he was at sea died also during his absence. From him is quoted:

> the seamen...seeing me stand and act with my hat on did the same, they looking at me to be chief among them. I, seeing the officers take no notice of it, reckoned to myself that they looked upon us but to be a parcel of clownish seamen without breeding. Had they taken off their hats it might a been looked on that I stood in contempt of their honor which they take great notice of. Yet still I escaped stabbing.[c]

And elsewhere he had written:

> "We looked upon one another with sorrowful hearts holding fast > lest we might be washed overboard."[c]

There can be no question that life at sea was arduous and dangerous. We know also about the passengers' diet and their personal hygiene. Their diets on land were poor. On ship they were worse. No one washed himself in all that time, not alone because of lack of water, but the idea just did not occur to them.

The Shield, which carried the first Schooley immigrants, arrived a few miles north of Burlington, near the Falls of the Delaware, on a winter's day in December 1678. The vessel was made fast with a rope to a buttonwood tree. Hard ice had formed on the water, and it was said the passengers were able to walk ashore. This is in doubt. On the shores of the river the newcomers greeted their former neighbors and relatives. Soon they were busily engaged in bringing their effects from the ship.

In the first days as the landing boats travelled back and forth, parties of Indians appeared in their canoes. The travellers arranged their things on the beach. Their activities had to be directed to the making of living quarters. Meanwhile, many would stay the night aboard the ship or in someone's barn, perhaps in a cow stall.

The occupations of many of the newcomers to Burlington and nearby have been determined. Apparently all the trades and professions that are needed to make the society complete were represented among the immigrants on the Kent, the Shield, and the flyboat Martha. Most of them were farmers, of course. Mahlon Stacy was a tanner, Samuel Taylor a sawyer and stuffweaver,* John Cripps a merchant, Robert and Thomas Scholey clothmakers, Thomas Fairnsworth a cordwainer or shoemaker, Thomas Olive a haberdasher, Caleb Whatley and John Woolman weavers, Joshua Newbold a miller and millwright, Richard Guy a cheesemonger, Isaac DeCow a butcher. Numbers of them were carpenters, including William Bustill, John Gardner, Joseph Pancoast, and Thomas Scattergood. There was one schoolmaster, a linen weaver, a scrivener, a chandler, a brewer, a cooper, a wheelwright, a woolcomber, and a physician.

The first physician who became established in what is now Burlington County was Daniel Wills. He was also a Quaker. In England he got into trouble by refusing to take an oath and had been imprisoned for a period of several months. After he was released from prison he held a meeting in his house, again breaking the law. On one occassion he stood up to protest against the vanity of acting in a play. He went to jail again. Eventually he decided to come to America. He came on the Kent, bringing with him his family of eight children. He was the author of two books which were of a religious nature. Records refer to Daniel Wills as a "doctor of Physsick" or as a practitioner of "chymistry". In his will he left a book of "Chirurgery called Ambros Parry".[d]

Some Descendants of The American Schooley Family

ROBERT[1] SCHOLEY was born in England about 1620. Doubtless he was related to the Scholeys of Yorkshire. The name of Robert's wife is not known, and it has not been determined if he was married more than once. The only discovered record of his name is when his daughter Mary was married in Nottingham, West Jersey, in 1680, she being identified as the "dau. of Robert". One of the witnesses to her marriage was Robert Scholey Jr.[a] Although in the seventeenth century " Jr." was used to designate the younger of two persons of the same name living in one community whether they were related or not, there is no evidence that two Robert Scholeys were in the Nottingham area, or even in New Jersey at this time. It seems likely the use of Jr. with Robert's name indicates his father was still living and that he, the younger Robert, had recently come to America. It can further be assumed that Mary was Robert Jr.'s sister, and thus two children of the elder Robert are identified.[b]

Children, probably all born in Yorkshire:

Mary is believed to have come to America in 1678 aboard the Shield with her brother Robert.[e] After her death John Rogers m. (2) Mary Groom by whom he had four children: John, Deborah, Mary, and Joseph.[c,f] In his will of 13 Apr. 1698, proved 30 Mar. 1700, with inventory taken 18 Sept. 1699, John Rogers of Nottingham, Burlington Co., yeoman, named his children John, Joseph, and Mary.[d]

vi. ?SAMUEL, b. ca. 1663. In 1688 he witnessed the marriage of John Chadwick and Elizabeth Light in Burlington, West Jersey, and in 1689 and 1690 he was a defendant there in suits brought by Abram Senior and Thomas Brock.[g] While it is not certain, Samuel was probably of age by 1688, in which case he was born about the mid-1660s or earlier. No further evidence of him after 1690 has come to light, unless he was the Samuel "Skoly" who d. in Philadelphia 7 7m 1694.[h]

John and Mary were m. at the house of Thomas Lambert in Nottingham, four years later the site of the first meeting for Friends of that community, organized by Francis Davenport. Witnesses to the marriage were Robert Scholey, Jr., Mahlon Stacy, John and Thomas Lambert, William Wood, William Biles, Joshua Wright, John and Robert "Mirfine," Richard Ridgway, and four others.

b. In the first edition of Trails of Our Fathers John Scholey (No. 2) was given as the father of all the early American Schooleys. Furthermore, he was said to have been born in 1609, the son of Richard Scholey of Easton on the Hill in Northamptonshire and grandson of Richard Scholey of Cadwell in Bedfordshire. That the two Richards may have been father and son is possible, but the younger of the two had but one known son, Anthony.

To Richard "Schooley" of Cadwell were confirmed arms [that is, a coat of arms] on 6 June 1582, described in heraldic terms as "azure on a bend argent three hurts". (See W. Harry Rylands, ed., Grantees of Arms Named in Docquets and Patents to the End of the Seventeenth Century, arranged by Joseph Foster, The Publications of the Harleian Society, Vol. 66 [London, 1915], 224.), and Sir Bernard Burke, The General Armory of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales [London, 1878], 903).

This Richard was the probable grandfather of the first Schooleys to come to America. He was doubtless the "Richard Scooley, gent.", who on 17 July or 20 Aug. 1581 m. Amy (Wodden) Leigh, widow, gentlewoman, at St. Mary in Bedford, Bedfordshire. She had first m. between 13 Sept. 1558 and 17 June 1562, Thomas Leigh, armiger, son of Hugh and Maude (Hogshaw) Leigh, by whom she had four children. Leigh was bur. 22 Nov. 1571. Richard Scholey was bur. in "Cawdwell" on 11 Oct. 1591. Apparently there was some difficulty in the settlement of his estate, for on 28 Oct. 1591 it was recorded that "the allegations of Richard, the son, are not proven and are denied". On 13 June 1592, the "allegations of the defendant, Amy, at Second of All Souls, 4th of November in said year [1591] have been proven.... Now we promise that said Amy is relict of s'd Dec'd and is entitled to administer his goods". She was doubtless the Amy "Scoley of Caldwell", gentlewoman and widow, who was bur. 7 Dec. 1603.

The son Richard was perhaps the same Richard Scholey, yeoman, who was a resident of the Parish of Easton on the Hill, Northamptonshire, when he made his will on 3 September 1638. He requested to be "bur. in the churchyard of St. Martins in the Parish of Stamford Baron" (which borders Easton on the Hill). As Richard did not name a wife in his will she probably predeceased him. He remembered his sister Alice Lyodyson of "Sherebourne", widow, and some of her children. To his son "Anthonie", under 21, Richard left "the lease of my house in Saint Martins... and also the lease on my house in Easton where I now live". His lease in Stewkeley, if not sold, he authorized to be sold by neighbor "Timothie Twat" of Stamford. Bequests were also made to the poor of St. Martins and Easton. Although a minor son, Anthony was in November 1638 allowed by the Court to be executor of his father's estate. 2... JOHN[2] SCHOLEY (?Robert[1]) was born about 1638 in England, probably in Yorkshire, and he died in Chesterfield Township, Burlington County, West (New) Jersey, between 29 March 1695 and 8 January 1695/6.[a]

He has been claimed as the John Scholey who married 23 April 1633, in the Parish of Rotherham, Yorkshire, England, Elizabeth Fletcher, daughter of Richard and Alice (-----) Fletcher,[b] which if true means he was a much older man. That he was the John "Soobie" who married ISABEL HANCOCK on 25 February 1660/1 in Sheffield, Yorkshire,[c] is more likely, not only with respect to the time of birth of his children, but also because his widow was named Isabel. She was supposedly the daughter of Robert Hancock[d] and was living 7 April 1696, as shown below.[a] Evidently the Scholeys first lived in the Parish of Aston in Yorkshire where one son was baptized.[e]

Although probably the oldest of the Schooleys to come to America, John was not the first, having been preceeded by two of his probable brothers, Thomas in 1677 and Robert (together with his sister Mary) the following year. It has been stated that John, his wife Isabel, and son John (Jr.) came to the Province of West Jersey about 1680 or 1681, settling in what is now Chesterfield Township, Burlington County in New Jersey. Their approximate time of immigration seems to be based on a purchase in 1682 by John of land on "Doctors Creek", near Crosswick's Creek, from Godfrey Newbold of Woodhouse, Parish of Handsworth, Yorkshire, England.[f] This area was within the bounds of the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting of Friends, and although some of his relatives were members here and elsewhere, no evidence has been found to indicate either John or his wife Isabel were Quakers.[g]

John Scholey may have come to America a bit later than 1681, for his first recorded purchase of land in West Jersey was 10 June 1687. On that date, John Scholey "of near Chesterfield, husbandman", purchased 100 acres on Doctor's Creek in Burlington County, between lands of Hananiah Gaunt and Thomas Shinn, from Ralph Trenoweth of Burlington County, yeoman, who bought it from Daniel Stanton, 26 October 1685 and had it surveyed the next month.[h] On the 9th of the 11th month 1687/8, John Scholey, husbandman, sold for £20 to William Watson of Farnsfield, West Jersey, husbandman, the same one hundred acres--the plantation where he lived, "lying upon ye Creek Called Doctors Creek adjoyning to the Lands of ye sd William Watson."[i] That John was described in the deed as "late of Aughton in ye parish of Aston in ye County of York within ye Kingdome of England", also suggests he may have come to America later than 1681 as has been previously suggested.

By an undated record fifty acres of land adjoining that of Mathew Champion was surveyed for John Scholey. A note in the record indicates the land was "sold to Gervis Pharo".[j] By the 3d month of 1691, John had land on "Oneanickon" [Onea Nickon] in Chesterfield Township, which was mentioned as a bounds of 100 acres surveyed for Katherine, widow of William Beard.[k] On the 10th of the 5th month of that same year, John Scholey of Burlington County, husbandman (who signed with his mark), deeded to Widow Katharine Beard, fifty acres between their lands.[l] John Scholey of Oneanickon, Burlington County, planter, purchased from George Hutcheson of Burlington, distiller, on 16 November 1694, 125 acres, "to be surveyed out of the land bought of Tho: Hutcheson and Mahlon Stacy", 1 July 1687.[m] Four months later John had surveyed 181 acres bounded by John Warren, Joshua Wright, and William Emley, and "crossing a run".[n] His land bordering that of William Watson was mentioned in a survey of the 2d month 1695 and the following month it was mentioned as a bounds, along with land of William Emley and Joshua Wright, to 230 acres surveyed for Mary Wright.[o]

In 1688 John was a creditor of the estate of James Pharo of Nottingham, Burlington County,[p] a fellow passenger on the Shield with Robert Scholey in 1678.[q] John Scholey, Matthew Champion, and John Ogbourne inventoried the estate of Peter Harvey in 1694.[r]

By his will dated 29 March 1695:

"John Scholey Being wake of body but of good Memory do own this my laste will and testament firest I Committ my b-o-d Soule unto the hand of Allmighty god next my body to be bured att my wife and sonn dyscetion .

- William Bustill".

On 7 April 1696 was proved "ye Codecill or Testatamentis of John Scholey". That same day, "Isabell Scholey of the County of Burlington in ye Province of West New Jersey widdow" was bonded administratrix of the estate "of John Scholey her late Husband deceased", with Matthew Champion, yeoman, and Daniel Smith, butcher, both of Burlington County, as bondsmen. Isabell made her mark on the bond. Also that same day was proved the following inventory of John Scholey's estate, taken 8 January 1695/6 by Thomas Scholey, John Murfin, Matthew Champion, and William Bustill:

In the colonial West Jersey land records mentioned above John Scholey is described as a husbandman or planter, yet the inventory of his estate also reveals his work in cloth--the occupation of other early Schooleys in America and of many late seventeenth-century immigrant Quakers from Yorkshire.[s]

Children, probably both born in Aston,Yorkshire:[t]

i. THOMAS[3], evidently b. 1674 or earlier, as he was not designated under age in his father's will. He was perhaps the Thomas who helped inventory John's estate [a] and the Thomas who in 1697 witnessed the first marriage of (No. 6) John Scholey.[u] He seems to have been still living when on 10 May 1700 John Snape of Springfield deeded to John Murfin of the same place ninety acres between John Warren and Thomas Scholey junior,[v] probably being so styled to distinguish him from the older (No. 4) Thomas Scholey who may have been his uncle (the latter's son was too young at this time to have owned land). Some of the information about (No. 4) Thomas may pertain to this Thomas. It is also possible that (No. 4) Thomas was the son of John Scholey, if John was born earlier than has been calculated above. Given his close association with (No. 3) Robert Scholey, however, it seems more likely (No. 4) Thomas was the former's brother.

The action of proving the will, inventory, and bond, and granting of administration was also recorded in Burlington Records 1680, 27, which can also be found published in "Burlington Court Records," Hist. and Gen. Miscellany, 2:26. Obviously the wording in the will that wife Isabell and son John pay £20 to son Thomas "when he come att age" refers to John and not Thomas. The words "Liinge [lying] next to John Wareing [Warren]" have been previously read by some as "Limgeneted to John Wareing". Note also the curious reference in the probate to the "Codecill", although John made no such amendment to his will.

f. Source unknown. Such a conveyance is not found among the recorded West Jersey Deeds. It is stated, without documentation, in "The Scholeys of West New Jersey", 62, that John Scholey "sailed from Hull in the Willing Mind and arrived in West New Jersey 3 November 1677".

g. John's will is dated "March ye 29th 95th", and at this time Quakers did not write the names of months in their documents. Of course, the scrivener of the will could have been a non-Quaker.

h. West Jersey Deeds, A:81, B1:188, 392, abstracted in NJ Archives I, 21:364, 423, 449. It is wrongly stated in "The Schooleys of West New Jersey", 62, that Isabel joined John in this deed. Another small argument that John Scholey did not come to America until the late 1680's is that Robert and Thomas are the only Scholeys included in a 1684 list of Proprietors and Freeholders in the Yorkshire Tenth (Burlington Court Book, 32).

i. West Jersey Deeds, B1:392; abstracted in NJ Archives I, 21:449. Watson is also described as of Farnsworth, Co. Nottingham, England. Cook and Hannah Benner Roach, "Watson of Nottinghamshire and of Burlington County, New Jersey," Penn. Gen. Mag., 27(1971):3ff. The place commonly known as Onyonickon often referred to in early land descriptions received its name from the Indian chieftan who had his home at this place, which about the year 1696 was known as Carmel or Mt. His funeral was attended by both Indians and the English, to whom he had been a true friend. For William and Katherine Beard, see note t.

t. As there is quite a gap between the m. of John Scholey and Isabel Hancock in 1660/1 and the bp. of son John in 1676, there may have been other children. A different account of John Scholey's children is given in The Lundy Fam., 449, 450, where it is claimed John and his wife Alice lived and died in the Parish of Handsworth, co. York. Six children are listed, including sons Robert, Thomas, and John, Jr., and daughter Mary who m. John Rogers. The other two children are given as (1) "a son, mentioned in tradition, name not ascertained, remained in England" and died without issue, but left a sizeable estate; and (2) Margaret, also "mentioned in tradition," who m. ---- Barker and had a son Charles, a fur merchant of Calcutta, India, who is also supposed to have acquired a large fortune, which he left to his mother. When Margaret died without a will, the "estate passed to her three brothers who had emigrated from England to New Jersey." The combined estates of the Scholey son who remained in England and Charles Barker were supposed to have amounted to "twenty-seven millions".

Still another account is presented in The Michael Shoemaker Book, 796, 797, where the children of John Scholey are given as (1) John, Jr.; (2) Thomas; (3) "(probably) Katharina" who m. first ----Beard and second Matthew Champion; (4) a daughter who m. John Murfin and had a son William; (5) a daughter who m. Thomas Ridgway; and (6) a daughter who m. Gervis/Jarvis Pharo and had a son James and dau. Mary who m. ----Holywell. The "evidence" for these four Scholey daughters seems to be the will of Matthew Champion of Burlington Co., yeoman, dated 18 Dec. 1733 and proved 21 Oct. 1735. Champion bequeathed sizeable amounts to three cousins in England and lesser amounts to friends, apparently in New Jersey. He also mentioned a former will by which he "had Left a very considerable part" of his estate to his wife, but she now being deceased, "I do hereby Give and Bequeath [it] unto Her Friends & Relatives". No specific relationships are given, but the following persons are named: Garvis Pharo and his son James; "my Kinsmen John Scholey six pounds and to his Children five pounds Each of them money as aforsd", "my Kinsman" Thomas Ridgway's children by his first wife; "my Kinsman" William Murfin and his children; "my Kinsman" James Pharo and his sister Mary Hollwell and her children; the wife and children of John Butcher Jr.; Daniel Smith's wife Mary and his children Robert, John, and Benjamin Smith and Catharen Calinder. Champion also named his brother-in-law John "Murfing" and the children of John Sykes, and "well beloved friends and kinsmen" John Sykes and Daniel Smith "Juner" of Burlington County were to be executors (Burlington Co. Wills, 2797-2802; also abstracted in NJ Archives I, 30 [Wills 2]:90). Matthew Champion was indeed a neighbor of John Scholey and he not only witnessed the latter's will, but with Daniel Smith (mentioned in Champion's will) was a bondsman to widow Isabel Scholey's administration bond. But as

John was deceased by 1733, it seems more likely the John Scholey referred to was his son, John (Jr.). "Kinsman" could be loosly interpreted to include not only relatives of Champion's late wife, but also the spouses of her relatives; therefore, the relationship between Katharine and John Scholey could have been through his father, mother, or either of his two wives. It is evident from certain sources that most of the "kinsmen" named by Champion were related through the Murfin family. Katherine, dau. of Robert "Myrfin" of Eaton, Nottinghamshire, m. (1) William Beard in Burlington, N.J., in 1679, and after his death in 1690 she m. (2) Matthew Champion in Burlington in 1691. Her brother Robert, who came on the Shield with (No. 3) Robert Scholey in 1678, and who was a fellow bondsman to Katherine's bond of administration on the estate of William Beard, was the father of Mary Murfin who m. Daniel Smith in Burlington in 1695. Mary's sister Joannah, b. 1684, was doubtless the one who m. John Sykes by 1704, and their brother William Murfin was doubtless the one also named in Champion's will. Champion's brother-in-law John "Murfing" was obviously a brother of Katherine and Robert. Gervis Pharo was the son of James and Ann (Murfin) Pharo, Ann being from Haines Greame, co. Notts., at the time of her marriage. Robert Scholey was a witness to James's will in 1688 and John Scholey was listed among the creditors of that estate (supra note p). Gervis's sisters were Mary who m. John Holloway--their daughter Avis m. (No. 11) Samuel Schooley--and Anne who m. Thomas Ridgway (see NJ Archives I, 23 [Wills 1]:31, 363; Encyc. of American Quaker Gen., 2:166, 169, 183, 197, 207, 244, 249, 260, 261; Descs. of Thomas French, 1:183, 184; and R. More research is needed on the "kinsmen" named in the will of Matthew Champion.

3.... ROBERT[2] SCHOLEY (Robert[1]) was born about 1650 in England, probably in Yorkshire, and he probably died in Nottingham Township, Burlington County, West Jersey (now Hamilton Township, Mercer County, New Jersey), before the 25th day of the 1st month 1689, when he was buried at the "Falls".[a] He was recorded as Robert Scholey, Jr., when he witnessed the marriage of his sister Mary in 1681.[b]

He was probably the Robert Scholey of the Parish of Whitwell, Derbyshire, England, who on the 14th of the 2d month 1675 was married at the house of John Hooton in the Parish of Skegby, Nottinghamshire, to SARAH BINGHAM daughter of Richard and Frances (-----) Bingham of the Parish of Mansfield Woodhouse, Nottinghamshire.[c] Sarah married (2) Caleb Wheatley of Nottingham Township, Burlington County, on the 10th of the 10th month 1696 in Chesterfield Township, Burlington County, West Jersey.[d] Caleb and Sarah had no children, and she died on the 14th of the 1st month 1714/5, probably in Chesterfield or Nottingham Township. She was buried at the Falls.[a]

After their marriage Robert and Sarah, who were Friends, or members of the Quaker faith, apparently lived in the Parish of Warsop, Nottinghamshire.[e] They lived for a time in Sarah's home parish of Mansfield Woodhouse where a daughter was born in 1678.[f] That same year they came to America, a year after Robert's brother Thomas made the first Schooley immigration to the New World, but before John (their brother?) and his family came. Robert and "his wife and children" sailed on the Shield, probably from Hull, England, Daniel Towers, master, which arrived near the Falls of the Delaware River, a few miles north of Burlington, on a winter's day in December.[g] As Robert and Sarah are known only to have had one child born before their arrival in this country, it seems "children" should have been recorded as "child", although Robert's sister Mary, who is believed to have come to America with him, may have still been a minor and counted as his child. Perhaps their brother Thomas came to greet them when they arrived in New Jersey.

The Robert Scholeys made their first American home in the Crewcorn settlement--a large tract which had been settled about 1679 on the west side of the Delaware River near the Falls. Today this area is Falls Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania.

Sarah "Scoley" witnessed the Crewcorn birth of "Rebecah", daughter of William and "Johanah" Biles, on the 29th of the 11th month 1680 [February 1679/80].j

Further evidence of their presence at Crewcorn is given by the fact of their being beset with an annoyance that came about from the sale of liquor to the Indians. Robert, his brother Thomas, and other inhabitants of Crewcorn petitioned Governor Andros of New York on 12 April 1680:

> Whereas wee ye Inhabitants of ye new seated Towne nere ye falls of Delaware (called Crewcorne) findeing our selves agreived by ye Indians when drunk, informeth, that we be & have been in great danger of our lives, of our houses burning, of our goods stealeing & of our wives and Children affrighting, informeth that we are affeard to go about our Lawfull occasions, least when wee come home we finde ym & our consernes damnifyed, these things considered wee doe humbly and jointly desire that ye selling of brandy and other strong liquors to ye Indians may be wholly suppressed which if done we hope we shall live peaceably.

Robert "Scoley" and other Crewcorn residents again petitioned the governor on 13 September 1680:

> "The nessessity of or greivance drives us to trouble you once more...against our neighbor who will not be restrained from selling of strong liquors to ye Indians."

The guilty party, Gilbert Wheeler, was fined in 1681 and 1682.[k]

Robert appears to have served in 1681 as a juror at Bristol, on the Pennsylvania side of the Delaware River, opposite Burlington,[l] but his relocation on the New Jersey side of the river is clearly evidenced by a return of a survey made 12 November 1680 for William Ward, for 36 acres along the Delaware and "the Creek", the south boundary of which was land of Robert and Thomas Scholey. The record has a marginal note that 19 acres of this tract "is surveyed to Robert Scholey, ye rest is swamp."[m] The following day 200 acres along the Delaware River and between land of John Rogers and Crosswick Creek were surveyed for Robert and Thomas Scholey.[n] This tract, as 205 acres "adjoining his home," was resurveyed to Robert Scholey on 21 September 1682.[o] The Woodbridge Monthly Meeting of Friends was later constructed on this land of Robert Scholey.

By a deed of 10 December 1682 the occupations of Robert and his brother Thomas are revealed. On that date Robert Scholey of Nottingham Woodhouse, clothmaker, conveyed to Thomas Scholey of the same place and occupation, 1/64 of a share of his West Jersey proprietorship, excepting all lots in Burlington Town and Township.[p] Perhaps this was a settlement whereby Thomas received his share of the 200 acres surveyed for them two years earlier, although it was certainly these same 200 acres that were included among a list of "the Proprietors & Freeholders of the first Tenth", dated the 24th of the 4th month 1684, as possessed by Robert and

"Tomas Scholey."[q] Land of Robert Scholey in Mansfield, above Crosswick's Creek, was mentioned as a bounds in a deed whereby William Black and Robert Murfin sold land to John Horner and his wife Mary on 16 July 1684.[r] In 1685 Robert Scholey held a one quarter share of the one hundred shares of the Proprietors of West New Jersey.[s] He purchased two tracts of land in Nottingham Township, Burlington County, from his brother Thomas Scholey on 2 November 1687.[t]

An entry recorded the 2d of the 7th month 1686 in the minutes of the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting tells of a difficulty sustained by Robert Scholey:

> Whereas this Meeting is made Aquainted that Robert Scholey hath Sustained A Great Loss By the fire Burning of his Corne and Hay, hath thought fitt to make Enquierry how it is With him, and hath ordered Thomas Lambert and Mahlon Stacy to Goe And Speake With him and Give their Reports to the Next monthly Meeting.[u]

Since his permanent settlement in New Jersey, Robert Scholey served as a juror at the Burlington Court, in 1681 when his signature was applied to a sentence passed down upon one William Twining:

> "William Twining indicted for stealing Hennes and was by his jury found guilty and by the court ordered to be whipt betwext the market place in Burlington to the Landing Place and to receive 20 lashes".

He also served as a juror in 1682 and 1687[v] , and in 1682 he was appointed a constable for Yorkshire Tenth.[w] Robert was a witness to the will of James "Pharow," dated 30 May 1688.[x]

Robert lived a little more than ten years in the New World. In his will dated the 19th day of the 1st month 1688/9, Robert Scholey of Nottingham Woodhouse, West Jersey named his wife Sarah to whom he left "ye plantation in Nottingham Township and ye house and lotts in ye town of Burlington", and who was to be executrix. Of his children the only one mentioned by name was "my young son Robert", who was "to have five pounds more than the rest". His "trusty and beloved friends" Mahlon Stacy of Ballyfield and Thomas Lambert of Nottingham, West Jersey, were named trustees. Evidently the will was never proved.[y]

Sarah, widow of Robert Scholey of Nottingham Woodhouse in West Jersey, was conveyed 40 acres near Ony Onickon in Burlington County, on the 29th of the 2d month 1690. This tract adjoined Thomas Scholey's land in the Yorkshire Tenth. The same day she also received title to another 60-acre parcel adjoining the first tract.[z] By a deed of 29 September 1690, Sarah, widow and executrix of Robert Scholey of Nottingham Woodhouse, with Mahlon Stacy of Ballifield, and Thomas Lambert of Nottingham, both tanners and her trustees, sold to John, youngest son of Thomas Lambert of Nottingham, bachelor, a mansion house and plantation of 200 acres in Nottingham Woodhouse.[aa] By another deed, dated 10 May 1693, Sarah Scholey of Northampton Woodhouse, West Jersey, sold to Peter Groome of Crosswicks, 100 acres near Onyonickon in Yorkshire Tenth. It is revealed in this instrument that 100 of the acres were those she had purchased three years earlier from William Biddle and her brother-in-law, Thomas Scholey, husbandman.[bb]

By her will dated 24 February 1693/4, proved 12 May 1694, Alice Carter of Hopewell Township, Burlington County, widow, left legacies to various persons, including Sarah Scholey, who was also a witness to the will. The residuary legatee of Alice's estate was John Rogers, no doubt the one who first married Robert Scholey's sister, Mary.[cc] Sarah Scholey was also listed in 1694 among the several creditors of the estate of Thomas Lambert of Nottingham.[dd]

Upon Sarah's marriage to Caleb Wheatley in 1697, a committee was appointed at the Chesterfield Friends Meeting "to see that the rights of Sarah's children were well safeguarded".[ee] On 18 May 1696, Caleb Wheatley of Burlington County, "lining weaver", and his wife Sarah, sold to Mathew Grange of Burlington County, yeoman, land which Sarah, "then widow Scholey", purchased from Abraham Senior on 28 May 1691.[ff] In January 1703/4, Caleb Wheatley witnessed the will of Andrew Smith,[gg] whose daughter Mary had married his stepson, (No. 7) William Scholey, and in November 1717 Caleb witnessed the second marriage of his stepdaughter Mary (Scholey) Wright.[hh] Caleb died, probably in Nottingham Township, in 1732 or 1732/3. On the 2d of the 1st month 1731/2, a notation was made in the minutes of the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting that he was "aged & infirm and [has] Little to subsist of". Three months later, on the 1st of the 4th month, the records indicate discussions were to be held with Joshua Shreve, who desired £12 a year to care for Wheatley. On the 1st of the 12th month 1732/3, "Caleb Wheatley being dead", Shreve "expects this meeting to pay what is due to him."[ii]

Children, all but the first recorded in Chesterfield M M recs.:[a]

(2) in Chesterfield Twp., 5 9m 1717, as his 1st wife, SAMUEL DANFORD,[hh] who was living 19 June 1732, when he was a bondsman for the administration of the estate of his brother-in-law, (No. 8) Robert Scholey.[mm]

In his will Joseph Wright of Chesterfield, yeoman, named his wife Mary as sole heiress and executrix. Brothers Joshua and Robert Wright were to be guardians of the children.[ll]

Samuel Danford was perhaps the one of that name of Maidenhead, Hunterdon Co., N.J., yeoman, whose will of 6 April 1745 was proved 6 July 1745, and in which he named four sons but no wife.[nn]

* It was also the year that Charles II gave to William Penn 48,000 square miles of land (Pennsylvania). William Penn was 37 years old, and his father had bequeathed to him a claim of £15,000. The gift given by the king was in payment of a debt to William's father. Many thought that the reason for the generous grant was the King's desire to rid England of nonconformists. William Penn was the first person of great means to join the Friends.

William, the son of Thomas and Sarah Parker Scholey had children William, Sarah, and Elizabeth. These names are repeated over and over through the generations.

her parents were probably the Richard who d. 7 11m 1683/4 and the Frances, widow, who d. 19 10m 1690, both of Mansfield Woodhouse and both bur. in Skegby (ibid.; English Friends Records[:] Derby and Notts. Burials, Colls. GSP, v. 590). Bingham is an old name in Derby, Notts., and York (see William Otis Sawtelle, "William Bingham of Philadelphia and His Maine Lands," Pubs. of the Gen. Soc. of Pa., 9[1926]:207ff).

Sarah (Bingham) Scholey may have been a relative of Alice and Eliza Bingham and Bridget (-----) (Bingham) Watson, who were witnesses to her 2d marriage to Caleb Wheatley in 1696 (see note d). Alice m. after 7 Mar. 1705/6, Samuel Danford, who after her death m. (2) Sarah (Bingham) Scholey's dau. Mary (Scholey) Wright. One authority believed Alice, as well as James Bingham, his sister Margaret (Bingham) Stiles, and Mary (Bingham) Elkinton, were children of Mrs. Bridget Bingham, widow, of whom record is first found in Burlington Co., N.J., in 1687, when she deeded land to her son James. She and her children arrived in Burlington aboard the Henry and Ann in the fall of 1681.

In 1687 Bridget became the 3d wife of William Watson of Nottingham Twp. Bridget d. in 1702 and was bur. in Nottingham. It is believed she was the Bridget Bingham who was fined in June 1670 for attending an unlawful Quaker meeting in the vicinity of Thaxted, co. Essex, Eng. (Lewis D. Cook, "Bingham of County Essex, England and of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania" [n.p., 1979?], typescript, Colls. GSP, 1, 4, 5). While the claim Bridget was the mother of James, Alice, etc., is not questioned here, the association between some of these Binghams and Sarah (Bingham) (Scholey) Wheatley suggests ties might be found in Derby or Notts., and not in Essex. Of course, that Robert and Sarah Scholey named their first child Alice strengthens the suggested kinship.

4... THOMAS[2] SCHOLEY (?Robert[1]) was born about 1656 in England, probably in Yorkshire, and he died in Chesterfield Township, Burlington County, New Jersey, between 6 February 1723/4 and 13 April 1724, as shown below.[a]

Thomas married SARAH PARKER of Burlington, West Jersey, in 1686, after the 4th day of the 8th month, when they were liberated to marry by the Burlington Monthly Meeting of Friends.[b] Sarah, who was living 13 April 1724 as shown below, was the daughter of George and Sarah (-----) Parker of Shrewsbury, Monmouth County, East Jersey. George owned land at Rumson's Neck, Monmouth County, as well as in Burlington County. After George's death his widow Sarah moved to Northampton Township, Burlington County, where on 25 June 1720 she made her will, in which she named her daughter Sarah Scholey:[c]

> "1720 June 25. Parker, Sarah, of Northampton Township Burlington Co., widow of George, of E. J.: will of. Sons-- George, William, Joseph; daughters, Sarah Scholey and Elizabeth Brown. Real and personal estate. Son Joseph sole executor. Witnesses -- Josiah Southwick, James Smith, Tho: Scattergood".

The will was probated May 31(?) 1722. At the time of the will her son George Parker was a resident of Philadelphia. The public records divulge the proof that Sarah Parker, the mother of Sarah who m. Thomas Schooley, was a widow for many years. In a 1688 deed reference is made to:

> "Sarah Parker, widow, of Rankokus Creek or Northampton River to George Parker of the same place for 192 acres".

Sarah Parker's other daughter, Elizabeth, married Richard Brown.

Thomas Schooley evidently had joined the Society of Friends before 1676, for in that year in Warsop,

Nottinghamshire--where his brother Robert is also supposed to have lived--"Thomas Scoaley, for being at the same [Quaker] meeting, was fined ten pounds for the pourrty [poverty] of the place".[d] It is indicated in another account that Thomas was a member of the Farnsfield Quaker Meeting in Nottinghamshire, which granted him a Certificate of Removal to New Jersey that was supposedly recorded in the "Book of Records of the Society of Friends in Burlington county, N.J.", the 19th of the 3d month 1684, some six and a half years after his arrival in America.[e]

Thomas was the first Schooley to come to America. His intentions for emigration from England were established by 3 March 1677 [1676/7], when his name was included with 150 others on "The Concessions and Agreements of the Proprietors, Freeholders and Inhabitants of the Province of West New-Jersey, in America."[f] These "Concessions and Agreements" were to be the governing laws of the land south from the Falls along the Delaware River in West Jersey, which had been purchased by Friends from Yorkshire and London. When these lands were offered for sale in the first months of 1676/7, twenty-four shares were sold, including a block of ten shares--a whole tenth of the province--taken by five men from Yorkshire. They quickly subdivided the land into parcels as small as 1/64 of a share, and soon the entire block became known as the Yorkshire or First Tenth.[g] In the summer of 1677 Thomas Scholey was one of 114 passengers aboard the flyboat Martha of Burlington, Yorkshire, Thomas Wildbuys, master, which sailed from Hull, a port on the River Humber, and is believed to have arrived at Burlington in September or November of 1677.[h] The Martha certainly landed before the 25th of the 9th month 1677, for on that day Thomas "Scoley" and others witnessed the marriage of Abraham Strand and Rachel "Nickholson" in Salem, West Jersey.[i] Many of Thomas's fellow passengers were Quakers and nearly all of them were from towns and parishes in southwestern Yorkshire and adjacent Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire, near where the Scholeys had lived.[j] Their destination in America was the colony of the Society of Friends which was to be established along the Delaware River at Burlington in West Jersey. Thomas's brother Robert (and perhaps sister Mary) came to America the following year, followed by their brother John and his family a few years later.[k]

With his brother Robert's family and others, Thomas first settled in Crewcorn, on the west side of the Delaware River, in what is now Falls Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania. Here Thomas "Sebeley" [sic] was granted 105 acres,[l] and with his brother Robert and other inhabitants of this settlement, he petitioned Governor Andros of New York on 12 April 1680 concerning the sale of liquor to Indians.[m]

The Scholeys did not remain long in Crewcorn but moved back into West Jersey. Thomas may have gone first, as he did not join Robert and other Crewcorn settlers in a second petition about the sale of liquor to the Indians, dated 13 September 1680.[m] Thomas and Robert were probably resettled in New Jersey when their land was mentioned as the southern boundry in a survey of 12 November 1680 made for William Ward, for 36 acres along the Delaware River and "the Creek". The following day, 200 acres along the River, between lands of John Rogers and Crosswick Creek, were surveyed for Robert and Thomas Scholey.[n] When this land was resurveyed for Robert Scholey two years later, it was described as 205 acres.[o] Thomas's share of this property may have been included in the deed of 10 December 1682, whereby Robert Scholey of Nottingham Woodhouse, West Jersey, clothmaker, for fifty shillings, conveyed to Thomas Scholey of the same place and occupation, 1/64 of a share of his proprietorship, excepting all lots in Burlington Town and Township.[p] "Tomas" and Robert Scholey's possession of 200 acres, however, was included in a list of "the Proprietors & Freeholders of the first Tenth", dated the 24th of the 4th month 1684.[q]

By the 3d of the 4th month 1684/5, Thomas Scholey of Mansfield Woodhouse, New Jersey, was no longer a clothmaker, but now devoted to agriculture. On that date he was described as a planter when he purchased from Roger Hawkins of "Crookhorne", Pennsylvania, a half of a fifteenth share of a West Jersey proprietorship, excepting 62 acres sold to William Black and a lot in Burlington Town.[r] The Scholeys had left Mansfield Woodhouse by 1 July 1685, when Thomas Scholey, husbandman, was described as late of that place when he purchased 100 acres in Burlington, near the Falls of the Delaware River, from William Emley of Nottingham, yeoman--land "to be surveyed and divided out of lands of William Emley lying in ye First Tenth called Yorkshire Tenth."[s] It was evidently here that Thomas had surveyed for him in the 12th month 1685/6 and in the 6th month 1698, 340 acres, between the property of George Hutcheson, Michael Newbold, Eliakim Higgins, and William Biddle.[t]

On 28 March 1688 Thomas Scholey of "Ony-onickon",West Jersey, husbandman, sold to Nicholas Young, late of Burlington, sawyer, and formerly a servant of Roger "Hawkeings" of Pennsylvania (whose estate Scholey had purchased), 100 acres of "unappropriated land".[u] That same year "Thomas Scholeyes" land was described as a boundary of the Chesterfield Constabulary.[v] To his widowed sister-in-law Sarah Scholey, Thomas sold land near Ony Onickon on 29 April 1690, and on the 4th of the 7th month of that year he purchased from Thomas Lambert of Nottingham, tanner, 100 acres near Ony Onickon, Springfield Township, to be surveyed in the First of Yorkshire Tenth.[w] Another 200 acres at Oneanickon, by the line of "the old Indian purchse", was bought from Thomas Clarke of Burlington, carpenter, on 20 June 1696, and included 12 acres of meadow adjoining lands of Matthew Champion and John Chaddock. In this deed Thomas Scholey was described as a yeoman.[x] Thomas Scholey's lands in Springfield Township were mentioned in two deeds of 2 May 1698. The abbuters of the first tract, of 100 acres, were Thomas Greene and John Dixson, and of the second tract, of 200 acres, were Hananiah Gaunt, Thomas Budd, and Gervas Pharoe.[y] Thomas had surveyed for him on 10 July 1699 another 38 acres adjoining his own land and between the lands of William Biddle and John Sykes, as well as another 29 acres next to Sykes's land.[z] Another survey was made for 65 acres next to Sykes's land.[aa] Thomas Scholey of Chesterfield, yeoman, purchased the 250-acre homestead there of Andrew Smith of Chesterfield, yeoman, for £310 on 19 April 1700.[bb] On 7 February 1703[/4?] he sold some land to Thomas Kinsey.[cc]

From the time Thomas Scholey settled permanently on the New Jersey side of the Delaware River in the early 1680s, his name is frequently found in the local town and court records and he "was a frequent representative to [the] quarterly meeting [of Friends] and served on important committees".[dd] He was on juries in 1685, 1687/8, 1688, 1697/8, and 1709, was sued by Isaac Horner in 1687/8, and was fined ten shillings in 1701 for failing to show up for jury duty and not "sending any Excuse".[ee] At the Chesterfield town meeting held the 12th of the 12th month 1693[/4], Thomas "Scoly" and others agreed to pay a fine of three shillings for neglecting to attend meetings. He was chosen an overseer of the highway at the town meeting of 12 February 1699/1700 and again in February 1708/9.[ff] In 1701 he and two others were appointed to make a report on some persons "yt Broke ye Prison Dore oppne After A Riotous Manner at Burlington",[gg] and four years later he was chosen to help collect taxes for the repair of the courthouse and prison.[hh] In 1709 he was one of four chosen "To lay asesment...toward maintaining of mary wheot craft", and also that year Thomas and two others "agreead...with ye overseer of the poore" that a "hugh parret" could "be maintained with meat Drinck and Lodging for one year if he life so long".[gg] At the 6 February 1709/10 town meeting Thomas "Scoley" and John "Waring" [Warren] were chosen representatives of the town "according to the act of the Assembly". A year later Thomas Scholey was chosen overseer of the poor.[hh]

Ten years before his death, on 15 September 1714, Thomas Scholey of Chesterfield Township, yeoman, made another land purchase. From Thomas Stevenson of Bensalem Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, yeoman, he bought for £50, a tract of 350 acres "lying in the last Purchase above the Falls."[ii] Also prior to his death, Thomas gave his sons Thomas and William large farms, which is probably the reason by his will he left them only five shillings each. There does not seem to be record of the land he conveyed to Thomas, but on the 1st of the 4th month 1721, Thomas Scholey of Chesterfield Township, yeoman, deeded to his son William Scholey, husbandman, 150 acres in Chesterfield Township, adjoining lands of Nicholas Brown and Asher Clayton.[jj] Thomas's sons Samuel and John apparently remained on their father's farm after his death.

On 6 February 1723/4 Thomas Scholey of Chesterfield, Burlington County, made his mark on his will, which was proved 21 April 1724. In it he named his sons Thomas and William Scholey, who were to each have five shillings. His wife was to have all his improved land for her use, and after her death son Samuel was to receive it, up to 111 acres, as well as various personal items. Son John was also to have 111 acres. To daughter Elizabeth Scholey he left £10 and a mare. Daughter Sarah Shinn was to have a cow and a calf, and her two daughters Mary and Alice were to each receive a "Ewe Lamb". Thomas also willed "that three hundred & fifty Acres of Land which I purchased of Thomas Stevenson...be Sould toward paying my Debts". Wife Sarah and sons Samuel and John were named executors. The inventory of Thomas's estate, which Sarah Scholey signed with her mark, was taken 13 April 1724 by Asher Cleayton, Richard Brown, and William Wood. It amounted to £175.9.6 and included "350 acres of Land at the mountains suposed to be worth £50-0-0."[a] This 350 acre tract later became known as Schooleys Mountain. Just how long Sarah survived Thomas Scholey is not known; there seems to no record of her after 1724.

* About the same time that Thomas and Sarah Parker Scholey were celebrating the birth of their third child, Sarah, something of a far different nature was taking place far to the north in Salem, Massachusetts. Some children called upon to explain their odd behavior claimed that three old women had bewitched them. Before this monkey business was over 20 persons had been executed (nineteen hanged and one pressed to death by heaping stones upon him), and two more had died in prison.

Twp., Burlington Co., where Samuel was described in records as a husbandman, cordwainer, and mason. After Sarah's death Samuel Shinn m. (2) in 1737, Provided Gaskell, by whom he had a son, and in 1740 he married (3) Abigail Urie. There were eight more ch. by this marriage. Samuel apparently was a man of wealth.[mm]

Samuel Shinn who had married Sarah Schooley was born after the death of his father and was brought up in the home of his uncle, John Shinn, Jr. On the 5th of May 1718 Samuel petitioned the people of Burlington Meeting to certify as to his "clearness" as he wished to take a wife in Chesterfield. The Quakers appointed a committee to enquire into his habits and reported him on June 2nd to be "clear" and that his conduct and conversation were deemed acceptable. A certificate was granted. He and Sarah Schooley were married in June 1718.

By his marriage to Sarah Schooley there were seven children:

1. MARY(1719-1721)
2. ALICE(1721-) m. THOMAS STEVENSON
3. SARAH(1723-) m. PHILO LEEDS
4. THOMAS(1725-) m. RUTH STRATTON
5. MARY II(1727-) m. WILLIAM TAYLOR, JR.
6. ELIZABETH (1730-)
7. MARCY (1733-)

By his second marriage to Provided Gaskell there was one child, Samuel, born in 1737 who later married Anna -----, and by Samuel Shinn's third marriage to Abigail Urie there were born eight children: (i) Leah (1741-), (ii) Isaac (1743-), (iii) Silas (1745-), (iv) Sarah (1747-), (v) Rachel (1749-) (vi) Joseph (1751-), (vii) Benjamin (1753-), (viii) Hannah (1755-).

Samuel and Sarah Schooley Shinn spent their years together in Springfield Township in New Jersey. Samuel was there a husbandman, a cordwainer, and a mason, but apparently soon after the death of Sarah he became interested in the breeding of race horses. One would quickly know that breeding race horses leads to racing and this in turn would lead to disfavor with the Quaker Meeting. However, he was able to escape the discipline of the Meeting for this. But then he was called again before the Burlington Meeting possibly for marrying so soon after the death of Sarah. He was able to explain it all away by showing that he needed a wife to care for the young children that were motherless at his home. It is well for Provided Gaskell was already 37 years old, and her life was to last but a short time after her marriage to Samuel Shinn. Soon after his marriage to Abigail Urie he joined those who were migrating to the south. The mounting pressure to divest himself of slaves may have led him to leave the area.

George Haworth's Letters

In the first years the colonists clung to the coastal waterways. They stayed near the great Delaware River not because the mountains impeded their inward movement nor because of the gloom of the forest, but because the waterways were the connection to the mother country. The connection to home was the sailing ship, and by ship they sent letters, that were, however, uncertain of delivery. Mail often took a full year to get to its destination and in winter was nonexistent.

The settlements were small with few diversions. The settlers had a difficult time filling their lives with pleasant experiences. Books were not available. Housing was meagre, the fare was scant, and at the back door there was only the endless forest. Local happenings were significant, but the people suffered from jealousy, prejudices and indifference. So, for those who were able to write, the sending of letters back home was of great importance, and the anticipation of hearing from those who were left in England was a constant yearning.

George Haworth was one who lived on the west side of the Delaware River, probably at Crookhorn. Reading his letters gives one a feeling of the depths of his lonliness. In his letter of 1699 he requested that his relatives write to him. His letter of 1704 indicated that he still waited to hear from them. He had received some money apparently but no letter. In 1706 he wrote again, and said, "you are so negligent and soon forgotten me that you never writ to me since I left you". Then in 1710 he got a letter! Eleven years after his first beseeching he was rewarded with words from home.

The opening lines of his letter of 1699 hold a special interest as he says, " My dear love to all my friends and neighbors, hopeing you are all in good health, as I am at present, blessed be the Lord for the same". These lines have a special interest because they are written again and again in the same way in letters which have been preserved in the Schooley family for two hundred years and about a hundred and ten years later than this one. Every letter seems to open with the same words.

Because George Haworth lived in Bucks County, Pennsylvania in the region where the Schooley brothers had lived, some of the remarks that appear in his letters are worthy of attention. Some lines from his letter of 1699 are as follows:

> To my Dear Mother Brother and Sisters
> After my dear love to you all, with my dear love to all my friends and neighbors, hopeing you are all in good health, as I am at present, blessed be the Lord for the same; tho I have been very weakly at Sea in the latter end of our Journey; but it pleased the Lord that I got well on shore at a place 100 Leagues short of Philadelphia, where I was informed that my Sister dwelt.....We were about 14 weeks at Sea after we left Liverpool a long and tedious journey we had, for we being many throng'd in the Ship, I believe hurt many, for we had many distempers among us, and Fevers, Flux and Jaundice, and many died at Sea about 56 and at Shore there died about 20. Henry Mitchell died about midway, his son John is dead also and one Ellis Schofield and Robert Brewer is dead and hath left his goods to be returned..... My brother in law is dead and child died also about 3 days before my Sister, She was indifferently well most of the way but about 100 Leagues of sight of land she bore a child and it died and then she died and left the Household goods to my Sister.....Thomas Musgrove is dead also at Sea and Henry Mitchell's wife died at shore. As for my Sister here, she doth somewhat incline to come to Meetings, but she liveth so far remote from any Meeting, that she seldom goeth..... If my Brother or any of my Neighbors do incline to come into this country, let them be careful that they do not come too many in the Ship as we did, for being throng, and then come into the hot weather and the smell of many, then many fainted away and died, We wanted Water and Beer to drink, for having salt Beef, we were much athirst and could not get enough to drink, for the seamen stowed the Hold so full of Goods that they had not room for Water and Beer, and then wanting such things as might have nourished us we suffered hardships. But if any come, let them bring for themselves over and besides the Ships allowance Spices and Brandy and cheese let the seamen pretend what they will; or else victual themselves and bargain for being carried over and good and then bring for yourselves but a little Beef and some bacon, and wheat flour is very good, and cheese and Butter and Eggs, or any mild sort of food, and as for your goods you bring let them be Bed ticks very good with all sorts of bedding bring no hats except very good, and hard wares so be careful of being thronged on the Ship on a Summers Journey.

George Haworth*

In another letter of the 14th of the 3rd month called May 1701 he begins:

Dear Mother -- after my dear love to thee and to my Brother and Sisters and to all my relations and well wishers, these comes to let you understand that I am well at present, hopeing these few lines may find you all in good health also, and I have had my health reasonably ever since I came into the country;

* The spellings and punctuation have been preserved.

.....I hired myself for a year and had myself about 19 pounds wages in the year and since I was free I work by the piece or by the day.....So, if any of my relations have a mind to come to this country.....be sure to come free, but if you come servants, they must be sold for 4 or 5 years and work hard, so be sure to come free and bring such things as will suit plantation work, as Horse chains plowgears and all things suitable to work withal as plow irons and things for selling..... and bring stores of good cloth and bedding.....and good stores of silk to sew withal and good bed ticking and good stockings and shoes and good Ivory combs and knives very good ones, ...and I came into the County of Bucks where my cousin James Haworth dwells and dwelleth near to him...I have sent one letter and somethings in another and heard nothing from you, but I desire you in all love to hear from you as soon as possible you can, for I could be glad to hear from you especially of your wellfare and if any of you come I desire you to send me word hard.

George Haworth

Three years later another letter is written. It has the date March 1704, and it begins:

Loving Mother

My dear love to thee hopeing these lines may find thee in good health as I am at present, the Allmighty be praised for it and hath been mostly since I left you but last Winter I had the Fever and ague 5 months, I received your tokens which was half a crown from thee, and a shilling from my loving Brother which I received very gladly, but I should have been more glad to have received a letter with it, I do much admire that I never received no Letter from you since I came here it makes me think you have allmost forgotten me; I am very sorry and sore troubled that you so neglect writing to me, I desire you to write to me by the next oppertunity and not to fail. Remember my love to my loving Sister Sarah and to Brother James.....Two months ago I was with my Sister Mary where she doth dwell, and she was in good health and her Husband and their children, They have had six children but the youngest is dead, John, Mary, Sarah, James, and Elizabeth, but George died of the Small pox..... I live up the country near Delaware river 20 miles above Philadelphia.....

George Haworth

To his brother he has written:

I desire to hear from thee time being short, for I am affraid that thou neglectest writing to me, I have written and sent 9 or 10 letters to thee but never could get one from thee.....I remain thy Loving Brother.

It is a relief to read that in 1710, eleven years after his first request for a letter from home, he has received a letter from his brother. The letter tells of the death of his mother. A few lines of George Haworth's reply are shown:

My Dear and Loving Brother

I received thy letter dated 18th of the 1st m: 1710 being very glad to hear from you but finding in it that my dear and aged Mother is deceased the thoughts of it made me mourn yet hopeing that it is well with her and that all flesh is mortal, I take it as patiently as I can,.....

George Haworth

5.... WILLIAM[2] SCHOLEY (?Robert[1]) was born about 1658 in England, probably in Yorkshire, and he was probably the William Scholey (also recorded as "Scoley") of Aughton, Yorkshire, who was buried the 3d of the 7th month 1714.[a]

On the 17th of the 4th month 1683, William Scooley (or Scoley) of Ratcliff in the Parish of Worksop [or the Parish of Warsop?], Nottinghamshire, married ALICE HIGGINS of the Parish of Chesterfield, Derbyshire, in the Parish of Blyth, Nottinghamshire.[b] She was probably the Alice "Scoley" (also recorded as "Sholey" and "Scholah") of Handsworth Woodhouse Meeting of Friends in Yorkshire, wife of "Robert", who was buried the 29th of the 8th month 1695.[c]

The William Scholeys were members of the Woodhouse Meeting of Friends which was under the Balby Monthly Meetinng in the Parish of Doncaster, Yorkshire.[d]

The Founding Of New Jersey

Some of the events which led to the founding of a Quaker colony in the vicinity of Burlington, New Jersey, should be recorded . Although the Dutch and the Swedes were the earliest settlers along the Delaware River, in 1664 Charles II of England granted to his brother James, Duke of York, vast territories which included the area of New Jersey. The Duke, in turn, to show his gratitude to those who had done favors for him, made great gifts to them of these unknown lands in America. He granted the region between the Hudson and Delaware rivers to Lord Berkeley and Sir George Carteret, both of whom had long records of devoted loyalty to the Duke. One may imagine James's sense of generosity as he bestowed this unknown wilderness upon his friends. Early called the Colony of Nova Caesaria, it was soon given the name New Jersey.

The new proprietors, Berkeley and Carteret, in order to attract immigrants to the land, in 1665 signed a charter or a set of "concessions and agreements". They offered generous terms for acquiring land, freedom of worship according to ones conscience, and a popular assembly to be chosen by the people which was then to have the power to write laws and levy taxes.

Troubles and complications arose, but they were all in time resolved. In March 1674 Lord Berkeley sold his share of the grant for 1000 pounds to John Fenwick in trust for Edward Byllinge. Both of these men were Quakers. This territory was subsequently acquired by William Penn, Gawen Lawrie, and Nicholas Lucas.

The Province of New Jersey was divided by a deed of partition into East New Jersey and West New Jersey, the division line running from "little Egg Harbour straight North, through the country, to the utmost branch of the Delaware River". The instrument for dividing the province, being an agreement arrived at by five persons--Sir George Carteret on the one part and Byllinge, Penn, Lawrie, and Lucas on the other--was called a "quintipartite deed". They all signed on 1 July 1676.[a] By this deed East New Jersey was assigned to Carteret and West New Jersey (about five eights of the whole) to the Quaker associates, and thus was laid the foundation for establishing the first Quaker colony in America.

The laws of the two zones were quite different. Some provisions which entered into the laws of East New Jersey related to concerns which did not enter the minds of those making laws for the western sector. In East New Jersey there was constant fear of witchery:

> "Any woman who should seduce and betray into matrimony any of His Majesty's subjects by virtue of scents, cosmetics, artificial teeth, false hair shall incur the penalty now in force against witchcraft."

In 1675 it was written into the law of East New Jersey that > "any person who shall commit burgleryshall be punished by being burnt on the hand with a letter T, for a second offence on the forehead with a letter B. For a third offense death."

In West New Jersey, the Quaker territory, for the same crime restitution was to be made for twice the value of the stolen goods, yet after 1700 the laws became more severe.

John Fenwick, a Quaker, had come to America in 1675 on the Griffin. He brought with him three daughters

(two already married), ten servants, and several families, among which were those of Edward Champness (or Chambless or Champneys), Edward Wade, John Smith and wife, Samuel Nichols (or Nicholson), Richard Guy, Richard Noble, Richard Hancock, John Matlock (or Mallock), and others.[b] They ascended the Delaware River and landed at a spot which they chose to call Salem. No other ships came for nearly two years.

In the meantime the concessions and agreements originally made by Berkeley and Carteret were modified and extended. These became known as the Western Concessions or by a fuller title, "The Concessions and Agreements of the Proprietors, Freeholders and Inhabitants of the Province of West New Jersey, in America".[c] Thomas Scholey was one of the signers; among the others were English neighbors of the Schooleys: E. Byllinge, William Penn, Mahlon Stacy, Thomas Budd, Gawan Lawrie, Samuel Lovett, John Newbold, Thomas Revel, William Emley, Samuel Jeninns, Thomas French, Godfrey Hancock, John Wood, John Pancoast, Thomas Lambert, Thomas Watson, George Hutchinson, and Thomas Gardner.[e] The document bears the date of 3 March 1676 [1676/7] and included in its provisions was the assurance that they had laid > a foundation for after ages to understand their liberty, as men and Christians, that they may not be brought in bondage, but by their own consent; for we put the power in the people.[e]

The statement continues saying that the Concessions included > the power to buy the lands from the natives; to inspect the rights of such as claimed property, and to order the lands laid out; and in general to administer the government, persuant to the concessions.

And the Concessions also say that the proprietors > shall first, for expedition, divide (the land) into ten equal parts or shares and for distinction sake, to mark in the register and upon some of the trees belonging to every tenth part with the letters A, B and so end at the letter K. And after the same is so divided and marked the said commissioners are to grant unto Thomas Hutchinson, of Beverly, Thomas Pearson, of Bonwick, Joseph Helmsley, of Great Kelke, George Hutchinson of Sheffield, and Mahlon Stacy, of Handsworth, all of the county of York...for themselves and their friends...and may speedily promote the planting..[f]

The proprietors then published a description of the domain, but later apparently became concerned that their account might have been interpreted as trying to allure people to transplant themselves. Several months later some words of caution followed. They wrote a new description with concern for clearness and exactness. It says in part:

1. That there is such a province as New Jersey is certain.
2. That it is reputed of those who had lived and traveled in that country to be wholesome of air and fruitful of soil.
3. That the Duke of York sold it to those called Lord Berkeley and Sir George Carteret equally to be divided between them is also certain..[g]

And it further states that this was the "real and honest intent of our hearts and not to allure any out of their places or by representing the thing otherwise than it is in itself", and further that "the winter season may not be as short as it was at some time perhaps implied" and repeats the promise of "maintaining liberty of the exercise of religion" and "we desire that all groundless jealousies may be judged down and watched against and that extremes may be avoided and that nothing which hurts the holy life of truth may be adhered to nor any provocations given to break precious unity". It was signed by William Penn, Gawen Laurie, and Nicholas Lucas.[h]

Other writings contained boundless amazement of what was found in the new land. Gabriel Thomas wrote of > that Wonder of Stones the Salamander-Stone, found near Brandy-Wine-River, having Cotton in Veins within it, which will not consume in the Fire; though held there a long time, and the excellent Purging Mineral-Waters that pass both by Siege and Urine, all out as good as Epsom, and the Possam, she having a false Belly to swallow her Young ones, and the flying squirrels and buffaloes and a Frog that crawls up to the tops of Trees.[i]

Among the purchasers of West Jersey lands were two companies, one made of up Friends in Yorkshire, and the other of some Friends in London, each of whom contracted for considerable shares. In 1677 commissioners were sent by the proprietors with power to buy the lands of the natives, to inspect the property, to order the lands laid out, and to administer the government. These commissioners were Thomas Olive, Daniel Wills, John Kinsey, John Penford, Joseph Helmsley, Robert Stacy, Benjamin Scott, Richard Guy, and Thomas Foulke. They came on the Kent with Gregory Marlowe, Master, being the second or third ship from London to West New Jersey.[j]

The Kent had departed down the Thames in London in the spring of 1677. It is reported King Charles II, pleasuring on the Thames, came along side the Kent as she was making ready to leave, and upon inquiring who the passengers were was informed that they were all Quakers bound for America. So the King gave them his blessing. One may wonder at the feelings of the emigrants as they went aboard the ship carrying with them their few possessions, leaving behind their homes, their familiar surroundings, their neighbors. As the steeples of London faded away in the distance they headed into a vast ocean and to a new land that they knew almost not at all. On board were 270 passengers, among them William Peachey who had been under sentence of banishment for "attending meetings"; John Cripps, who had been twelve days in jail at Newgate for "keeping his hat on in a bold irreverent manner" when the Lord Mayor passed; Thomas Olive, familiar with the Northampton jail; John Wollston, formerly in prison; Daniel Wills, three times in prison for holding meetings in his house; also William Clayton, Thomas Harding, John Penton or Penford, Henry Jennings, Samuel Lovett, Robert Powell, John Wilkinson, and William Perkins, who did not survive the voyage.[k]

On the sixth of August 1677[m] the passengers of the Kent could see the faint blue hills of land before the ship turned northward and entered the harbor of New York. Ten more days were to pass before anyone could land on the shores of the Delaware River. First they proceeded into New York Harbor to call upon Sir Edmond Andros, Governor of the territory. When they informed him of their intent to settle upon the shores of the Delaware, he asked them by what authority they proposed to act. An unexpected embarrassment followed because the commissioners had failed to bring a document of authorization to show that the grant had been made! The Governor forbade them to proceed; however, their perplexity was soon relieved when the Governor stated that he would allow them to sail if they would write to England for authorization and promise to abide by the result, a proposal which they readily accepted.

On the sixth of August 1677 the Kent entered the harbor of New York

On 16 August they disembarked at the point where Racoon Creek spills into the Delaware River. A small settlement of Swedes nearby warmly received them. The newcomers climbed upon the bank, went through the thicket, and gave thanks for their safe journey. The new arrivals were too numerous to be provided for in the few homes of the Swedes. Some put their beds in cow stalls or dug caves. Others contrived hastily-built hovels.

After becoming settled enough to permit the continuance of life, the commissioners and a few other passengers proceeded up the river to Chygoes Island, where they established the town of Burlington.

Another boat which departed from England late in the summer of 1677 and carried aboard numbers of Quakers from the Yorkshire area was the flyboat Martha. It sailed from Hull, a port on the River Humber, with 114 passengers.

It is to be noted that although the lands of West Jersey had been granted to them by the Crown, the Quakers were scrupulously careful not to establish themselves on any ground until it had been purchased from the Indians, then they awaited the departure of the Indians before taking possession of the land.

Two purchases were made in September 1677, one for the land between Rancocus and Timber creeks, and the other for the land between Timber and Oldman's creeks. Then in October the land between Rancocus Creek and the Assanpink at Trenton was purchased. This latter part was called the First Tenth, where the Yorkshire group chose to establish their first settlement. A record of what was paid for the last parcel remains. The purchase agreement lists

> 46 fathoms of Duffelds, 30 Blankets, 150 pounds of powder, 30 Gunns, 30 Kettles, 30 Kettles more instead of wampum, 30 Axes, 30 Knives, 30 Aules, 30 Needles, 30 looking glasses, 30 pairs of stockings, 7

> Anchors of Brandy or Rum, 30 Knives, 30 Barrels of Lead, 36 Rings, 30 Jews Harps, 30 Combs, 30 Braselets, 30 Bells, 30 Tobacco Toungs or Steeles, 30 pairs of Sissors, 12 Tobacco Boxes, 30 fflints, 10 spoonfuls of Red paint, 100 of ffish hooks and Grosse of Tobacco pipes and 30 Shirts to them paid.

The deed was signed by several Indian chiefs, including Ockanickon.[k]

We should remember that all of West Jersey containing 4595 square miles was already purchased by Fenwick and Byllinge from the Duke of York for a thousand pounds, some less than half a cent per acre.

The London group had initially decided to settle at Araumus, where the town of Gloucester now lies, but the Yorkshire group, upon learning that the London Quakers were to settle so far away, invited them to join in establishing a town. The proposal was readily accepted. The site of "Jegou's" (Chygoes) Island had been chosen, and Richard Noble, a surveyor, was engaged to lay out the town. Jegou's Island is about a mile long and half a mile wide and lies about 18 miles up river from where Philadelphia was to be established. When Richard Noble had laid out the main street, the land was then divided into ten properties on each side. The eastern side was for the Yorkshire group, and the western side was for the London group. Each of the properties contained 9 acres.

Since the newcomers had arrived late in the fall, little could be done to prepare the land during the winter months. Meanwhile, they lived in wigwams according to the fashion of the Indians, who provided them with corn and venison.

Some who settled in the new town of Burlington were Thomas Olive, Daniel Wills, William Peachy, William Clayton, John Cripps, Thomas Eves, Thomas Harding, Thomas Nositer, Thomas Fairnsworth, Morgan Drewet, William Penton, Henry Jenings, William Hibes, Samuel Lovett, John Wollston, William Woodmancy, Christopher Saunders, and Robert Powell.

The first Friends Meeting in that part of the New World was established in 1677 in the home of Thomas Lambert at Crosswicks, within the limits of what is now Chesterfield Township, Burlington County. In 1684 a Monthly Meeting was established and held at the home of Francis Davenport. This gathering was called Chesterfield Monthly Meeting of Friends by which name it is still known. In 1691 the building of a meetinghouse was proposed. Ground had been acquired from Thomas Foulke, and on the 4th day of the 10th month 1691, John Greene, a carpenter, began construction. The six acres upon which the Meeting was established were purchased for ten shillings.* The first meeting was held in the new building on the 6th day of the 8th month 1693.

6... JOHN[3] SCHOLEY (John[2], ?Robert[1]) was baptized 15 October 1674 in the Parish of Aston, Yorkshire, England,[a] and he died the 17th day of the 10th month 1735, aged 61, probably in Springfield Township, Burlington County, New Jersey.[b] Although referred to in some published accounts as John Scholey Jr., he was still a minor when his father died and was never styled "Jr." in any records. That John or one of his two wives was a relative of Katherine (Murfin) (Beard) Champion has been discussed above.[c]

John "Scooley" married (i) REBECKA BENNETT at the home of her stepfather, Thomas Williams. Witnesses at the service were Thomas Scholey, Ann and Sarah Bennett, Rebecka Williams, Mathew Champion,, and seventeen others. John and Rebecka made their home in Burlington Co.[d] She was the daughter of William[1] and Rebecka(----) Bennett of Bucks County, Pennsylvania. William "Bennet", in his will dated at Longford, Parish of Hammondsworth, co. Middlesex, England, yeoman, 9 August 1683, but proved in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, the 12th of the 9th month 1685, named his wife Rebecka and daughter Rebecka, the latter to have one shilling, 200 acres, and £30 within three years after his death.[e] By a deed of 27 March 1702, Thomas Williams of Burlington, West Jersey, and his wife Rebecka, late widow of William Bennett of Bucks County, deceased, purchased land from John "Scholay" (who made his I- mark) of Onea Nickon, Burlington County, West Jersey, and his wife Rebecka (who made her X mark), one of the daughters and heirs of the said William Bennett.[f]

Rebecka Scholey was living 4 November 1702 and she may have died shortly thereafter. John "Scholay" of Burlington then married (2) FRANCES[3] (TAYLOR) NICHOLSON in Chesterfield Township, Burlington County, on the 25th of the 2d month 1711.[g] She was the daughter of Samuel[2] (William[1]) and Susannah (Hors[e]man) Taylor of the Parish of Dore, Derbyshire,

England, and Burlington County, New Jersey, and the widow of Joseph Nicholson, son of George and [Hannah? (-----)] Nicholson of Burlington County, whom she married in 1707.[h] John and Frances appeared on the > "1st of the 1st month, 1711 to declare their intentions of taking each other in marriage, her father and mother being present gave their consent thereto".

Then they made a second declaration on the > "2nd month 5th day, 1711 producing a certificate from Burlington and were given liberty to proceed according to the good order amongst Friends".

Frances died in Springfield Township, Burlington County, between about 12 November 1747 and 8 March 1749/50.[i,j] The Taylors were passengers on the flyboat Martha with (No. 4) Thomas Scholey in 1677. In his will dated the 26th day of the 9th month 1723, proved 11 August 1725, Samuel Taylor "senior" of Chesterfield, Burlington County, named his "wife" and children, including daughter Frances Scholey.[k]

John Scholey was a young boy when he and his parents joined Robert and Thomas Scholey (probably his uncles) along the Delaware River in West (New) Jersey.[l] While there is no evidence his parents were members of the Society of Friends here, John was a Quaker, certainly by the time of his first marriage in 1697, and it is stated that he was an elder among the Friends.[m]

By his father's will of 1695, John Scholey was to have his father's plantation in Chesterfield Township, Burlington County.[n] Two years later, on the 19th of the 5th month 1697, John purchased from John Stacy, son of Robert Stacy of Philadelphia, 300 acres near Onea Nickon, Springfield Township, Burlington County, adjoining property of John Shinn and William Beard.[o] On 18 June 1697, John Scholey of Burlington County, husbandman , sold to Gervas Pharo, late of Nottingham, Burlington County, yeoman, 50 acres adjoining land of Matthew Champion and the land he purchased from the Stacys.[p] These 50 acres had earlier been surveyed for his father.[q] Seven days earlier, Matthew Champion and his wife Katherine had sold to Pharo the 50 acres Katherine had been conveyed by John Scholey (Sr.) in 1691.[r] A survey of 90 acres for John Murfin, dated 4 May 1700, shows the adjoining property to be that of John Scholey, between land of John Warren, Mary Wright, and a small brook.[s] John is supposed to have "by location and purchase" become the owner 476 acres in Springfield Township, which when surveyed sixty years later were found to contain a surplus of 139 acres, making a total of 615 acres.

Upon the northerly portion of this land he built a large house with adobe or sunburnt brick walls. It was sturdy enough. Plumbing it did not have. Sanitary arrangements it did not have. Tubs were unknown for another hundred years after that time. Large vessels for washing were absent. Springs for a bed were unknown, and wallpaper did not exist. Iron nails were not available, and fastening was done with wooden pins (treenails). Doors turned on wooden hinges. The chinks in the walls were filled with mud and moss. If there were windows they were covered with solid shutters or paper smeared with hog lard or bear grease. The floor was dirt. The house was known as "the mud house" and in time was destroyed by fire.[t]

John Scholey served on a traverse jury at the Burlington Court in 1698.[u] The court records for 26 March 1700 also reveal John was one of those who "Survey'd and Laid out the By-road" after "the alteration of the Road of Springfield and Northampton Townshipps" had been considered. John, who apparently did not learn to write his name until much later in life, made his mark in this record, not like the Js on the above-mentioned deeds, but more like an I lying on its side.[v]

Some four years after their marriage, the case of "Rebecka Bennett now wife of John Scholey the daughter in Law [i.e., stepdaughter] of the above mentioned Thomas Williams" was presented by the Grand Jury of the Burlington Court in February 1701/2, "for Committing Fornication with her Father in Law". At the same court session Williams had been presented for > "getting his wifes daughter with Child, And altho he is fled from Justice, Yet the Woman is yet in the place and aught to answer for it".

Some eight and a half months later, by which time she would have delivered the child, "Rebecka Bennet now Scowly" was sentenced by the Burlington Court on 4 November 1702:

> Rebecka wife of John Scowly late called Rebecka Bennett was presented by the Grand Jury for committing fornication with one Thomas Williams to which presentment her husband John Scowly in her behalfe Submitted therefore the Court considders and adjudges that the said Rebecca or her said Husband pay the Summe of five pounds to the use of the Governor or receive the Corporall punishment according to Law.[w]

If Rebecka's stepfather was likewise fined for the offense it was not recorded. The "Corporall punishment" would have been a lashing in the public square. Rebecka was "with Child" in February 1701/2 and would have delivered a child by the time of her sentencing the following November, but whether the child lived seems not to have been recorded. Perhaps Rebecka died soon afterwards, and maybe from complications of the pregnancy or birth.

David Jones of Springfield Township, yeoman, a neighbor of John Scholey, sold him some land there on the 9th of the 12th month 1714[/5?].[x] By his will of 3 December 1715, proved 1 October 1716, Jones named John his sole heir and executor.[y] If there was some kinship between the two men, it has not been discovered. On 4 March 1728/9 John "Schooley" and Thomas Scattergood inventoried the estate of Marmaduke Coate of Burlington, yeoman.[z] Late in 1727 John Schooley appealed to the Quarterly Meeting to assist in the construction of a meetinghouse for the Upper Springfield Friends.[aa]

When Scotchman John Montgomerie became Governor of New York and New Jersey in 1728, England was still rivaling Spain for power in Europe and abroad. On 7 May 1728 John Scholey and other members of the Grand Jury and "Practic'ons of the Law" of Burlington, West Jersey, sent an address to King George II. Being their purpose was

> "in this remote part of your Dominions",

> "to congratulate Your Majestie, upon the hopes of seeing the Publick Peace restored...As the important consequences of Your Majesties' Negotiac'ons makea daily accession...so they give us an agreeable prospect, of the speedy confining of the Power of Spain within its just Limits".

The jurors further wanted > "to assure Your Majesty, of our inviolable fidelity...to show that [our] zeal for Your Service, is > not inferior to that of the most approved, & Loyal of their fellow Subjects" and to express their

> "thankfulness...for Your Parental care of Your People in this Distant Collonie," and

> "Particularly for sending His Excellency John Montgomerie Esqr. to Represent Your Majestie here".

Those of the Grand Jury "being of the People called Quakers" agreed "to the matter & Substance of this Address but make some exceptions to the Stile".[bb]

On 15 January 1731/2, "John Scholey," who could now write his name, albeit unskillfully, signed his will, which was proved 8 February 1735[/6]. Described as of Springfield, Burlington County, yeoman, he named his wife Frances, who was to be executrix; daughters Ann Scattergood, Susanna Newbold, and Mary and Isabel Scholey; minor children John, Samuel, Jonathan, Rebecca, and Sarah; and grandson John Newbold. The real estate John mentioned in his will included the following: 135 acres in New Hanover [Township] meadow adjoining Thomas Branson; land I bought of John Stacy adjoining 50 acres I sold Jarvis Pharo; the plantation where John Atkinson now lives; 16 acres at the head of William Bongar's swamp in the town of New Hanover, bought from John Harvey; and 9 acres belonging to Harriet Gaunt. The inventory of his estate, taken by Thomas Scattergood and Zebulon Gauntt in February 1735[/6], amounted to £674.16.10 and included "a negro youth, Simon, a negro woman, Bess and her three children".[cc]

John's widow Frances was living on or soon before 12 November 1747. On that date a notice was published in the Pennsylvania Gazette that

> "John Furio, an Irish servant, aged about 30, run away from Frances Scholey of Springfield"..[i]

On the 11th day of the 2d month 1744, "Francis Scholey", widow of Springfield, Burlington County, made her will, which was proved 23 April 1750. She named her children Susannah Newbold, John, Ann Scattergood [her stepdaughter], Mary Barton, Isabel, Rebeckah, Samuel, Sarah, and Jonathan, as well as grandchildren John, Ann, Clayton, Rebeckah, Mary, and Michael--children of daughter Susannah Newbold, and grandson Jonathan Barton. Son Jonathan was to be executor with his two brothers and was also to have £20 to support and care for her negro man, Simon. The inventory of Frances's estate, made 8 March 1750 by Thomas Earl and Benjamin Shreve, totaled £720.12.5 3/4 and included a negro "wench" valued at £31.15.[j]

After the deaths of John's sons, there were no male Scholeys representing this branch of the family.

Child of John Scholey and Rebecka:[b,dd]

i. ANN[4], b. 24 10m 1699; probably d. before 4 Nov. 1772, perhaps 19 7m 17[72?][ee]; m. bet. 8 9m and 6 10m 1725, THOMAS[3] SCATTERGOOD, "JR.", of Mansfield, Burlington Co.,[ff] b. 10 2m 1700, d. probably in Burlington, between 4 Nov. and 11 Dec. 1772, son of Thomas[2] (Thomas[1]) and Phebe (Wetherill) Scattergood.[ee,gg,hh]

This Thomas Scattergood who married Ann Scholey was born and raised in a cave. The senior Thomas Scattergood had purchased 160 acres of land on Crafts Creek for 5 shillings at a location seven miles from Burlington. When he arrived there the forest was unbroken except for a few clearings made by the Indians for the cultivation of corn. He dug out a cave on the south side of the creek, and in this dwelling reared a family of nine children. The place was early known as "Encroaching Corners", later became "Black Horse". The name was finally changed to Columbus.

The children of the senior Thomas Scattergood were: (i). Thomas, (ii). Brian, (iii). Benjamin who m. in 1704 Martha Shreve, (iv). Samuel, (v). Thomas who m. in 1725 Ann Schooley, (vi). Joseph, (vii). Sarah who m. ------ French, (viii). Hannah who m. William Pancoast, and (ix).Tomsin who m. ------Pancoast.

There is an entry about one Thomas Scattergood (1748-1814) (obviously a Thomas of the next generation) found in The Quaker Family in Colonial America which declares that at the age of six he "was favored with seasons of serious thoughtfulness". Presumably he was a miniature edition of an adult. Thomas Scattergood's education, and that extended to other children, was austere and largely limited to matters of religion. He was brought up to seek the Inward Light of Christ, to act within the leadings of the Holy Spirit, and to "swear not at all".

Quakers refused to bow. They had no sacraments. They did not use baptism. The taking of communion was much debated. They denied the concept of original sin. The whole structure of Quakerism related to the Inward Light of Christ, and with that as a sole objective they were led sometimes to frown upon other aspects of learning.

The Quaker Meeting House was perfectly plain, having no ornamentation nor organ music. The benches were hard. Men and women sat apart. Quakers were expected to enter the meeting quietly, to approach the meeting house seriously. The congregation entered, sat down, and waited in silence. Thomas Scattergood's upbringing was really the responsibility of two groups: his parents and the monthly meeting. It was in this atmosphere of constant supervision and watching that the tender six year old "was favored with seasons of serious thoughtfulness".

Thomas and Ann Scattergood were disowned from the Burlington Monthly Meeting of Friends on 2 4m 1731 for an undisclosed reason.[ff] Thomas may have been the one of Burlington, Burlington Co., whose will of 4 Nov. was proved 11 Dec. 1772, and in which he named Scattergood nephews and nieces and also "niece" Susannah Ridgway, to whom he left £50.[hh]

ii. SUSANNAH, b. 4 12m 1711/2; d. 18 Jan. 1755[ii]; m. 15 2m 1730 at the Upper Springfield Meeting, MICHAEL[3] NEWBOLD,[jj] b. in Springfield Twp., Burlington Co., 8 Oct. 1706, d. in Chesterfield Twp., Burlington Co., between 8 June and 9 Aug. 1763. Michael was the son of Michael[2] (Michael) and Rachel (Cleayton) Newbold of Mansfield Twp., Burlington Co. After Susannah's death, Michael m. 1756, (2) Esther (Wilson) Coates, dau. of Samuel and Esther (Overton) Wilson and widow of Henry Coates.[kk,ll] In his will of 8 June, proved 12 Aug., with inventory taken 9 Aug. 1763, Michael Newbold of Chesterfield, yeoman, named his wife "Ester," children, grandchildren, and other relatives.[ll]

v. MARY, b. 24 12m 1720; d. in Springfield Twp., Burlington Co., between 30 Aug. 1788 and 19 May 1791[nn]. She was married three times. The first marriage was in 1740 to Jonathan Barton of Mansfield Twp., Burlington Co. [oo] A son , Jonathan, was born after the death of the father. Mary's second marriage was in 1746 to Thomas Black. Born of this marriage was John Black, who also was born after the death of the father. Thomas Black[3] of Springfield Twp., Burlington Co.,[qq] was b. 3 3m 1711. His will of 11 Sept., proved 30 Sept.

1751, named his wife Mary, and "expected child", and son-in-law [i.e., stepson] Jonathan Barton, under age. Thomas[3] Black was the son of Thomas[2] (William[1]) and Sarah (Rockhill) Black.[rr]

Mary's third marriage was in 1755 to Samuel Wright (1719-1781).[qq] This marriage was also the third for Samuel. He had been married first to Rachel Kirby then to Elizabeth Haines. Mary and Samuel's union produced no issue. Samuel Wright was the son of John[3] (Samuel[2], Joshua[1]) and Abigail (Crispin) Wright, brother of Mary Wright who m. Mary's brother Jonathan Schooley, and possibly brother of Joseph Wright who m. Mary's sister Rebecca Schooley[ss].

Samuel Wright died in Hanover Twp., Burlington Co., bet. 6 Aug. 1781 and 30 Nov. 1786. In his will of 6 Aug. 1781, proved 30 Nov. 1786, Samuel Wright of Hanover, Burlington Co., named his "wife", sons John and Caleb, daughters Mary Ridgway and Rachel Shinn, and sister Rebecah Clap.[tt] In her will of 30 Aug. 1788, proved 19 May 1791, Mary Wright of Springfield, widow, named sons Jonathan Barton and John Black (executors); grandsons Barzilla, John, and David Barton, under 21; grandson Thomas Black, under 21; and granddau. Mary Black.[nn]

7... WILLLIAM[3] SCHOLEY (Robert[2-1]) was born the 2d of the 8th month, probably in 1679, and probably at Crewcorn, now Falls Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania. The date and place of William's death have not been determined, but it is possible he lived in that part of Hunterdon County which became part of Mercer County in 1838.

William married (1?) MARY SMITH about 1703.[b] She was the daughter of Andrew Smith of Hopewell Township, Burlington (now Mercer) County, who in his will of 16 January, proved 7 March 1703/4, named his children, including daughter Mary, wife of William "Scooley".[c]

It may have been this William Scholey who married (2?) on 27 January 1715, PRISSELAH HIXSON, daughter of William and Mary (-----) Hixson (or Hixon).[d] In his will of 3 December 1722, proved 24 January 1722/3, William Hixson of Maidenhead, Hunterdon County (now Lawrence Township, Mercer County), named his children John, Joseph, Benjamin, and "Presillah".[d] While there is nothing to prove which William Schooley married Priscilla, that it was the William under discussion here is suggested since William Hixson was a witness to the will of Andrew Smith, William Scholey's [first?] father-in-law.[c] Furthermore, in 1761, William Schooley of Greenwich, Sussex (now Warren) County, possibly William's son, left a will which was witnessed by Joseph

Hixson,[f] perhaps the son Joseph named in the will of William Hixson.[e]

It was probably in the early 1700s when the Elders of the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting of Friends were appointed "to Talk with William son of Robert" Scholey, about some of his habits.[g] No doubt soon after this he left the Quaker faith. An entry in St. Marys Episcopal Church, Burlington, New Jersey reveals: "William Seoholey, the son of Robert Seoholey baptised ffebruary 28, 1702". The church scribe had some difficulty with spelling.[h] Thomas, Andrew, Elizabeth, Mary, and Hannah, the children of Andrew Smith, were baptised at the same time.[h]

This William Scholey has been claimed as the one who owned land near Drakestown in Washington Township, Morris County, New Jersey (part of Hunterdon County until 1739) and then moved to Randolph Township, Morris County,[i] but that person was doubtless (No. 10) William Schooley. It has also been suggested that he was the "cousin William Scholy" named in the will of Joseph Pancoast, Jr., of Mansfield, Burlington County, dated 19 October 1731.[j] The "cousin" might have been (No. 10) or (No. 15) William Schooley. More likely (No. 7) William was the William Scholey who with Robert Scholey--perhaps his brother-was named as a debtor in the 4 March 1732/3 inventory of the estate of John Severns of Trenton, Hunterdon (now Mercer) County.[k] Or these might have been William's sons, (No. 15) William and (No. 16) Robert.

Possible Children:

15. i. WILLIAM[4], b. ca. 1704? William made his home at Greenwich in Warren County, New Jersey about two miles from the place where the ferry crossed over to Easton, Pennsylvania. To distinguish him from other numerous

16. ii. ROBERT, b. ca. 1710 See page.....199.

iii. JOSEPH; d. before 9 Apr. 1761, when his estate was mentioned in his brother William's will,[l] and he was therefore probably the Joseph "scholey" of Windsor Twp., Middlesex (now Mercer) Co., N. J., yeoman. who by his will of 6 Feb., proved 3 March 1761, left to his wife, Mary [a] household goods and the proceeds from the sale of his land. He named as executors "my friends John Ely and John Chamberlain", and the will was witnessed by Jacob Reticor, Benjamin Chambers, and John Mecarrell.[m] Mary Schooley, widow, and Joseph Schooley were among those listed in an account of 20 Sept. 1763 of the estate of Christopher Hoogeland of Windsor, Middlesex Co., merchant[n].

The son, William, who was born in 1704 is mentioned in the Minutes of the Woodbridge Monthly Meeting of the 3rd month 1740:

> "Sum friends in Morris County Request of this Meeting To grant them the Liberty of holding a Meeting once in three Months at the house of William Schooly in the county aforesaid, which Request is granted and concluded that S'd Meeting Shall be held on the Second first Dayes of the fourth Seventh Tenth and first Months".

This is a splendid example of the avoidance of the use of the names of the days of the week and the months, a practice which the Quakers carefully followed.

> "At a Monthly Meeting at Woodbridge on the 18th of the 7th Mo. 1746, Sum friends from Hanover Township Requests To hold a Meeting on the first dayes of the weak at the house of William Schooley which this Meeting approves of".

This was at Mendham, and on the 19th of the 11th month 1756 it was > "agreed that a Week Day Meeting should be held there on the 5th Day of the Week and that a Preparative Meeting should be held once in three Months on the second day of the Week following the Circular Meeting there to begin at the Tenth Hour.....".

William Schooley, Jr's. name appears in the minutes of the General Sessions Court of Sussex County as a member of a committee appointed in May 1754 to divide the county into precincts, and also in the same year, 1754, and again in 1755 and 1757 he was a member of the Grand Jury.

William (1704-1761) (No. 15) is thought to have married Catherine ------, and may have had eight children. The number is uncertain: John (1738-1807), Andrew, William, Jedediah who m. Elizabeth Parks, Richard, and possibly three daughters. Another interpretation is presented under No. 15 William.

Andrew and William, the sons of William Schooley, Jr., were sympathizers of the British side of the American Revolution. They were charged with aiding the army of the King of Great Britain. Their property was seized, and these two men fled to Canada..

Notes and References:

a. The entry for his birth in the Chesterfield [New Jersey] Monthly Meeting records shows he was born in America on the above date in 1689, but he is listed first among his parents' children and therefore 1679 seems the more likely year and is more compatible with a marriage in or about 1703. Chesterfield MM Recs., 1:7.

b. The marriage certainly took place between 28 Feb. 1702/3, when they were baptized (see note h), and 7 Mar. 1703/4, when Mary was named in her father's will as the wife of William Scooley (see note c).

c. NJ Archives I, 23 [Wills 1]:424. Witnesses were William Hixon, Caleb Wheatley, and Joshua Ward (or Wood).

d. "Family Records: Wright Family", GMNJ, 35(1960):10. The marriage is the last entry in a family record of Joshua Wright, and the name is spelled "Hishson", but there are no clues to a possible kinship between the Wrights and William or Prisselah (Hixson) Scholey.

e. NJ Archives I, 23 [Wills 1]:230, 231. Mary was certainly an earlier wife of William Hixson, for in his will he named his wife Phebe and her two children, Mathew and Mary Giels [Giles].

8... ROBERT[3] SCHOOLEY (Robert[2-1]) was born on the 10th of the 11th month 1687[/8] in what soon became Nottingham Township, Burlington County, and is now Hamilton Township, Mercer County, New Jersey,[a] and he died there before 19 June 1732. .[b]

Robert married CATHERINE --------, who by 20 March 1735[/6?] had married (2) THOMAS WILLIAMS and may have been living in Trenton, Hunterdon (now Mercer) County, New Jersey, 18 September 1757. [b,c]

On the 7th of the 9th month 1706 it was recorded in the minutes of the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting that Robert Scholey had attended a marriage performed by a priest and that he "has been spoken with".[d] Robert may have soon thereafter left the Quaker faith which probably accounts for his marriage not being found in the Friend's records.

By a deed of 1 January 1705/6, Joshua Horner sold swamp land above Crosswicks Creek, adjacent to Robert "Scooley".[e] Robert Scholey was a witness to the "leave" of John Stevenson of Nottingham on 24 March 1714/5.[f] It was perhaps he or his nephew (No. 16) Robert who was the Robert "Scholey" named with William Scholey as a debtor in the inventory of the estate of John Severus of Trenton, Hunterdon (now Mercer) County, taken 4 March 1732/3.[g]

The only other discovered record of Robert is 19 June 1732, when administration of the estate of Robert Schooley of Nottingham, Burlington County, yeoman, was granted to his widow, "Katherine" Schooley, with Samuel Danford and Thomas Williams, yeoman, both of Nottingham, as bondsmen. Thomas Pitman and Robert Johnson took an inventory on 25 June 1732, showing a value of £30.4. An account was presented on 20 March 1735[/6?] by Thomas Williams and his wife Catherine, "late Catherine Scholey, administratrix". Debts were paid to Joseph Peace, John Marlon, Robert Bolton, and Thomas Lambert.[b]

Thomas Williams, the second husband of Catherine who had earlier married Robert Scholey, may have been the one whose name is found in 1729 with (No. 11) Samuel Schooley in a request to the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting of Friends to hold meetings in their homes near Quakertown, Lebanon (now Kingwood) Township, Hunterdon County.[h] Furthermore, he may have been the Thomas Williams of Trenton, Hunterdon County, whose will of 18 September 1757 was proved 29 June 1765. That Thomas named his wife Katherine executrix and left her all his estate, and whatever remained after her death was to go to her grandson Nathan Wright, or if he died, to his brother William Wright.[c]

c. Ibid., 33 [Wills 4]:481. The witnesses were John Rickey, James Dougherty, and William Ball. Nathan and William Wright may have been the sons of those names mentioned in the will of Stephen[4] Wright (Benjamin[3], Thomas[2], Joshua[1]) of New Hanover, Burlington Co., dated 30 June 1742 (NJ Archives I, 30 [Wills 2]:551; see also "Wright Family of Derbyshire, England & New Jersey", 12, Alfred R. i. Suggested by George A. Schooley of Zanesville, Ohio (see his Journal of Dr. William Schooley, 188). Since Robert, the possible father of this Samuel, may not have married until after his troubles with the Quakers in Nov. 1706, it may be that Samuel was born near 1708.

9... THOMAS[3] SCHOLEY JR... (Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born on the 25th of the 9th month 1688 in Chesterfield Township, Burlington County, New Jersey,[a] and he was probably living 18 April 1748, as discussed below.[b]

On the 26th of the 3d month 1720, at the Chesterfield Meetinghouse of Friends, Thomas Scholey Jr. of Burlington County married HANNAH[3] FOWLER.[c] She was probably born in Providence, Rhode Island, the daughter of John[2] (Henry[1]) and Rose (Burton) Fowler of Monmouth County, New Jersey.[c,d]

It was probably in the mid-1720s and probably with his brothers William and Samuel that Thomas Scholey moved his family to Hunterdon County, New Jersey. Here he purchased a 250-acre tract in Lebanon Township from William Pancoast on 20 May 1728.[e] At the time, the Thomas Scholeys continued as members of the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting, which on the 6th of the 12th month 1728/9 granted Thomas and his wife a certificate to the Burlington Monthly Meeting, where they were received on the 3d of the 1st month 1729 [1728/9].[f] They were granted a certificate from Burlington back to the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting on the 6th of the 7th month 1731.g

On 1 November 1729, Thomas Scholey, weaver, had been granted by Thomas Witherill and Isaac DeCrow, 136 acres in Lebanon Township, Hunterdon County, adjoining lands of Samuel Schooley and others, and located between what are now Pleasant Grove and Stephensburgh. Thomas was of Bethlehem Township in 1733 when he sold this land to William Pew and when he sold the 250-acre tract to George Holloway.[e,h]

The Scholeys may have returned to Burlington County, considering Thomas was probably the one who witnessed the will of (No. 12) John Scholey on 18 April 1748. Their return would also make more reasonable daughter Rebecca Slack's settlement in Upper Freehold, a Monmouth County township bordering northeastern Burlington County.

Thomas and Hannah Fowler Scholey had three or four children (no's i. to iv. below) The first was probably born in Burlington Co., the rest perhaps in Hunterdon Co.:

i. ELIZABETH[4], b. 5 5m 1721[a]; no further record.

ii. REBECCA, b. ca. 1723?; d. 13 July 1801; m. 18 July 1743, BENJAMIN SLACK, a weaver, who d. 7 Nov. 1786.[i] The Slacks lived in Upper Freehold Twp., Monmouth Co., N.J., where Benjamin was taxed 1778-1780.j

10... WILLIAM[3] SCHOOLEY * (Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born in Chesterfield Township, Burlington County, New Jersey, the 12th of the 6th month 1691,[a]  and he died in 1763.[b] William married ELIZABETH[3] FRENCH about 1717. She was born in 1694 and died the 27th of the 1st month 1761,[c] the daughter of Richard[2] (Thomas[1]) and Sarah (Scattergood) French.[d] The Frenches were considered a family of means and education. Others who had married into this family were the Shreves, the Browns, and the Taylors. In his will dated the 24th of the 7th month 1745 and proved 9 November 1745, Richard French of Mansfield Township, Burlington County,

* There were two Williams who have sometimes been confused even though there was a twelve year difference in their ages. William, the son of Thomas and Sarah Parker Scholey, and William, the son of Robert and Sarah Bingham Scholey. William, the son of Robert, was indifferent about conforming to Quaker ways and eventually left the Quaker Church. William, the son of Thomas, remained a Quaker. This actually helps keep the records clear.

 His arrival helped swell the population of the Colonies in America to 214,000 souls.

bequeathed to his daughter "Elizabeth Scholey the Now Wife of William Scholey", five shillings.[e]

Because the Will of Richard French, the father of Elizabeth French Scholey, contains bequests of particular interest, a portion of the Will is quoted:

> Item: I give and Bequeath unto my well beloved and Espoused Wife Mary French Ten pounds of good Current Money of West Jersey to be paid to her yearly and every year.....I also give unto my said wife all the Beding and Furniture belonging to the Back Room.....I order that my said Executor shall keep a Good Horse and a Good Cow for my said wife.....and also to procure Firewood for her.
> Item: I give unto my son Richard French the full and just sum of 5 shillings he being advanced by me before this time.....
> Richard French

On the 17th of the 2d month 1724, Thomas Wetherall of the Town and County of Burlington, cooper, sold to William Scholey of Chesterfield, yeoman, thirty-one acres.[f] The land may have been in Hunterdon County, where the Schooleys moved about this time, perhaps with William's brothers Thomas and Samuel, settling among other Quakers near Bethlehem Township. William is supposed to have owned a "proprietary" tract of land near Draketown, north of Bethlehem Township, in what is now Washington Township, Morris County, near the present village of Schooleys Mountain.[g] About 1740 he sold this property to ----- Colver and moved northeast to Hanover (now Randolph) Township, Morris County. Here about three miles southeast of Dover he purchased six hundred acres of a large tract from Joseph Kirkbridge, who had acquired it in 1713. It included the area that became Mill Brook (or Millbrook) where, with his son Robert, William is supposed to have built the first grist mill in the area.[h]

It is not surprising that they moved to a new territory. What is surprising is that they stayed so long in one place. Most pioneers tended to settle only a few years in one place where they pursued agricultural practices which were wasteful, and after three or four years the fields were commonly abandoned to a second growth of forest. Agricultural practices were unscientific. Without fertilizers the soil quickly wore out. Because land seemed to be unlimited, it was a common practice to use the fields for a few years and then move on. The implements used in farming were primitive. Spades were used, but the most universal implement was the hoe. Plows were heavy, clumsy, made of wood, drawn by oxen. Wheat was cut by a scythe. Threshing was done with a flail or perhaps by the feet of oxen. A sieve may have been used to seperate the chaff from the grain. Great physical effort was required to cultivate a few acres. These conditions existed for all the colonists of the period.

The Schooleys must have quickly built a home or there was already a dwelling on the property, for on the 15th of the 3d month 1740, at the Woodbridge Monthly Meeting of Friends, Morris County Quakers requested "liberty" to hold a meeting once every three months at the house of William Schooley.[i] Shortly thereafter on the 4th of the 1st month 1741/2 William "Scholey" requested a certificate of removal from the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting for himself, his wife, and family. It was signed the 1st of the 2d month 1742 for William "Scholey", his wife, and two children, recommending them to the Woodbridge Monthly Meeting of Friends,[j] which then had jurisdiction over the Quakers in Morris County. On the 18th of the 7th month 1746, the Friends in Hanover Township, Morris County, requested of the Woodbridge Monthly Meeting that they be allowed to meet "the first dayes of the week" at William Schooley's house. The granting of these requests were the beginnings of the Mendham Meeting and in 1758 a meetinghouse was approved, to be built on land sold by William's son Robert.[i] The inability of William and his Quaker neighbors to form a separate meeting earlier forced a close association with the Kingwood Meeting, and the building a the Hardwick Meetinghouse in 1752 "helped bring the origin of Mendham into closer perspective".[k]

In 1751, William and Elizabeth Schooley witnessed the marriage of his niece Ann to Samuel Lundy in Hardwick, Sussex (now Warren) County.[l] A William Schooley, with Richard Lundy and five others, was appointed to divide Sussex County into precincts after it was set off from Morris County in 1753.[m] Although this William has been identified as the one of Randolph Township, Morris County, he was more likely (No. 15) William of Greenwich Township.

Willaim and Elizabeth French Schooley had ten children:

21. x. ISAAC b. ca. 1737, d. ? ; m. in 1763 to MARY JONES They had three children: Jonathan, Isaac Jr., and Johanna. See page.....212.

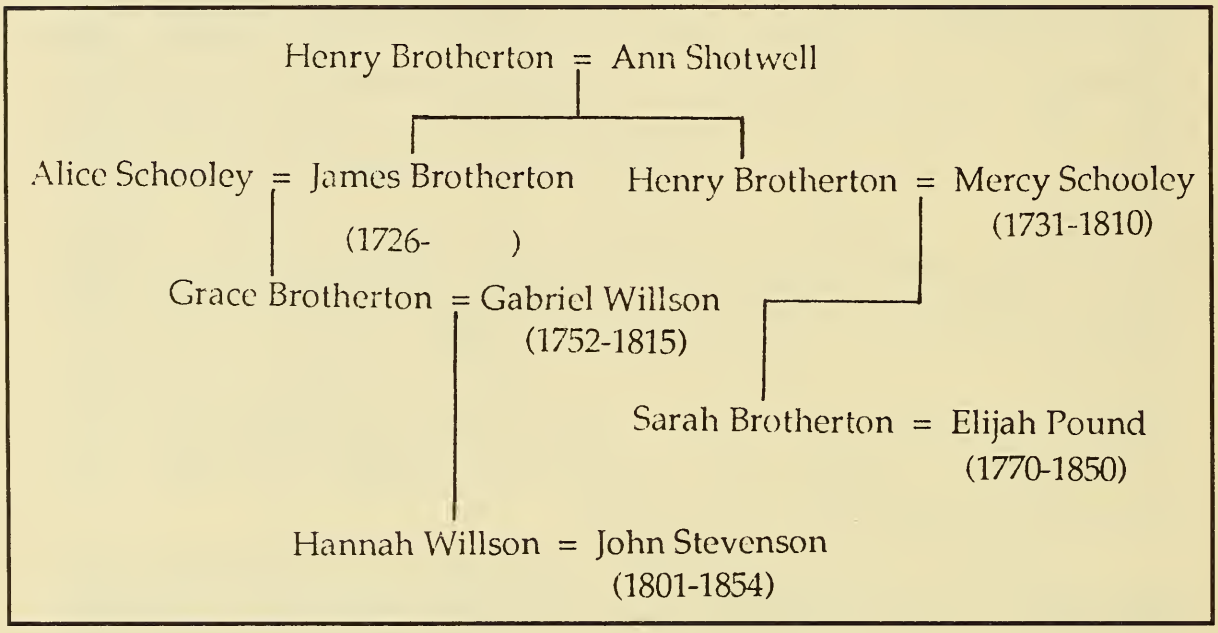
Thomas Schooley (1725-1750) lived only 25 years. We have no knowledge of what caused his early death. The average life expectancy in those times, if one should survive the hazards of infancy and childhood, was about 45 years. At that time infection from a sliver could result in death. A goiter or appendicitis meant death. They knew that the drinking of water was in some way dangerous, and it was in fact thought that it should be shunned. It was believed that water was permeated with minute particles which in those prebacteriological days could not be understood, and the drinking of water was sometimes regarded with dread.

William III who married Elizabeth Dell settled with his wife in the jurisdiction of Hardwick Monthly Meeting. When they were married there were in attendance the father and mother, William and Elizabeth French Schooley, Samuel and Avis Schooley, brothers Robert and Isaac Schooley. Also to witness the marriage of Elizabeth Dell Schooley was Elizabeth Schooley Dell, sister-in-law of the bride. Elizabeth Dell had two brothers, Richard and Basnet Dell. Basnet Dell went to Canada in the same year as Asa Schooley, in 1788.

When Elizabeth Schooley was 25 years old in 1754 she married Richard Dell, the brother of Elizabeth Dell who would become the wife of William Schooley. They had two sons, Richard Dell Jr. who married Rachel Shotwell, and William who went to live in Waterloo, New York.

In 1759, five years after their marriage, Richard and Elizabeth went to newly purchased land two miles east of Dover on the south side of the Rockaway River.

Mercy Schooley, the seventh child of William and Elizabeth French Schooley, was married in 1752 to Henry Brotherton Jr. The relationships of the Brothertons, Shotwells and Schooleys is most easily presented in a graph:



Mercy Schooley Brotherton went to Canada in 1801. There had been and was continuing a flow of Quakers from Bucks County, Pennsylvania and from Hardwick in New Jersey to Canada, a drain upon the Quaker Meeting which gave them some distress. The minutes of Hardwick Monthly Meeting of 1797 express their concern:

> This meeting appears to be at a loss concerning Friends who have removed from Hardwick to Niagary....."

In 1800 Sarah Lundy, being a minister, placed before the Hardwick and Mendham Meetings a > "concern that had rested upon her mind for some time past to pay a religious visit to Friends in upper Canada".

Elizabeth Shotwell wished to accompany her. Then Gabriel Willson moved to Canada and was followed by a steady stream of emigrants: Mercy Brotherton in 1801, William Shotwell in 1803, Mary and Amy Shotwell in 1804, Schooley Dennis in 1807, Richard Willson in 1823. The extinction of Hardwick Monthly Meeting was foreshadowed.

James and Alice Schooley Brotherton had six children:

1. JOHN(1755-1842) m. REBECCA MOORE
2. HENRY (1757-) m. (1) MARGARET WILLSON, (2) ESTER POUND
3. GRACE (1760-)
4. JAMES (1761-)
5. ELIZABETH (1765-)
6. WILLIAM (1767-)

Henry, the second son of James and Alice Schooley Brotherton, and his second wife, Ester Pound, had three children: (i.) Elijah (1798-) m. Rebecca Brotherton, (ii.) Margaret (1800-), (iii.) Rachel (1803-) m. Thomas Evers.

Mary Schooley married Jacob Bonnell in 1760. They lived in Newton Township of Sussex County, New Jersey and were members of the Mendham Monthly Meeting.

Isaac, the last of the ten children of William and Elizabeth French Schooley, married Mary Jones, and they had three children: (i.) Jonathan (1777-1856), (ii.) Isaac, Jr., (iii). Johanna.

Jonathan, the first of these children, was twice married. He married Mary Clark. By this marriage there were nine children:

i. ELECTRA m. ROBERT SPARKS CHAMPION
ii. MAHLON
iii. JOHN H.
iv. CHLOE; m. THOMAS CHANEY
v. ELIAS (1805-1878)
vi. ISAAC; m. in1821 MARIA HUTCHINSON
vii. CHILION; m. ELIZA ANDERSON viii. JONATHAN, JR.
ix. HANNAH

His second marriage was to Mary Morris in 1830. There were no children by this marriage.

Electra, the first daughter above, who had married Robert Sparks Champion died and Robert was married a second time to Sarah Moore. Chloe, the fourth child, and her husband Thomas Chaney lived in Paulding County, Ohio. Chilion, the seventh child, apparently died soon after he was married. He had married Eliza Anderson, and Later Eliza married a second time in 1836 to William Troy. Elias, the fifth child of Jonathan and Mary Clark Schooley, was twice married. His first marriage in 1825 was to Hannah Roberts and his second marriage in 1830 was to Rebecca Plummer. His second marriage took place in the same year as his father's second marriage. Elias became the father of five children: (i). Sewell, (ii). Mary, (iii). Joseph Plummer, (iv). Sarah, and (v). Samuel Thomas Plummer Schooley. One of these, Joseph Plummer Schooley, became the father of Les and Lela. Another of the sons, Samuel Thomas Plummer Schooley, married in 1860 Harriet Whitehead. They had three children: (i). Joseph, (ii). William Austin (1865-1934), and (iii). Elias.

William Austin Schooley (1865-1934) married in 1890 Frances True (1861-1942), and they had six children: (i). Harry, (ii). Mabel, (iii). Robert True (1895-1946), (iv). Ella, (v). Anna, (vi). James Plummer (1904-1946).

Robert True Schooley (1895-1946) married Elizabeth Bierly in 1922. They had nine children: (i) Elizabeth, (ii). Frances, (iii). Agge, (iv). Jane, (v). James, (vi). Mary, (vii) David, (viii). Robert, and (ix). William.

Early Days in New Jersey

As explained, two purchases of land were made in September 1677 and a third purchase made on the 10th of October of that year. This last segment, between Rankokus Creek and the Assanpink Creek, being called the First Tenth. It is reasonable to expect that the Scholeys would have settled in this area with their Quaker neighbors. They did not.

It is not known where they were in their first year in America, but in 1679 both Thomas and Robert Scholey had acquired land on the west side of the Delaware River, a short distance below the falls. Their presence there was discovered in an unexpected source by reading a Journal of a Voyage to New York in 1679 -80 by Jasper Dankaerts and Peter Sluyter. The journal contains this entry of 3 January 1680:

> We went to M. de la Grange's where we saw a newly drawn map of the South River, from the falls to Burlington, made by the land surveyor there. He told us the governor had given him a grant of a piece of land on the South River between those places.[a]

The Schooley farms were located on this land. Although the map is written in Dutch, one can see that among the owners of land were John Ackerman, 394 acres, Thomas Scholey,[b] 105 acres, Robert Scholey, 206 acres, Gilbert Wheeler, 205 acres, William Biles, 309 acres, de la Grange's map of the "South River"

Samuel Syche, 218 acres (not clear on map), and Richard Ridgway, 218 (248?) acres. Elsewhere in the same reference we read that

> "M. de la Grange has obtained a piece from the governor, lying between Burlington and the falls, on the west side, but will not accomplish much with it."

Undoubtedly, several land owners shown on the map acquired their holdings from de la Grange. The Dutch travelers say

> "There are quakers who either are more wise, or through poverty, act so, who do not buy any land on the east side, but buy on the west side, where it is cheaper, in consequence of the Indians being there."

Other reasons appear to commend the west bank to the settlers, the > "land on the east side being generally lower than the west, the west side being tolerably high and good all the way down."[c]

An important distinction is made between the west bank and the east side. In 1677-1678 the earliest settlement was established on the east side which was on low ground. Consequently, in a few years it was devastated by flood. This area is in Trenton on the south side of Calhoun Street, where Riverview Cemetery is now located. Wisely, it was referred to by the Indians as "Littleworth". The area was partially wiped out by flood in 1687 and again by a great flood in 1692.

Danckaerts's journal indicates that when he and Sluyter came to the region of the falls of the Delaware they spent the night at the home of one of the Quaker settlers.

His observations about the housing may be equally fitting to the Schooley properties. A November journal entry reads as follows:

> We arrived at the falls of the South River about sundown, passing a creek where a new grist-mill was erected by the quakers, who live hereabouts in great numbers, and daily increase. But seemed to us as if this mill could not stand long, especially if the flow of water were heavy, because the work was not well arranged. We rode over here, and went directly to the house of the person who had constructed it, who was a quaker, where we dismounted and willingly dismissed our horses. The house was very small, and from the incivility of the place, we expected poor lodging.

The creek referred to is apparently the Assanpink Creek. The grist mill was no doubt erected by Mahlon Stacy in that same year, 1679. They were near the present site of Trenton which then was known as "ye ffalls of ye De La Warr." The narrative continues:

> This miller's house is the highest up the river hitherto inhabited. Here we had to lodge; and although we were too tired to eat, we had to remain sitting upright the whole night, not being able to find room enough to lie upon the ground. We had a fire, however, but the dwellings are so wretchedly constructed that if you were not so close to the fire as almost to burn yourself, you cannot keep warm, for the wind blows through them everywhere. their houses made of nothing but clapboards, as they call them there, in this manner: they first make a wooden frame, the same as they do in the Westphalia and at Altona, but not so strong; they then split the boards of clapwood, so that they are like cooper's pipe staves, except they are not bent. These are made very thin with a large knife, so that the > thickest end is about a pinck* thick, and the other is made sharp, like the edge of a knife. They are about five or six feet long, and are nailed on the outside of the frame, with the ends overlapping each other. They are not usually laid so close together as to prevent you from sticking a finger between them, in consequence either if their not being well joined or the boards being crooked. When it is cold and windy the best people plaster them with clay. Such are most all the English houses in the country, except those they have which were built by people of other nations. Now this house was new and airy; and as the night was very windy from the north, and extremely cold with clear moonshine, I will not readily forget it.

No doubt on the other side of the river Robert Scholey and his family huddled in similar quarters.

Let us trace further the travels of Danckaerts and Sluyter as long as they were in Quaker territory. Danckaerts's comments reveal the manners of Quakers and how they were regarded by others. Because these Dutch travelers were Labadists, they did not have much compassion for Quakers. They said little in their favor.

Continuing down the Delaware River, they arrived at the Town of Burlington, a Quaker village. Danckaerts observed that the > "east side of the river is entirely occupied by the quakers, but how they came into its possession we will show in another place."

Finding no room available at the tavern, the travelers went back upstream to stay at Jacob Hendrick's house where they were kindly received. The following day,

*Little finger.

Sunday the 19th of November, they returned to Burlington.

> "We went into the meeting of the quakers who went to work very unceremoniously and loosely. What they uttered was mostly in one tone, and the same thing, and so it continued until we were tired out, and went away."

The following day, Monday the 20th,

> We went again to the village this morning and entered the ordinary exhorter's house where we breakfasted with quakers, but the most worldly of men in all their deportment and conversation. We found lying upon the window a volume of Virgil, as if it were a common hand-book, and also Helmont's book on *Medicine whom, in an introduction, which they have made to it, they make pass for one of their sect, although in his lifetime he did not know anything about quakers; and if they had been in the world, or should have come into it, while he lived, he would quickly have said, no, to them: but it seems these people will make all those who have any genius, in any respect, more than common, pass for theirs, which is certainly great pride, wishing to place themselves far above all others; whereas the most of them, whom I have seen as yet, are miserably self-minded,, in physical and religious knowledge..g

*Jean Batiste van Helmont (1577-1644) a distinguished alchemist and physician. According to van Helmont wisdom in science was to be acquired by prayer. He said that the sick never languished in his hands being either killed or cured in three days.

Danckaerts and Sluyter continued down the river to the island of Tinicum which is a short distance south of Burlington. Here they stayed at the home of Mr.Otto.

> In the evening there also arived three quakers, of whom one was their greatest prophetess who travels through the whole country in order to quake. She lives in Maryland, and forsakes husband and children, plantation and all, and goes off for this purpose. She had been to Boston, and was there arrested by the authorities on account of her quakery. This worthy personage came here in the house where we were, although Ephraim avoided her. They sat by the fire and drank a dram of rum with each other, and in a short time afterwards began to shake and groan so, that we did not know what had happened, and supposed they were going to preach, but nothing came out of it. I could not endure them, and went outdoors.[h]

On Wednesday, the 22d of November, they lodged at the house of Robert Wade, a Quaker immigrant who came to the new land in 1675 with John Fenwick. Here they met two Quaker widows.

> One of these widows, named Anna Salters, lived at Takany, and was one of those who when a certain person gave himself out as the Lord Jesus, and allowed himself to be carried around on an ass, shouted Hosanna as he rode over their garments, for which conduct he was arrested, his tongue bored through with a red-hot iron, and his forehead branded with a B for Blasphemer. * She was not only one of those, but she annointed his head and feet, and wiped them with her hair.[j]

* The same treatment was used in East New Jersey for a second offense of burglary.

Clearly, this Quaker lady had great compassion, but it does not appear that Danckaerts and Sluyter interpreted her kindness as such. They regarded Anna Salters as > "mundane, carnal, covetous and artful, > although she appeared to be pious."

> " What are not those people capable of,who present themselves to be carried away as we have mentioned above; as well as others in this country, who publish and declare one, that she is Mary the mother of the Lord, another, that she is Mary Magdalen,and others that they are Martha, John, etc., scandalizers, as we heard them in a tavern, who not only so called themselves, but claim to be really such. For this reason, Mr. Wade would no longer have them in his house, making them leave, although it was well in the evening; for the Wades said they could not endure it. Indeed, God the Lord will not let them pass by, for it is not far from blasphemy. He will bring them to justice, if they be of his elect.'[k]

By the 29th of November they were returning by way of the falls where they needed to cross the river. At a plantation newly begun by a Quaker, they rested and refreshed themselves.

> "We agreed with this man, who came in the house while we were there, that he should put us over the river for three guilders in zeewant." [l]

This crossing near Bordentown was made at the site of the land which had been acquired by M. de la Grange. Nearby, Robert and Thomas Scholey had farms.

Again observing the grist mill, they remarked that in consequence of the great flow of water it stood in danger of being washed away.[m] Apparently the mill was constructed by Mahlon Stacy.

In those times with little understanding of disease there was a widespread fear of the night air and living on low land. Danckaerts wrote:

> "There is something in the atmosphere which produces disease: but this will become gradually better, as the country is measurably populated, and thereby becomes more cleared, as experience shows is true of all the lands in America, which have been unhealthy."[n]

The Dutch travelers observed that the east side of the river was entirely occupied by the Quakers. They said that the east side had never been claimed by anyone, although the land lying between the North River and the South River[o] had been divided, the easterly part going to Lord Carteret and the westerly part to Lord Berkeley. No boundary lines between these two divisions existed until the province was divided by a deed of partition into East and West New Jersey. How the western portion of the province came into the possession of John Fenwick and others is interpreted differently by Danckaerts and Sluyter. Mr. Byllinge, a brewer of London, had failed in business. To recoup his losses, his friend Lord Berkeley offered to sell him his domain of West New Jersey for a thousand pounds. Byllinge could then divide the land and sell again at great profit. Byllinge, however, was without funds, so he borrowed money from his friends. Fenwick, also a Quaker, transacted the business for him. For this accommodation Fenwick was to enjoy a tenth of the whole westerly part. The Dutch travelers suggest that Fenwick managed it so well that he might have come into possession of the whole territory, but he was compelled to be satisfield with his tenth.

Fenwick had letters circulated describing the country in glowing terms, calling it a "luij lekkerland,"* a kind of paradise, a land where there is nothing to do and every delicacy is to be enjoyed, and that it was especially so for Quakers. Many persons bought pieces of land, having only seen them on a map and having of it imperfect knowledge. Fenwick had one tenth and the other tenths were subsequently divided into hundreths. These properties included water, morasses, swamps, marshes, along with arable soil. Individual parcels were not clearly identified. When they arrived the purchasers settled down wherever they thought best, leaving the decision about land ownership to be settled at a later time.

It is understandable that the Scholey brothers settled on the west side of the Delaware River rather than in territory where the ownership was still unsettled. The settlers who lived on the west side of the Delaware River called their home "Crookhorn," after the town of Crewkerne in Somerset, England.

There are numerous bits of evidence in the literature that indicate the existance of Crookhorn. Justin Winsor made reference to it in speaking of the settlements along the Delaware: "The settlements extended from the southern limits of the province for a few miles above the mouth of the Schuylkill, and then there was nothing until Crewcorne was reached opposite the falls of the Delaware." Other evidence is found in the will of John Wood of "Crookhorn", Bucks County, Pennsylvania, dated 27 March 1692.[5] Numbers of people, it seems, bought properties that were great disappointments to them. Buying land when it has been seen only on a map and when the buyer has not firsthand knowledge of it is surely a risky business, and there must have been numbers among them who did buy land which turned out to be swamps and marshes. Letters were sent back to England expressing intense disappointment and disillusionment. Yet there were many others who found the new land very good, and when they wrote relatives back in England they were anxious to praise the new country. We have an abstract of a letter written by Mahlon Stacy on the 26th of the 4th month 1680:

> But now a word or two of those strange reports you have of us and our country; I affirm they are not true and fear they were spoken from a spirit of envy. It is a country that produceth all things for the support and substance of man in a plentiful manner. If it were not so I should be ashamed of what I have before written, but I can stand having truth on my side against and before the face of all gainsayers and evil spies. I have travelled through most of the places that are settled and some that are not, and in every place I find the country very apt to answer the expectation of the diligent. I have seen orchards laden with fruit to admiration, their very limbs torn to pieces with the weight, and most delicious to the taste and lovely to behold; I have seen an apple tree from a pippin kernal, yield a barrel of curious cyder; and peaches in such plenty, that some people took their carts a peach-gathering; I could not but smile at the conceit of it; They are a very delicate fruit, and hang almost like onions that are tied on ropes: I have seen and known this forty bushels of bold * wheat of one bushel sown; and many more such instances I could bring; which would be too tedious here to mention; We have from the time called May until Michaelmass, great store of very good wild fruits, as strawberries, cranberries, and hurtleberries which are like our bilberries* in England, but far sweeter; they are very wholesome fruits: The cranberries much like cherries for color and bigness, which may be kept til fruit come in again; an excellent sauce is made of them for venison, turkeys, and other great fowl, they are better to make tarts than either gooseberries or cherries; we have them brought to our houses by the Indians in great plenty. My brother Robert had as many cherries this year as would have loaded several carts: It is my judgment by what I have observed that fruit trees in this country destroy themselves by the very weight of their fruit: As for venison and fowls, we have great plenty: We have brought home to our houses by the Indians, seven or eight fat bucks a day; and sometimes put by as many; having no occasion for them; and fish in their season very plenteous: My cousin Revell and I, with some of my men, went last third month into the river to catch herrings; for at that time they came in great shoals into the shallows; we had neither rod nor net; but after the Indians fashion made a round pinfold about two yards over, and a foot high, but left a gap for the fish to go in at, and made a bush to lay in the gap to keep the fish in, and when that was done, we took two long birches and tied their tops together, and went about a stone's cast above our said pinfold; then hauling these birch's boughs down the stream, where we drove thousands before us, but so many got into our trap as it would hold, and then we began to haul them on shore as fast as three or four of us could, by two or three at a time, and after this manner in half an hour, we could have filled a three bushel sack of as good and large herrings as ever I saw; and as to beef and pork, here is very great plenty of it, and cheap; and also good sheep; The common > grass of this country feeds beef very fat: I have killed two this year, and therefore I have reason to know it; besides I have seen this fall, in Burlington, killed eight or nine fat oxen and cows on a market day, and all very fat: And though I speak of herrings only, lest any would think we have little other sorts, we have great plenty of most sorts of fish that ever I saw in England; besides several other sorts that are not known there; as rocks, cat-fish, shads, sheeps-heads, sturgeons and fowls plenty; as ducks, geese, turkeys, pheasants, partriges, and many other sorts, that I cannot remember and would be too tedious to mention. Indeed the country, take it as a wilderness, is a brave country, though no place will please all. But some will be ready to say, he writes of convenience, but not of inconveniences: In answer to these, I honestly declare, there is some barren land, as (I suppose) there is in most places of the world, and more wood then some would have upon their lands; neither will the country produce corn without labor, nor cattle be got without something to buy them, nor bread with idleness; else it would be a brave country indeed; And I question not, but all then would give it a good word; for my part I like it so well, I never had the least thought of returning to England, except on the account of trade.

> Mahlon Stacy

As we read these letters sent back to England to members of the family, we see there was a need to bring about a clearer understanding of what one might find in the new country. The letter of advertisment given such wide distribution by Fenwick, declaring New Jersey to be a land flowing with milk and honey, seems to have been accepted with too great a degree of naivete. The first letters home did not seem to say, "If you are so fortunate as to arrive here in good health, if you are strong, if you are willing to work long hours, and if in the beginning you are willing to endure the cold and wet, you may be able to make a go of it". No, they did not say that. They spoke rather of "orchards laden with fruit to admiration," the fish that could be caught in the rivers, and the fat bucks. This was true, but the Quakers in particular and the people in general seemed to be too readily willing to believe that the new country was a luij lekkerland. The words that had been spoken in praise of the land had now to be accompanied by the realization that the land would not produce corn without labor and that bread could not be got with idleness.

11... SAMUEL[3] SCHOOLEY (Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born the 25th of the 12th month 1698 in Chesterfield Township, Burlington County, New Jersey[a] and he died in Mendham, New Jersey, on the 8th of the 2d month 1761, aged "nearly 64".[b] On the 7th of the 3d month 1725 he married AVIS HOLLOWAY at the Chesterfield Meeting, they both being of that township.[c] Avis was born the 2d of the 9th month 1706,[d] probably in Chesterfield Township, Burlington County, New Jersey, and she died, probably in Newton Township, Sussex County, New Jersey, between 20 June 1771 and 24 May 1785,[e] the daughter of John and Mary (Pharo) Holloway.[f] In his will dated the 16th day of the 12th month 1716/7, proved 20 April 1717, John Holloway of Chesterfield, Burlington County, named his wife Mary and his daughter Avis, then under eighteen.[g] Avis, the wife of Samuel Schooley, was also named in the 17 November 1757 will of her cousin, James Pharo of Chesterfield, yeoman.[h]

Recorded in the minutes of the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting is the full text of Samuel and Avis's marriage, a typical example of such Quaker marriage records, complete with the names of all those present who signed as witnesses:

> Whereas Samuel Scholey of Chesterfield and Western Division of New Jersey and Avis Holloway of the same place, having declared their intentions of marriage with each other before several Monthly Meetings of the people called Quakers at Chesterfield in the County of Burlington aforesaid according to the good order used among them whose proceedings therein after deliberate consideration thereof and having consent of parents and relations concerned, nothing appearing to obstruct, were approved by said meeting. Now these are to Certifie all to whom it may concern that for the full accomplishment of their said intentions this twenty-seventh day of the third month of the year of our Lord One Thousand Seven Hundred and Twenty Five. They, the said Samuel Scholey and Avis Holloway appeared at a public meeting of the said people, and others at their public meeting house in Chesterfield aforesaid. And the said Samuel Scholey taking the said Avis Holloway by the hand did in a solemn manner openly declare that he took her to be his wife, promising, through the Lord's assistance to be to her a loving and faithful husband until the Lord should please by death to separate them. And there and then in the said assembly the said Avis Holloway did in like manner declare that she took the said Samuel Scholey to be her husband, promising to be to him a loving and faithful wife till it shall please the Lord by death to separate them. And moreover the said Samuel Scholey and Avis Holloway (she according to the custom of marriage assuming the name of her husband) as a further Confirmation thereof did then and there to these presents set their hands. And we whose names are here unto subscribed being among others present at the solemnization of the said Marriage and subscription in manner aforesaid as witnesses hereunto have also to these presents set our hands the day and year above written.

Early in 1726 Samuel sold land in Chesterfield Township, Burlington County to William Wood, being half the 111-acre homestead inherited from his father.[j] In the 11th month of 1726, Samuel purchased from Isaac DeCou of the town and county of Burlington, yeoman, 350 acres, partly in what became Lebanon Township, Hunterdon County, and partly in what became Washington Township, Morris County, New Jersey, in 1798. [k] This is supposed to have been the same 350 acre tract which his father had purchased in 1714 from Thomas Stevenson[l] and later became known as Schooleys Mountain . It was in this area the Samuel Schooleys settled near a new Quaker settlement established in what became Bethlehem Township just south of Lebanon.

At or about the same time Samuel's brothers Thomas and William also moved here. Thomas probably returned to Burlington County, William soon moved up into Morris County, and Samuel went further north to Sussex County. Hunterdon County was created in 1713 and embraced all the territory from the Falls of the Delaware to what is now the New York State line. This county was at the frontier and among the early families who came here from Burlington County were Jacob Doughty, John and William Coats, the Stevensons, Kings, Rockhills, Emleys, Larges, Willsons, Williamses, and the Schooleys.[l]

Lebanon Township, previous to the organization of Morris County in 1739, and possibly for some time after that, extended northward to include several townships later separated from it. A portion of Lebanon Township was set off as Washington Township, Morris County, in 1798, and here was located the residence of Samuel Schooley "by the mineral springs", in the southwest part of the county where Schooleys Mountain lies. The property is described in a warrant from the Council of Proprietors of the Western Division of New Jersey issued the 1st and returned the 30th day of August 1809, by which was required a "resurvey of lands for James Scholey, a son of Joseph and grandson of Samuel". These lands were "scituate in the Township of Washington, formerly Lebanon, in the county of Morris, formerly Hunterdon, in the Western Division of New Jersey". The beginning of the resurvey was "near the mineral springs, about a mile and a half northeast from Samuel Scholey's former residence".[m]

Samuel was an active participant in Quaker business and on the 10th of the 4th month 1729 he, Thomas Williams, and others were allowed by the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting in Burlington County to meet at one of their homes each first day of the week, since they were settled "remote from Friends". This is believed to have been the beginning of the Bethlehem (later Kingwood) Monthly Meeting of Friends.[n] In 1733 Jacob Doughty conveyed four acres of land for the use of the meetinghouse in Bethlehem and in 1744 a Monthly Meeting was established at this place.

That year John Simcock, Samuel Schooley's son-in-law, was appointed the first recorder of the meeting. For this assignment he had to be a good pen maker and pen mender. He used a goose quill for writing and had to provide paper, pumice, pen, ink, knife, horn, rule, plummet, wax, and sand. An examination of the Monthly Meeting minutes written by John Simcock is informative and amusing. Under the date 11th 12th month 1744 it was recorded that > "This meeting taking into consideration the necessity of Building a new Meetinghouse in this place have Unanimously agreed to lay the necessity thereof before the next Quarterly Meeting in order to their Approbation therein".

Later it was agreed that the meetinghouse should be built according to the dimensions 36 by 26 "in the Clear" and that it should be built of stone. In an entry of 14th 3d month 1747 shows

> "we are building our new Meeting-house here thirty-nine feet long and twenty-seven feet wide".

On the 17th 7th month 1749, the sum of three pounds fifteen shillings had been paid toward the building of the meetinghouse; however, by the 21st 9th month 1752 some differences had developed among the members relating to the rebuilding of the roof. Earlier, there is an entry of the 11th 6th month 1752 in which it was reported money had been given by the Quarterly Meeting toward repairing the meetinghouse at Kingwood. It is good to learn that by the 9th of the 5th month 1754, ten years after the subject was introduced, there was a "general satisfaction" relative to the rebuilding of the meetinghouse. While it appears it took ten years to get this project under way, the building was completed in 1747, burned in 1752, and was rebuilt in 1754.[o]

On 1 November 1729 Samuel "purchased a warrant" of 136 acres, located near Stephensburg, Washington Township, Morris County, and he sold the property to William Pew in March 1733.[p] To his brother-in-law, George Holloway, then of Hunterdon County, Samuel "Scholey" of "Nutown", New Jersey, on 1 June 1732, conveyed 130 acres on a ridge of hills lying between the river or creek called "Murkenebkong" and the South Branch of the Raritan River, adjoining land of Isaac "DeCoues".[q] This was part of the 350-acre tract Samuel purchased in 1726.

An election of officers for Lebanon Township was held 17 March 1734, with "Schooley & Holloway"--certainly Samuel Schooley and George Holloway--being listed as freeholders-- and Samuel Schooley elected an overseer of the poor.[r] Samuel was still listed as a freeholder of Lebanon Township in 1741.[s] Samuel Schooley of Bethlehem, Hunterdon County, yeoman, and Avis his wife, for £150, sold about 190 acres to William Henn of Lebanon, Hunterdon County, yeoman, on 22 April 1745, it being the remainder of the 350-acre tract and described as bordering land of Isaac DeCow, land late of Thomas Stevenson, and land of William Cook. [k]

Henn and his wife Elsie, who were from Germany, purchased the other part of the 350 acres from George Holloway in 1754.[t] Shortly after this time (1745) the Samuel Schooleys moved again.

About 1743 there began a migration by some Bethlehem Quakers to the "Great Meadows" in Sussex County (then still part of Morris but now Warren County). By 1752 the Quaker meeting at the Great Meadows was known as Hardwick. [u] About the time of the new migration to Great Meadows, a traveller visiting New Jersey from England made some observations of the New World. In A Letter from New Jersey, in America, "By a Gentleman, late of Christ's College, Cambridge", he remarked that

> New Jersey is as well cultivated as any of the colonies like a world half emerged out of Chaos. The farms lye interspersed in the bosom of thick woods You are either in the woods, or have woods on one side of you; and the view is...as the breadth of a field or two,.... A few scattered houses here make a > village;.... Most of the houses...are...of pine boards or cedar shingles. The people are naturally brisk and of a lively temper. They stand much upon a footing of equality among each other. The men, who are extreme kind husbands, go commonly the way that the wife is of. [M]any families never fasten their doors when they go to bed; and the good house wives, that have cloth in bleaching, never take it in at night. As to the picking of pockets, the practice is utterly unknown,.... The old country people that have removed to these parts, are observed to be longer lived than those who are born here, few of whom live to any great age. They lose their teeth early,..and when they begin to drop, one may say then date it the fall of the leaf. The people live chiefly upon salt meat and roots,...but their most reigning dish is maize, ground, and boiled into a diet they call suppaun. With this the board is crowned three times a day. A good farm raises and manufactures all it's provisions, viz. bread, flesh, drink, cloaths, firing, candles, soap, tobacco, and has all it's work done by it's own slaves. The clearing woodland for tillage is a much less work than cutting down every tree. The emperor Severus in clearing the lands in Britain, lost 50,000 of his men; but the American planters spare their men, and only kill the trees. They cut up the brush, and saplings, and leave the timber trees, having girt, that is, cut them round their bole, to fall of themselves as they decay, and then immediately go to ploughing and sowing among them."[v]

The gentleman obviously had scientific inclinations also. The life history of the wheat rust fungus was not understood until many years later. We now understand the role of the barberry bush as an intermediate host to the fungus which infects the wheat plant. It is astonishing to read that the Gentleman of Chirst's College visiting in 1745 was > "in mind to speak of the barberry tree, which the planters reckon very pernicious to grain, especially, I think, wheat, and tell you that an whole field will be blighted where any of this shrub grows".

The quotation of the Gentleman of Christ's College is ended:

> "In summer time,...the air is bespangled every night with a kind of flies, which they call fire-flies".[w]

The young visitor from Cambridge described quite accurately the daily life and work habits of our Schooley forebears.

About 1749 Samuel and Avis Schooley and their children, including probably daughter Asenath Simcock and her family, established a new home in Hardwick Township in the western end of Morris County. By a deed of 12 March 1751, Thomas and Richard Penn granted to Samuel Scholey, Samuel Willson Jr., Joseph Willets, and Joseph Lundy, all of Hardwick Township, Morris County, yeomen, title to 1250 acres lying in the township. [x] Once again Samuel was among the pioneer Quakers in a new settlement on a new frontier. Here he continued to live until his death in 1761 and here some of his children married and lived for various lengths of time. Samuel, who became an elder of the Kingwood Monthly Meeting,[b] was appointed by that meeting with Josiah Dyer and Richard Lundy, Jr., on the 11th of the 4th month 1754 [1752?], to visit families of Quakers of the Hardwick Preparative Meeting.[y] Samuel and Avis were among the first elders appointed for the Hardwick Monthly Meeting in 1756. [aa]

By a contract made 20 October 1758 between Samuel Schooley of the first part, and John Stevens and James Parker, for themselves and in behalf of William Alexander, of the second part, it was agreed Samuel would procure materials for and construct a sawmill in Alexandria Township, Hunterdon County (in that part later set off as Frenchtown). Samuel was to "immediately cut down and procure timber for a Saw mill and mill Dam to be sett up on Neshasackaway near the River Delaware which said mill He is to build at his own Expence both wooden work & iron & every other necessary for a Saw mill Compleat & to sett the said mill agoing and to build a Mill waggon compleat". For this service, Stevens and Parker, in behalf of Alexander, agreed to pay Samuel one hundred pounds, one half when the mill was raised and the other half when the mill was "compleat and sett agoing". Schooley agreed the "Damn [sic] shall be a good strong & Substantial frame damn and well fixt, The Cill to be let into the Rock which is to be Cut out at the expense of sd. John & James". [bb]

Whether the mill was in fact built or completed by Samuel Schooley is uncertain; he died in 1761, a few years after the making of this contract. Unfortunately, construction of the mill did not bring about a scramble for purchase of building lots. John Stevens and James Parker apparently had hoped to engineer a boom, seeking to get things going by selling a lot to a Philadelphia merchant and then making a contract with him to build upon the lot a "Dwelling House & store house under one Roof...with a Cellar under the Same...." It was agreed to pay James Parker, William Earl, and John Stevens "yearly and every one Ear of Indian Corn if Demanded...."[cc]

Although he died in Mendham, Samuel Schooley was buried in the Hardwick Monthly Meeting Burying Ground, located beside the road from Allemuchy to Johnsonburg. A eulogy to him was printed in the Quaker publication, The Friend:

> Samuel Schooley was born in the upper part of the Province of East Jersey in 1697 of parents who were members of the Society of Friends, and early settlers in that neighborhood. He was educated with care, and the labours of his parents were blessed to him, through the visitations of the Lord's Holy Spirit, and his submission thereto. He was a man of an innocent inoffensive conduct, cheerful and pleasant in conversation, of a sound and deep judgment, well grounded in the principals of Truth. Although it was his lot to live mostly remote from Friends meetings, amongst people of other societies, yet the education of his children became his care and concern, early to impress on their tender minds the principals of Truth, both by example and precept. The happy effect of this, through the blessing of the Almighty, he had to behold in some of his children, who laid down their heads, we have cause to believe, in peace with the Almighty, and in unity with their brethren, some time before their parent, who faithfully discharged the trust reposed in him on that important occasion. Samuel Schooley was held in much esteem, as an elder of Kingwood Monthly Meeting, discharging his duty therein, and over the flock of Christ as a father in the Truth. He delighted much in the company of his Friends, and was well beloved by them and others. We have good reason to believe he is gone to enjoy that rest which is prepared for those who faithfully hold out to the end.[b]

A few years after Samuel's death, on the 10th of the 11th month 1763, the Kingwood Monthly Meeting allowed Friends in Paulinskiln to hold a meeting there once a month during the winter, at the home of "Avee"

Schooley. In 1775 the meeting was allowed to be held at the home of her son, Benjamin Schooley. [dd]

On 25 October 1765, Avis Schooley of Newton, Sussex County, widow, for consideration of "proclamation Money", was granted by Jonathan Hampton of Elizabethtown, Sussex County, a Lot of Upland and Meadow situate in Newton, Part of a tract Surveyed for Governor Penn, running along lands owned by Asa Schooley.

> ".Together with all singular the mines, minerals, ways, waters, water courses, fowlings, fishings, huntings, powers, profits, commodities, Improvments, Hereditaments, and Appurtances to the same belonging or in any way apurtaining".[ee]

Avis Schooley of Newton Township, Sussex County, left a will dated 20 June 1771. To her sons Joseph and Benjamin she left five shillings each. Granddaughter Ann Simcock, daughter-in-law Martha Schooley, and granddaughter Avis Dyer were each to have some goods and son Samuel Schooley was to have what remained of the real and personal estate and to be executor. The will was proved 24 May 1785. [e]

Much is learned by examining wills and inventories of estates of those who lived before us. These documents tell us not only what the people owned but what they held especially dear and how they hoped to have their possessions preserved. They reveal romance and tragedy, who was wayward, who owned slaves and what they did with them. It was common to leave land for burying grounds. There was a remembrance for the "meaney kineneses" that were shown by friends, and references to "cesters" and "cussins". There is mention of the "pott hangers with the flower de luce in them", the "men's stomachers", the "peas-porridge tawney-cloth".

In spite of being "fol of pain of Bodey" in their "sixnis" they claim to be of sound mind. They admonished their heirs to "collext" all debts, especially those "Dangerously dew" and to be wary of "extorsinat" claims. A "musketernett" was a necessity and sometimes left to an heir in a will.. Bibles were often bequeathed, and other kinds of books, being rare, were mentioned in Wills with occasionally a half-interest in a book being declared. A collection of books was sometimes dignified by being referred to as a "lyberary" or "libruary". Looking glasses were prized possessions. An amber necklace may have been left as a protection against some evil influence.

Samuel and Avis Holloway Schooley had 8 children (i - viii below):

i. ASENATH[4], b. 18 4m. 1726; d. 12 12m. 1759[d];m. in Bethlehem, 7 4m. 1744, JOHN SIMCOCK JR,. b. 2 12 m. 1723, son of John[3] (Jacob[2], John[1]) and Mary (Waln) Simcock.[ff] The Simcocks settled at Gwinedd, Pa.. in 1746 and then returned to New Jersey.

Children, surname Simcock:[gg]

1. SAMUEL[5], b. 16 2m. 1745 in Bethlehem; m. int. at Kingwood MM, 4 4m. 1768.
2. JOHN, b. 5 10m. 1747 in Greenwich; m. 1773[hh]
3. ANNE, b. 12 12m. 1750[d] in Kingwood; living 20 June 1771
4. JOSEPH
5. BENJAMIN

ii. ANNE, b. 29 6m 1728; d. 22 3m 1758[d]; m. in Hardwick, N.J., 30 8m 1751, as his 1st wife, SAMUEL[3] LUNDY,[ii] b. in Bucks Co., Pa., 13

12m 1727, d. probably in Independence Twp., Sussex Co., 14 2m 1801, son of Richard[2] (Richard[1]) and Elizabeth (Large) Lundy and brother of Martha who m. Anne's brother Benjamin. After Anne's death Samuel m. (2) 20 11m 1765, SARAH WILLETS, who d. 13 2m 1824, dau. of Joseph Willets, and by whom he had 9 more ch. Samuel Lundy was a judge.[jj] In his will of 3 Feb. 1796, proved 4 Apr. 1801, Samuel Lundy, Sr., of Independence Twp., Sussex Co., named his wife Sarah, sons Samuel (to care for his mother), Daniel, George, Levi, and Jesse, and daughters Ann Patterson, Edith Laing, "Aschsgh," Sarah, and Amy.[kk]

Children, surname Lundy:[ll]

1. ISAAC[5], b. 26 12m 1752.
2. DANIEL, b. 9 9m 1754; d. 24 3m 1817; m. 1787, ELIZABETH LAING, b. 29 8m 1765, dau. of John and Hannah (Webster) Laing; 2 ch.
3. GEORGE, b. 3 6m 1756; d. 4 2m 1833; m. 15 Mar.1780, ESTHER WILLSON, b. 30 Mar. 1754, d. 20 Dec. 1836, dau. of Samuel [3] (Samuel[2] Robert[1]) and Deborah (Willets) Willson; 9 ch.

22. iii. JOSEPH, b. 19 11m 1730, d. 1778; m. in 1756 to SARAH BROWN(1737-1811). See page....220.

iv. JAMES b. 1732; d. 1767; m. in 1765 to MARGARET -------.who was living 20 Apr. 1767.[tt] On 20 Apr. 1767, Margaret, widow of James Schooley of Newton, Sussex Co., renounced administration of his estate (witnessed by Benjamin Schooley and Josiah Dyer, Jr.) and it was granted to Samuel Schooley of Newton, with Josiah Dyer of Hardwick as a bondsman. The inventory of the estate, taken 13 Apr. 1767 by Jacob Lundy, Samuel Lundy, and Benjamin Schooley, showed a value of £86.16.2. On 12 Apr. 1769 an account was filed by the administrator and included payments to Avis, William, and Asa Schooley, Josiah Dyer, Samuel Lundy, Samuel Lundy Jr., Ephraim Darby, and Samuel Willson.[tt] vi.. RACHEL, b. 26 5m 1736; d. 27/28 11m 1770[mm]; m. in Morris Co., 10 11m 1755, JOSIAH DYER JR., b. 1 12m 1724, d. 1819, son of Josiah (John) and Hester (Brown) Dyer of Plumstead, Pa.[nn,oo]. Josiah and Rachel lived in Sussex (now Warren) Co., N.J.

Children, surname Dyer:[oo]

1. AVIS[5]; d. 6 12m. 1783[pp]
2. MARY; m. 1786, LEWIS[4] DENNIS, b. 22 4m. 1761, son of Joseph[3] (Joseph[2], Ezekial[1]) and Hannah (Lewis) Dennis[qq]; 5 ch.
3. RACHEL; m. JOHN VOAK; 10 ch.
4. SAMUEL; m. SUSANNAH POUND; 4 ch.
5. JAMES; m. (1) ------- MORE; m. (2) 1824 ELIZABETH ATKINSON; 1 ch.[rr]
6. ANNA; m. 1792, JOHN WILLSON JR.; 4 ch.

vii. JEHOADEN (1739-) ; m. in 1758 to EBENEZER WILLSON the son of Robert and Mary Lundy Willson. They had six children: (i) David (1759-) m. Mary Ware, (ii)Jonathan (1761-1856) m. Mary Stackhouse,(iii) Phoebe, m. John Wright, (iv) Edith, m. Septimus Hough, (v) Mary, (vi) Aaron.

24. viii. SAMUEL II (1745-1832) m. (1) in 1766 to MARGARET BROWN GIBBON; (2) in 1770 to ELIZABETH WILLSON. See page.....232.

James, the fourth child of Samuel and Avis, died two years after his marriage in 1767. He was 35 years old. No record of any children of James and Margaret exists. The items inventoried in the settlement of his estate establish that he was a farmer who lived near Newton in Sussex County. Margaret was appointed administratrix of his estate, but she renounced this appointment. In her stead James' brother, Samuel,Jr., was authorized to administer. Appraisments were made by Jacob Lundy, Samuel Lundy, and Benjamin Schooley. Disbursements to several persons were made: to Avis, the mother of James, Josiah Dyer, his brother-in-law, William Schooley, his uncle, Asa Schooley, Samuel Lundy Jr., Samuel Lundy, his brother-in-law, Ephriam Darby, and Samuel Willson.

Rachel, the sixth child of Samuel and Avis Schooley, married Josiah Dyer, Jr. who lived in Warren County, New Jersey. He was the son of Josiah Dyer who was of Bucks County, Pennsylvania and a grandson of John Dyer who came from England about 1700 and settled in Dyerstown, Pennsylvania. He was a minister among Friends as was also his son, Josiah, the father of Josiah, Jr.

Josiah Dyer, Jr. and Rachel Schooley had five children: (i) Mary, (ii) Rachel, (iii) Samuel, (iv) James, and (v) Anne. Mary, the first of these children married

Lewis Dennis. They had five children: Isaac, Hannah, Rachel, Joseph, and Thomas. Rachel, the second child, married John Volk. They had ten children: Lydia, James, Abraham, Isaac, Sarah, Samuel, Joseph, Mary., John, and Josiah. Samuel, the third child, married Susannah Pound. They lived at Dark Moon and had four children: Elizabeth, Josiah, Rachel, and Benjamin. James, the fourth child, was twice married: (1) to -------More, a widow from Bucks County, and (2) in 1824 to Elizabeth Atkinson. Anna, the fifth child, married John Willson, Jr. They had four children: Aaron, William, Rachel, and Robert.

Josiah and Rachel Schooley Dyer made their home in the then Sussex County, New Jersey on the road between Log Gaol and Allamuchy. Log Gaol was the county seat of Sussex County until 1765 when the name of the town changed to Johnsonburg. On the roadway at the Josiah Dyer property one may find a milestone along the stone wall which reads "2 to L.G." meaning two miles to Log Gaol. Sussex at that time included the present Sussex, Warren, and Hunterdon Counties. Log Gaol had the only "Gaol" in northern New Jersey.

Of the children of Josiah and Rachel Dyer, Mary went to Canada, Rachel went to New York, James went west, and only Samuel and Anna remained in the area. Samuel and Susannah Pound made their home at Dark Moon, and Anna lived in Allamuchy but later moved to Ohio. On the ground secured from Samuel Dyer, the Presbyterians built their meeting house, later known as The Yellow Frame Church. The one child of James and Elizabeth Atkinson Dyer, Joseph Dyer (1823-1905) married Prudence Stoddard and apparently lived in the Josiah Dyer household on the road between Johnsonburg and Allemuchy.

Everyone who reaches the age of fifty thinks from time to time of how it used to be in other days. So, a father chooses to tell his children that he remembers when milk was delivered in a horse drawn wagon, or when he went with his Dad down the street to the neighbors house and heard a radio. An indifferent response from the children does not deter one who wishes to reminisce. Such was the inclination of John Dyer of Bucks County, Pennsylvania when he wrote to his cousin, Rachel Dyer who lived at Dark Moon in Warren County, New Jersey.

"Respected Cousin Rachel Dyer,

I have never had the pleasure to see thee since thy infancy. Thy brother Josiah arrived here yesterday telling as thee would wish to know more about thy relations in these parts. My great-grandfather was John Dyer, a Minister of the Society of Friends, who came from England about the year 1700 and settled with some families who came with him and called the place Dyerstown. There were no inhabitants but Indians. He received his certificate from Abington in Philadelphia Co.., I mean from Abington Monthly Meeting in the year 1718.

His son Josiah Dyer was a Preacher also and had four sons and five daughters. Thy grandfather Josiah Dyer was the second son; my father John Dyer was the fourth son. There are many of the descendants about here....."

Another person who lived on the same road and was important to the lives of the members of the community was Dr. Samuel Kennedy. He lived near Bear Creek, not far from Josiah Dyer's home. A minister and a teacher, he was also a practitioner of medicine. Although he could prescribe roots and herbs, a doctor did not attend a woman in childbirth. The attendance at childbearing was entirely in the hands of women. It was unbecoming of a regular doctor to attend a woman in confinement.

Avis Schooley died in 1785. She had prepared a will several years before her death, dated "June twentyeth Anno Dom 1771":

> "I Avis Schooley of Newtown in the County of Sussex in the Western Division of the Province of New Jersey, being of perfect mind and memory and Knowing the mortality of my Body, do make and ordain this my last Will and Testament.
> First, I give and bequeath unto my son, Joseph.....
>
> Secondly, I give and bequeath unto my son, Benjamin.....
>
> Thirdly, I give and bequeath unto my grand daughter, Ann Simcock.....
>
> Fifthly (sic) , I give to my grand daughter, Avis Dyer.....
>
> Sixthly, I give and bequeath unto my son Samuel Schooley all and every part of the Remainder of my estate both real and personal to be his, his heirs and assigns forever. And lastly I do make and Constitute and ordain my Son Samuel Schooley my only and sole executor of this my last will and Testament.
> Signed, sealed,
> Pronounced and Declared by the said Avis Schooley as her last will and Testament by us the subscribers.

Josiah Dyer's Diary

Working on genealogy often seems like putting the pieces of a jigsaw puzzle together. The researcher sometimes forgets he is dealing with real lives, of individuals who suffered from losses, sickness, and pain. Our ancestors lived without aspirin, without anesthesia, and without a knowledge of nutrition. They knew nothing about vitamins or about the causes of disease. The pains and the joys of their lives are made real to us in the reading of a diary kept by Rachel Schooley Dyer's brother-in-law, John. His entries not only reveal the day-to-day lives of the people, but also contain genealogical significance.[a]

Author's note:

It is widely believed that Edward Jenner was the one who made the first successful innoculation against smallpox in 1796 when he was able to innoculate an eight-year-old boy with matter from the cowpox vesicles that were from the hands of a milkmaid. That this was not in fact the first successful innoculation is revealed by the realization that in 1718 there was innoculation against smallpox. Lady Mary Wortly Montague had reported methods used since ancient times in the East, a small wound being made in the arm, a few drops of smallpox pus inserted, and a walnut shell tied over the area, it being contended that a true but mild case of smallpox was produced and that 98 per cent of persons so innoculated recovered. There was also reported in Boston June 26, 1721, an example of smallpox innoculation given by Zabdiel Boylston who innoculated his son. The idea came from a slave who told of it being done in Africa. In consequence of this, Boylston's house was stoned.

Author's note:

It is probable that "some time ago" was the 19th of April of this year, 1775. There was an episode near the bridge at Concord, Massachusetts. A confrontation between the British and the Americans had been brewing for some time. There had been some preparations for it. In the evening the Patriots drilled and by candle light cast bullets or made cartridges, and yet there was no practical thought or certain knowledge that trouble would break out along the road between Boston and Concord. While there were preparations there was also the springtime. People went about their daily tasks in a normal manner. Farmers planted their crops, the women tended the gardens and their children. Although there was drilling upon the common, the reality of what was about to happen had not taken shape in the minds of the people. The faceoff came on the 19th of April 1775, in the serenity of the countryside near Concord. Each side had been carefully and repeatedly admonished not to fire first, and if that order could have been followed, nobody would have fired at all. It was the determination of each side to wait and not provoke, and then somehow it happened. Someone saw a flash in the pan or someone thought he did, and although no one knows how it happened or who fired the first shot, a war was begun, and what happened to a nation happened to individuals and to families--the Dyers and the Dennises and the Shinns and Willsons and Schooleys and Wrights were torn apart by the reverberations of that shot which was said to have been heard around the world. Some of them were Patriots, some of them remained loyal to the British, some of them fled to Canada, and some of them went to prison.

A reading of John Dyer's diary gives us a picture of the everyday life of our ancestors in the latter part of the eighteenth century. The account of death, by little understood diseases or cruel accidents, and often by suicide (hanging herself in the barn), predominates the narrative. Mobility of the population is also suggested. The frequent mention of prominent figures and political issues confirm that the Quakers were aware of national events.

12... JOHN[3] SCHOLEY (Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born on the 18th of the 12th month 1701[/2?] in Chesterfield Township, Burlington County, New Jersey,[a] and he died there in late April or early May 1748.[b] On 14 September 1727, John Scholey, weaver, was licensed to marry MARY WILLSON spinster, they both being of Burlington County.[c]

In the records of the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting it was recorded on the 5th of the 8th month 1725 [sic] that John, son of Thomas Scholey of Chesterfield Township, deceased, had been "labored with" for he "was educated in the ways of Friends [but] has proceeded in marriage with one not of our Society". In the 3d month of 1728, John Scholey, son of Thomas, "having made acknowledgement", was returned to membership at Chesterfield.[d]

Whereas John's older brothers left Burlington County, he remained, living in Chesterfield Township. He sold forty acres there on 6 February 1723, being part of the 111 acres bequeathed him in the will of his father. John was described as a weaver of Chesterfield when he sold more of this land to his brother-in-law, Benjamin Busson of Chesterfield, carpenter, on the 12th of the 6th month 1742.[e] He was on a list of freeholders in Chesterfield Township dated 15 April 1745.[f] In his will of 18 April, proved 10 May 1748, John Scholey of Chesterfield, Burlington County, weaver, named his wife Mary. To his son Jehosada he left "land I surveyed adjoining William Chapman and Godfrey Beck". Just how John came into possession of this land is not known. He also mentioned in his will, without naming them, his "other children left to the care of their mother". Executors were to be his friends Michael Newbold and Isaac DeCow. The inventory taken by Godfrey Beck and Thomas Black on 9 May 1748, showed a value of £162.11.10.[b] Some of John's land was sold the 17th of the 12th month 1748[/9] to Joseph Reckless* of Chesterfield, miller.[g] The estate of John Scholey was still unsettled when Isaac DeCow of Mansfield Township died. By his will of 18 July 1761, proved 3 May 1765, DeCow left £6 to his "well beloved Friends the Children of John Scholly late of Chesterfield Weaver deceased",to be paid by John Thompson.[h] Eber DeCow, one of the executors of his brother Isaac's estate, also became executor of John "Schooley's" estate, and he presented an account on 28 February 1766. It listed moneys paid to "Hoppins and Schooley", Mary Schooley, William Holloway, Sam'l Schooley, John Schooley, Benjamin Busson, and several others.[b] In his will, John Scholey mentioned by name only one of his "children". John had both a son Jehosada, and a daughter, Jehoshebah which name seems to be a feminine form of Jehosada. Jehoshabah's husband, John Thompson, was probably the one shown above who was to receive payments for John's children from the estate of Isaac DeCow. Jehoaden, a similar name and the fourth child of John and Mary Willson Scholey, sought a recommendation from the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting in Burlington County to the Kingwood Monthy Meeting in Huntingdon County--the area in which John's brother (No. 11) Samuel Schooley had lived. In one account[i] she is shown as a daughter of Samuel, but records of his family clearly indicate that Samuel did not have a daughter, Jehoaden.. Asa Schooley had a slightly stronger tie to this Samuel,

*The name of Joseph Reckless is a significant name to the vital records. Apparently he maintained the Burlington County Birth Records. The book which he had kept was found in a house near Crosswicks, New Jersey which was to be torn down. It found its way into the hands of a dealer in antiques in Philadelphia and was acquired by the historian H. E. Deats.

being the recipient of a payment from the estate of the latter's son James in the late 1760s. Possibly Asa went to live with his Uncle Samuel after his father's death. It is less certain that Thomas and John were sons of John, but they lived in the same area and were of the generation as his children. Of course, it is reasonable that John would have had sons named for his father and himself.

Possible Children:

i. JEHOSADA[4], b. ca. 1728? (if he was the oldest son, as suggested in his father's will); no further record found.

ii. JOHN , b. ca. 1730; perhaps the John"Scholey," about whom it was recorded in the Chesterfield MM minutes on 5 5m 1757 that he "is enlisted as a soldier and left his family in distress", Friends were appointed "to inquire and treat with him if they can get an opportunity". On the 2d of the following month the meeting was "now informed that John Scholeys wife is not in distress, But he hath gon with the armey", and he was disowned "from being a Member of our Christian Sociaty for the Breach of our Disapline in bareing of arms". Abigail Scholey, wife of John, was disowned by the Chesterfield MM on 6 7m 1758 "for going away with her husband amongst the souldiars as we are in formed".[j]

Lundys and Willsons

The Lundys and the Willsons are important contingents of the history of the Schooley family. All three of these families lived at or near the Great Meadows at Hardwick in Warren County, New Jersey in the middle 1700's, and marriages between them were common over a span of more than fifty years. Anne Schooley was married to Judge Samuel Lundy, Benjamin Schooley to Martha Lundy, Hannah Schooley to William Lundy, Azaliah Schooley to Mercy Lundy, Sarah Schooley to James Lundy, Susannah Schooley to Amos Lundy.

The Lundys and the Willsons were intermarried eight times, the Willsons and the Schooleys three times. In some measure they were all a part of an expanded family. Jacob Lundy was married to Mary Willson, George Lundy married Esther Willson, Elizabeth Lundy married Eli Willson, Ann Lundy married Jacob Willson, Mary Lundy married Robert Willson, Richard Lundy III married Ann Willson, Margaret Lundy married John Willson, Elizabeth Lundy married Gabriel Willson. They were sometimes married to the Brothertons, and the Shotwells* were intermarried with the Lundys and the Schooleys as well.

The first Lundy in America was Richard who came in 1676 and settled in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. We are told that his arrival there was occasioned by the loss of his horse. An Elder of the Society of Friends, in 1684 he married Elizabeth Bennett.

1..RICHARD[1] LUNDY married (1) in 1684, ELIZABETH BENNETT who died in 1687. Her sister Rebecca married (No. 6) John[3] Schooley Jr. Richard Lundy married (2) JANE LYON in 1691. The Richard Lundys lived at Penn's Manor.

There were no children of the first marriage of Richard Lundy. Of the second marriage there was born one son, Richard (1692-1772) who was married in 1714 to Elizabeth Large, the daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth (---) Large.

Richard II and Elizabeth Large had ten children five of whom married Willsons:

2.. RICHARD[2] LUNDY (Richard1) was born in 1692 and died in 1772. In 1714 Richard married ELIZABETH LARGE, the daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth (-----) Large.

x. MARGARET, b. 1732; d. 1776; m. 1750, JOHN WILLSON.

Richard Lundy III (-1757) was married in 1739 to Ann Willson. They had eleven children including William (1741-), and it was this William after whom Lundy's Lane in Canada was named. One of the battles of the War of 1812 was a contest for a sand bank, the crown of which would be useful as an observatory post. The road along this way was known as Lundys Lane, and the men who died there were cremated with the aid of fence rails of the Lundy brothers farms. The pile of white ashes remained there for a long time as a reminder of that dark day.

After the marriage of Samuel Lundy and Anne Schooley in 1751, the couple settled at Great Meadows at Hardwick in Warren County, New Jersey. Anne died at the age of 30, seven years after her marriage to Samuel. There were born of this marriage three sons: Isaac who m. Anna Large, George who in 1780 m. Esther Willson, and Daniel (-1818) who m. Elizabeth Laing.

Seven years after the death of Anne Schooley Lundy Samuel married a second time, in 1765, to Sarah Willets, and from this marriage there were nine children.

Children of Samuel and Sarah (Willets) Lundy:

i. ANN, b. 1766 m. (1) to JOHN PATTERSON, and (2) to John Hance.
ii. LEVI b. 1770 and d. in 1850, was m. to SARAH TOMER
iii. EDITH b. 1773, was m. to SAMUEL LAING

vii. SARAH , b. 1781, was m. to SAMUEL LUNDY* viii. AMY, b. 1785; m. JOSEPH ADAMS
ix. TAMER

One of the sons of Richard Lundy III and Ann Willson was William (1741-1829) who married Nancy Silverthorn. He has already been mentioned since he, being a Loyalist, had fled to Canada. This couple had six children, the fourth of whom was Thomas (-1823) who in 1806 married Catherine Shannon (1786-1865).. This Thomas died of spinal meningitis.

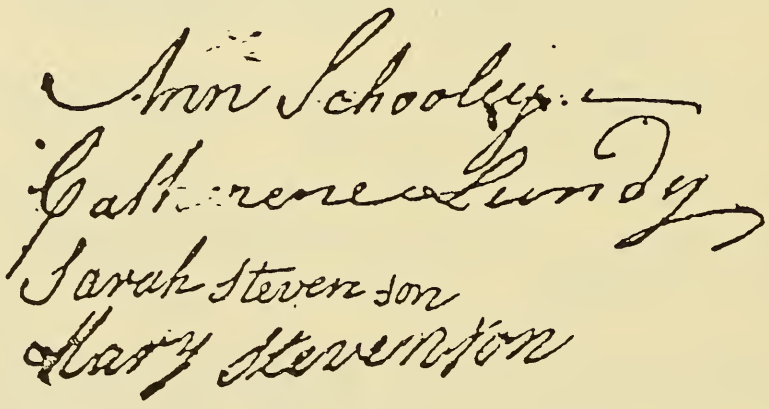
Thomas and Catherine Shannon Lundy had eight children of whom the fourth was William (1813-1877) who m. Hannah Schooley.

William and Hannah Schooley Lundy had three children: Frances, George, who m. Delia Morse, and Florence who m. Frederick Thomsen.

When George Lundy, the second son of Samuel and Ann Schooley Lundy, was married in 1780 to Esther Willson, there was a considerable gathering of the clan. The marriage took place at the Meeting House at Hardwick in Warren County, New Jersey. The first name entered upon the guest register is Ann Schooley. The bridegroom's mother's maiden name was also Ann Schooley, although she had died 22 years before this marriage took place. The Ann Schooley who entered her name first on the guest register was the bridegroom's cousin, aged 21, the daughter of Benjamin Schooley and Martha Lundy. This Ann Schooley married Jesse Dennis the following year.



Ann Schooley was the first to enter her name upon the guest register

In the same year as Samuel's second marriage to Sarah Willets a great scarcity of foodstuffs throughout the province developed. The people had eaten all their seed grain. Thus none was available for future planting, and there was danger of starvation. Sickness became widespread as a result of a diet consisting almost exclusively of meat. The Legislature voted a loan for the purchase of food and seed. Samuel Lundy, then a judge, was appointed to oversee the distribution of these commodities.

The Great Meadows comprised over six thousand acres lying along the Pequest River in the territory now occupied by Hope, Independence, Allemuchy, and Green Townships. When Sussex County was organized in 1753 the township of Newton included nearly all of the present county east of the Blue Mountains. From Hardwick have been taken Independence, Hackettstown, Allemuchy, Freilinghuysen, Stillwater, and Green. Previous to 1782 all of these lands were known as Upper and Lower Hardwick. In 1763 a new jail and courthouse were built at Newton, which became the county seat of Sussex County. Johnsonburg, earlier known as Log Gaol, lies near the center of Old Hardwick. Before 1765 Johnsonburg was the seat of justice for Sussex County. Among the early settlers of this territory were Schooleys, Dyers, Willsons, Armstrongs, and Lundys.

BENJAMIN LUNDY

The memory of one Lundy reflects honor on those who claim him as kin. Benjamin Lundy, pioneer of the antislavery movement, known as The Apostle of Freedom, was the creator of The Genius of Universal Emancipation.. He was a grand-nephew of Anne Schooley Lundy and of Benjamin Schooley.

Benjamin Lundy was born January 4, 1789 at Hardwick, New Jersey, the son of Joseph Lundy and Elizabeth Shotwell. It is said that he grew up frail, but certainly not weak. Partly deaf, he had scant formal education.

The event which had so great an effect on his life occurred in 1808 when he moved to Wheeling, Virginia (now West Virginia) where he saw slavery in its worst forms. There he witnessed endless gangs of men and women chained together who had been purchased by the slave traders in Maryland and Virginia. They were there placed on flatboats to be floated down the Ohio River and sold to planters in Kentucky and Missouri. Seeing people held in bondage had so great an affect on the life of Benjamin Lundy that he subsequently devoted his whole time to the abolishment of slavery. He is remembered as a founder of the American Abolitionist Movement.

Personal gain was not his motive. He did not work for the cause of a coming election, nor did he work in the company of other men. He fought alone in a quiet way. Benjamin Lundy grasped the evils of slavery long before the realization of this wrong penetrated the public mind.

In 1815 he organized the Union Human Society. In 1821 in Mount Pleasant, Ohio, he established an antislavery paper entitled The Genius of Universal Emancipation.. At first it had but six subscribers. For these activities he was bitterly denounced by many. In 1827 he was assaulted and seriously injured by a slave trader. In 1836 he was in Philadelphia where he established a new antislvaery weekly, The National Enquirer which under the editorship of Lundy's successor, John Greenleaf Whittier, became the Pennsylvania Freeman.

Benjamin Lundy then decided to go west with his family and resume the publication of The Genius. His personal belongings were placed in his office in preperation for the westward trek. After a violent meeting an angry mob burned the building. All of his personal property, as well as his publications and other matters relating to The Genius, were destroyed in the flames.

He moved then to Illinois where he made efforts to resume The Genius settling at Lowell where he built a house and a printing office in the summer of 1839. In August he was taken with a slight fever and died a few days later on August 22, 1839.

He is buried in the Burying Ground of Clear Creek Friends Meeting. The stone which marked his grave was modest and evidently in danger of sinking out of sight. If this threat has been rescued, it is well.

Ten years after Eli Whitney had invented the cotton gin which made slavery profitable, Benjamin Lundy was preaching a doctrine that was to make it impossible. The Emancipation Proclamation was pronounced 24 years after his death on January 1, 1863, and it converted the Civil War into a crusade against slavery. The victory of his cause was delayed until long after his death, but the memory of his strivings should be cherished by all who live free.

13... JOHN[4] SCHOLEY (John[3-2] ?Robert[1]) was born on the 22d day of the 11th month 1714/5 in Burlington County, New Jersey,[a] probably in Springfield Township, and he died in New Hanover Township, Burlington County, between 15 December 1756 and 4 February 1757.[b] In or after September 1743 "John Scholey, Jr." married RACHEL[4] WRIGHT, probably in Chesterfield, Burlington County.[c] She died between 1774 and April 1779, probably in New Hanover Township, Burlington County, the daughter of Samuel[3] (Joshua[2-1]) and Sarah (Wright) Wright.[d] That John was styled "Jr." was no doubt to distinguish him from his older cousin, (No. 12) John[3] Scholey, who also lived in Chesterfield Township. In his will of 28 November 1762, Samuel Wright of New Hanover Township, Burlington County, tanner, named his (second) wife Rebeckah and bequeathed to his daughter Rachel "Scholly", during her widowhood, two tracts of land and a share of the profits in the home plantation, £50, and a share of the residue. She was also named one of the executors. To his granddaughter Frances Schooley, Samuel Wright left a share of two tracts "in the mountain".[e] Rachel had been remembered earlier in the will of her brother-in-law William Emley of Kingwood Township, Hunterdon County, New Jersey, tanner, dated 28 March 1751.[f]

John Scholey of New Hanover, Burlington County, advertised in the Pennsylvania Gazette on 5 November 1741 that his gelding had been stolen and he offered a reward of twenty shillings for its return.[g*] Three years later, on 31 May 1744, he placed another notice in that newspaper calling attention to a runaway servant:

* It may be noted that William Penn purchased 150,000 acres of land for half this amount!

> RUN away the 27th Instant, from John Scholey of New-Hanover, Burlington County, an Irish Servant Man, named Michael Dowdle, aged about 20 Years...pretty much pockfretten, has his Hair cut off. He formerly belonged to William Cook.[h]

Accounts of runaway servants were frequently found in the newspapers. Persons who had been brought from England and other places, often against their will, were sold for a term of years into a modified system of slavery to pay for their passage across the ocean. When these servants once gained a foothold in the New World, they often outstripped in position and wealth the masters who had once owned them.

On 27 February 1756, John and Rachel Scholey witnessed the will of John Warren of Hanover, Burlington County. John was one of the appraisers who took the inventory of Warren's estate the following 14 April.[i] John Scholey of Hanover Township, Burlington County, yeoman, "Weak of Body", made his will on the 15th of the 12th month 1756, naming his wife Rachel executrix. Daughter Frances, under twenty-one, was to have everything after Rachel's death. If Frances died without issue, John's real estate was to be sold by his brother Jonathan Scholey and his sisters Mary Black, Isabel Ridgway, Rebeckah Wright, and Sarah Horner, with the proceeds divided among their children and the children of Susannah Newbold, deceased. Michael Newbold and Anthony Sykes took an inventory on 4 February 1757, and it showed the estate worth £525.4.4, including bonds and book debts of £131.15.7 and a "servant lad" valued at £15. The will was proved 7 February 1757, Rachel Scholey, "being one of the People called Quakers", giving her "solemn afirmacon" to execute the estate.[b]

"Rachael" Schooley was taxed in New Hanover Township in 1774 with sixty-six acres of land and five cattle.[j] She probably died before April 1779, for on the 8th of that month, the 200-acre plantation of her son-in-law John Leonard of Upper Freehold, "whereon the widow Schooley lived, in Hanover township", was to be sold.[k]

Child: FRANCES[5], b. ca. 1745?; d. probably in Burlington, N.J., bet. 25 Mar. and 25 Nov. 1801. She was a resident of Burlington 26 May 1769, when she took out a marriage lic. with JOHN LEONARD, a widowed farmer of Upper Freehold, Monmouth Co., N.J., who was b. in N.J., d. in exile in Nova Scotia after 1787 and who by his 1st wife MAGDALEN RICHE/RITCHIE had 5 ch.[n]

In June 1776 John Leonard was charged before the Provincial Congress in Trenton, N.J., for influencing others against the "measures of Congress", and he gave bond for £500 to "remain quite". But in December of that year he and about a hundred friends joined the British Army in Trenton. His estate in Monmouth Co., including 140 acres near New Brunswick, was forfeited 15 May 1779, and his 200 acres in New Hanover Twp., Burlington Co., were also sold that year.

In 1786 John and two sons were in Maugerville , N.B., while Frances was in Hanover, N.J., and the following year he was intending to send for her.[k,n] Frances Leonard of the City and County of Burlington left a will dated 25 Mar. 1801, in which she named friends Robert Montgomery, Sr. and John Lawrance, both of Freehold, Monmouth Co., to whom she left her house and lot in the city fronting the Delaware River, as well as household items, for the use and benefit of her dau., Rebecca, wife of John Spencer. To her kinswoman Sarah Guild she left $20 and a Negro woman Celia valued at $800. Son Samuel was to have the remainder of the estate. The will was proved 25 Nov. 1801.[1]

14... JONATHAN[4] SCHOOLEY (John[3-2], ?Robert[1]) was born the 3d of the 8th month 1729 in Burlington County, New Jersey,[a] probably in Springfield Township, and he died before 14 December 1758,[b] probably in Springfield Township. Jonathan married MARY[4] WRIGHT in 1751, after the 1st of the 2d month, when he was granted a certificate by the Burlington Monthly Meeting to the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting to marry.[c] Mary was born 10 July 1730 and died 11 May 1795, the daughter of John[3] (?Samuel[2], Joshua[1]) and Abigail (Crispin) Wright of Wrightstown, sister of Samuel Wright who married Jonathan's sister Mary (Schooley) (Barton) Black, and possibly sister of Joseph Wright who married Jonathan's sister Rebecca Schooley.[d,e] In his will of 1 December 1732, proved 13 February 1732[/3], John Wright of Burlington County mentioned his wife Abigail, son Samuel, and daughter Mary (under age).[f]

The Schooleys may have stayed in the Chesterfield area for a few years, for it was not until the 5th of the 6th month 1754 that Mary, wife of Jonathan, was received at the Burlington Monthly Meeting from the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting.g

The inventory of the estate of Jonathan Scholey of Springfield Township, Burlington County, New Jersey, was taken 14 December 1758 by Daniel Doughty, William Stockton, and Jonathan Hough. Five days later Jonathan's widow Mary was bonded as administratrix, with Stockton and Hough, both of Burlington County, as bondsmen. The inventory included "purse and apparel", a silver watch, clock, books, bills and bonds, and two Negro children -- "worth to them that incline to buy or keep slaves"-- £20, the total value being £734.7.5.b The land of the former heirs of Jonathan "Scholy" was mentioned as a boundary in a March 1767 deed of twelve acres in Springfield from John Monrow to Ebenezer Autram.[h] After Jonathan's death, Mary married (2) JOB[3] RIDGWAY, between the 2d of the 11th month and the 7th of the 12th month 1761.[i] Job, who was born about 1729 and died in Burlington County before 21 August 1795, was the son of Job[2] (Richard[1]) and Rebecca (Butcher) Ridgway. He and Mary had three children: Rebecca (1762), Job (1764), and Jonathan (1769). Administration on the estate of Job Ridgway of Burlington County was granted 21 August 1795 to Mary Ridgway, with Henry Ridgway as bondsman.[e,j] If Mary (Wright) (Schooley) Ridgway died in May of 1775, she was not the Mary who administered Job Ridgway's estate.

Jonathan and Mary Wright Schooley had two children: (i. and ii. below):

i. ELIZABETH[5], b. ca. 1752; m. in Burlington Co., bet. 7 9m and 5 10m 1772, DANIEL DOUGHTY[7] SMITH,[k] b. 29 July 1751, d. 27 July 1827, son of William Lovett[6] (Richard[5], Samuel[4], Richard[3-2], William[1]) and Mary (Doughty) Smith and brother of Samuel who m. Childhood in the Quaker Family

There is a poverty of literature about childlife in colonial days, and it is especially difficult for us to learn how it was for children in Quaker families. Some descriptions about nursing, baby talk and weaning, the first steps, and that sort of thing do exist, but even this information is not written before 1750. James Logan in a letter written in 1725 said of his four children that "they are like their neighbors". That was his total comment. That their lives were full of rigors and hazards we may be certain. If sickness did not kill them, the remedies of the doctors might. It is estimated that 210 out of 1000 children died before the age of one, that 350 of each 1000 died before the age of five, and that, indeed, only 40 of 100 children lived to reach the age of sixteen. Only 25 of 100 would be alive at twenty-six. The births of most infants were attended by midwives rather than physicians. Their limited knowledge may have been an asset.

John Locke, in Thoughts on Education published in 1690, suggested that children should have their feet toughened by constant immersion in cold water and by having them wear thin soled shoes. It was not intended that they should be molly-coddled and brought up weak.

Quaker mothers were prohibited from singing lullabys or other songs to their infants, but perhaps cooing and humming a little might have been allowed. The father as head of the household was expected to be stern and reserved. Children were subjected to a plain style of life from an early age. Too many play-things were trifles which might lead to false values. One of the objectives of education was "the subjugation of the will" so that "every perverse passion could be checked". Every expression of anger and the raising of voices beyond due bounds was a subject of rebuke. The Quaker child was to associate only with other Quaker children, to attend only Quaker meetings, go to a Quaker school, be taught by a Quaker teacher. All of this was designed to protect him against the profane world.

An examiniation of George Fox's primer is enlightening. His was the first one employed in American Quaker schools. It listed the ABCs and gave examples of words in alphabetical order, the first words being Abolished, Abomination, Absence. Then after a few pages of such words five or six-year-old children were expected to learn by rote from their first reading lessons which said "Christ is the Truth", "Christ is the Light", "Christ is my way", "Christ is my life", "Christ is my Savior", "Christ is my hope of glory". Apparently the Bible and a primer were the only books permitted in Quakers schools. Francis Pastorius produced a primer in 1698 which listed eighty sins beginning with adultery and ending with youthful lusts. If the schoolmaster could have explained the meanings of concupiscience, extortion, and fornication, it must have been a memorable lesson!

From the earliest times a concern of parents was to keep a watchful eye over what was going on in the school. John Stubbs had analyzed several textbooks that were used in teaching children and found them full of "vulgar expressions" such as "Yea, so God help me" or "as God love me a comly fellow". I am sure he could not have dreamed that in the future years beyond his own time someone was going to come up with such a vulgar expression as "so's your old man" and "twenty-three skidoo".

What about the Quaker meeting? How was it expected that one was to keep an eight-year-old boy sitting quietly for two hours twice every Sunday? The record shows that the attempts were futile. Boys and girls were separated and the door between them was padlocked. There were warnings to make no disagreeable scraping sounds, no rubbing of their feet against the floor or seats, no use of unbecoming gestures or motions of any part of their body, no disturbing or offending any person, no biting of nails or pinching fingers, and no lolling around and stretching or yawning, spitting, or staring.

15... WIILLIAM[4] SCHOOLEY (?William[3], Robert[2-1]) was born about 1704 in Burlington County, New Jersey,[a] and he died between 9 and 16 April 1761, probably in Greenwich, Sussex (now Warren) County, New Jersey.[b] That he was probably the son of (No. 7) William Scholey is partly suggested by his and his son John's association with persons named Hixson. (No. 7) William Sr. probably married (2) Prisselah Hixson in 1715.[c] William probably married about 1730, and perhaps his wife was a Bidleman, as his sons were associated with persons of that name. In 1739, William Schooley was granted land in Greenwich Township, Hunterdon County, New Jersey. That same year this township became part of the newly formed Morris County and in 1753 part of Sussex County; Greenwich is now in Warren County. This property, located about two miles from the ferry in Easton, Pennsylvania,[d] was sold by William's son John in 1790 and 1800.[e] It was probably John's son John Schooley who in 1805 purchased his uncle Judiah's fifth part of William's estate from Judiah's widow and children.[f] This William Schooley has been confused with his cousin (No. 10) William Schooley. He may have been the "cousin William Scholy" named in the 1731 will of Joseph Pancoast, Jr., of Mansfield Township, Burlington County.[g] He was likely the William Schooley who with Richard Lundy and five others was appointed to divide Sussex County into precincts after it was set off from Morris County in 1753.[h] And it was doubtless this same William who was a member of the Sussex County Grand Jury in 1754, 1755, and 1757.[i] By his will of 9 April 1761, William "Scholey" of Greenwich Township, Sussex County, yeoman, being in poor health, left his "wife" a third of his moveable estate and a "living off the plantation". To his oldest son [probably Judiah] he left £10 more than the others, who could keep the plantation until William's brother Robert's son came of age. If there was anything coming from his brother Joseph's estate, William's three daughters were to have a third. Son John was to receive the plantation on Marvel Hill "whereon Joshua Wege now lives". William named as executors Alexander White and his son John Scholey, and the will, proved 5 May 1761, was witnessed by David "Hays", Joseph Hixson, and Margaret White. An inventory of the estate, made 16 April 1761 by David "Hayes" and Joseph Hixson, showed a value of $143.03, and an account was filed by the executors on 17 May 1764.[b]

j. In The Michael Schoemaker Book, 799, 810, it is suggested William was the father of Andrew and William Schooley of Greenwich, Loyalists during the American Revolution. William named no such sons in his will, and furthermore his son Judiah's widow sold the latter's fifth share of William's estate, which is in agreement with the five children William mentioned in his will. Andrew and William may have been sons of William's brother (No. 16) Robert Schooley.

16... ROBERT[4] SCHOOLEY (?William[3], Robert[2-1]) was perhaps born in Burlington County, New Jersey, about 1710, and he was living 9 April 1761, possibly in Sussex County, New Jersey, when he and a son were mentioned in the will of his brother William.[a] No other information about Robert and his family has been discovered, although he may have been the father of the Andrew and William Schooley shown below.

Possible Children:[b]

i. ?ANDREW[5] living unm. in Digby, N.S., in May 1784.[c] Andrew and [his brother?] William Schooley were British sympathizers during the American Revolution. From 1777 to 1783 Andrew served as a private and later sergeant in the 1st Battalion of New Jersey Volunteers, with all or most of his service on Staten Island, N.Y.[d] Andrew and William were charged with aiding the British Army and their Sussex County property seized.[e] Their land, described as one undivided 2/6 parts of 150 acres, "whereon John Scholey now lives", about 2 miles from the Easton Ferry, was ordered to be sold on 11 May 1781.[f] Perhaps this was the plantation mentioned in the will of their uncle (No. 15) William

Schooley. Andrew Schooley, late of Greenwich, Sussex County, N.J., made a deposition in Annapolis, N.S., 7 Jan. 1784, stating he was a near neighbor of Richard Bowlsby of Sussex Co., N.J., formerly a justice of the peace there, who was making a claim for relief.g

17... SAMUEL[4] SCHOOLEY (?Robert[3-1]) was born about 1705-1708, possibly in Burlington County, New Jersey,[a] and he died between 12 February 1777 and 12 November 1782, probably in Loudoun County, Virginia.[b] Samuel married SARAH -------, possibly in Hunterdon County, New Jersey, about 1725. It is not certain she was his only wife, the earliest record of her being in 1761. The years of birth of Samuel's children are only approximated. There is a gap between Mary, born about 1731, and Phebe, born about 1737, during which time Samuel may have married Sarah as a second wife. Sarah was living 10 May 1769 when Samuel made his will.[b] On the 11th of the 10th month 1757, Samuel Schooley requested to be received as a member of the Kingwood Monthly Meeting of Friends in Hunterdon County. Those appointed to inquire into his conduct reported favorably and on the 8th of the 12th month the meeting received "him under the care and notice of this religious society in unity".[c] There is no mention of Samuel's wife or wives or his children in the Kingwood records. Son John became a Quaker in Virginia and son Samuel seems not to have been a Friend. A few years later the Schooleys left New Jersey for Virginia, Samuel "Senior", his wife Sarah, and daughters, Ann Schooley and Phebe Myers (wife of Joseph), being received by the Fairfax Monthly Meeting in Loudoun County from Kingwood on the 30th of the 5th month 1761. Daughter Mary, her husband Jonathan Myers, and their three children were received at the same time.[d] Samuel had apparently followed his son William to Virginia. There is no record of either Samuel or William in the Fairfax Meeting prior to 1760.[e]

Samuel Schooley of Loudoun County leased a plantation of 150 acres in Loudoun County from George William Fairfax on 1 May 1762, "TO HAVE AND TO HOLD...during the natural lives of John Schooley, his son, Elisha and William Schooley, sons of the said John Schooley" and of them the one who lived longest to yield and pay unto the said George W. Fairfax "yearly and every year on the first day of May the rent by sum of three pounds current money of Virginia, to be discharged in cash or tobacco at 10/ per pound, or wheat at 2/6 per bushel to be delivered at some landing on the navigable part of the Potommack River ....". Samuel and his heirs also had liberty at the death of any two of the survivors aforesaid to nominate two other persons paying thirty shillings sterling for renewing each person's life, provided that "he or they planted at least one hundred good apple trees at least thirty feet distant from each other, and keep them all in good repair during the time of tenancy, provided also that no subtenant be admitted by the said Samuel Schooley....". Besides maintaining the property, Samuel was to "cause to be built a dwelling house at least twenty feet long & sixteen feet wide within three years from this date & other such houses as his way of husbandry may require.." [f] Samuel was taxed in Shelburne Parish of Loudoun County in 1771.[g] In his will dated 10 May 1769 and proved 12 November 1782, Samuel Schooley of Loudoun County, planter, bequeathed to his wife Sarah "the plantation and house which I hold by lease from George Fairfax" in Loudoun County, and after her death it was to go to his son John. John was also to pay ten pounds each to Samuel's daughters, Mary Myers and Ann Hague, within three years after their father's death. To his other children, Samuel Schooley, William Schooley, and Phoebe Myers, Samuel left ten pounds each, noting that the two sons already had these sums "in hand paid before the sealing of these presents". Wife Sarah was also to have the moveable estate and sons John and William were named executors. By a codicil of 12 February 1777, Samuel changed the legacy to daughter Phoebe, directing she be paid her ten pounds "after her other sisters".[b] Whether Sarah Schooley survived Samuel is not known.

18... MICHAEL[4] SCHOOLEY (?Thomas[3-2], ?Robert[1]) was born about 1727[a] in New Jersey, possibly in Hunterdon County, and he died between 9 September 1775 and 24 August 1778, probably in Bridgewater, Somerset County, New Jersey.[b] Michael Schooley may have married HANNAH ANDERSON, daughter of William and Mary (----) Anderson of Bound Brook, Somerset County, New Jersey.[c] She died between 15 August and 13 October 1780, probably in Bridgewater.[b,d] Michael Schooley was living in Somerset County as early as December 1756, when he gave ten shillings toward construction of a new building for the Lutheran Church in Bedminster Township.[e] Michael owned land in Bridgewater Township, Somerset County, on the Middlebrook Mountain Road, purchased at an unknown date from David McKinney. On 28 March 1786, some time after Michael's death, this land was sold to Dr. Clarkson Freeman.[f] Michael was apparently living in Middlebrook, New Jersey, in 1761, when he possibly had a son born there.[g] On 6 March 1765 Michael Schooley and Thomas Irwin inventoried the estate of John Campbell of Somerset County.[h] Later that year, on 21 October, Michael sued Daniel McDonald over a dispute "on excepting an order from Arthur Jarvis". He was in court again the following 3 May, when subpoenaed in a dispute case, and in May 1769 he was sued for a debt by the assigners of James Lesley.[i] Michael Schooley of Somerset County signed as a bondsman for the estate of Sarah Daniels of that county on 9 September 1775.[j] Hannah Schooley of Bound Brook, Somerset County, was appointed administratrix of the estate of Michael Schooley of Bridgewater, Somerset County on 24 August 1778. Included in the inventory, taken 4 September 1778 by John Ross and John Miller, and amounting to £938.19.3, was mention of Michael's "Services in the Militia last June 1778, a mare in the hands of General Wayne", and a "certificate from the D. Q. M. General for 32 days service".[b] Hannah was taxed in Bridgewater Township as "H. Schooley" in September 1779, with fifty-five acres, one cow, and three pigs, valued at £450.[k] She submitted an account of Michael's estate on 15 August 1780,[b] but she died before 13 October, when Alexander Kirkpatrick and Mathew McDowel of Somerset County were appointed to administer the estate of Hannah "Scouly" of Somerset County.[d] On 25 October 1780, John Miller and Thomas McElrath submitted an inventory of £77.16.0 for the estate of Michael Schooley, "being the goods of Hannah Schooley, deceased".[b]

19... ROBERT[4] SCHOOLEY (William[3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born the 9th day of the 6th month 1718,[a*] probably in Chesterfield Township, Burlington County, New Jersey, and he died in 1809[b] (or 1804?[c]). The place of his death has not been determined. On the 14th day of the 8th month 1747 Robert married ELIZABETH YOUNG in Woodbridge, New Jersey, both being of Morris County.[d] It is stated in one account that Robert married a second time, to another Elizabeth, who outlived him twenty-six years and by whom he had four more children.[c] On the

* This was also the year that William Penn died leaving an estate of 21 million acres.

9th of the 1st month 1752, Robert Schooley and his wife Elizabeth were received at the Kingwood Monthly Meeting of Friends in Hunterdon County, New Jersey, from the Woodbridge Monthly Meeting. The following year, on the 8th of the 11th month, they were granted a certificate back to Woodbridge.[e] Robert Schooley owned 55 acres in Mendham (now Randolph) Township, Morris County, in 1757, to which he added by purchase the following year, 304 acres to the southwest of his land, being lot 11 of the Kirkbride property and bordering land of Henry Brotherton.[f]

At the Woodbridge Monthly Meeting on the 19th of the 4th month 1758, a request was made for a meetinghouse at Mendham, to be built on land belonging to Robert Schooley. Plans were to be drawn to "leigh" the plans before the next meeting. It was "thought proper that it should be 26 feet wide and 25 long and that it would cost 73 pounds or Sumthing over...." James Brotherton and Jacob Laing were appointed to take a deed and James Brotherton was to collect the subscription. Robert was a member of those appointed "to conclude on the size of ye house & the measurement of building it, the quantity of lands, and other considerations". On the 5th of the 8th month 1758, Robert Schooley of Mendham, yeoman, for £4, sold one acre to Jacob Laing and James Brotherton, who were to hold it in trust for the site of the meetinghouse.[g]

Robert Schooley started the first grist mill in Mendham (now Randolph) Township, perhaps with his father. On 28 June 1766 he mortgaged to Jacob Ford of Morristown, 9 8/10 acres, being "three fourths of the lot on which the forge stood and part of land Josiah Bemer and William Howard purchased from Joseph Prudden". Two years later Robert Schooley of Mendham, bloomer, sold a quarter interest in "Schooley's Forge" to Joseph Jackson and his son Stephen.[h]

Little else is known about Robert Schooley. He sued John Throckmorton in December 1762 for £40.[i] He may have been the Robert Schooley for whom Thomas Vail was appointed in 1774 by the Rahway Monthly Meeting "to enquire and make out a Certificate of Removal".[j] Robert was named in the will of his nephew Richard Schooley of Byram Township, Sussex County, New Jersey, dated 18 March 1801.[k]

Land in Morris Co. sold by Richard Schooley to Thomas Dell was recorded in 1818.[i] By 18 Feb. 1801 he was living in Byram Twp., Sussex Co., when his land was mentioned in the will of Abijah Chambers of Byram Twp., Sussex Co.[j] By his own will of 18 Mar. 1801, proved 12 Oct.1805, Richard Schooley of Byram Twp., Sussex Co., left his plantation of 80 acres in Byram Twp. to cousin Richard Brotherton, then under 21. James, son of John Brotherton, was to have half of the 100-acre ash swamp "toward the Chestnut ridge", the other half going to Mary and Elizabeth, daughters of William Brotherton, when Elizabeth reached 21. To his uncle Robert Schooley and his son Richard he left $3.00 each. Also mentioned in the will was his cousin Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Dell, and William Brotherton and Richard Dell were named executors. The inventory of Richard's estate showed a value of $213.83.[g]

21... ISAAC[4] SHOOLEY (William[3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born about 1737,[a] probably in what is now Morris County, New Jersey, and he was living in Mendham (now Randolph?) Township, Morris County, in 1780.[b] Isaac married MARY JONES[c] before the 15th of the 6th month 1763, when he was charged by the Mendham Preparative Meeting of Friends with marriage contrary to discipline; he was disowned the 21st of the 9th month.[d] No other record of Isaac and Mary Schooley has been found.

Friends believed that only those in a sanctified state --- -- and that required being a Quaker --- could have godly union, that only God could join in wedlock, that the Meeting should participate in all formalities, and that the inward light formed the bond of unity. Of course, both parties to a wedding had to be Quakers, and if it were not so, disownment resulted. Clearly Mary Jones was not a Quaker. Disownment could be as quick for marrying a Presbyterian as for committing adultery. This practice which became more and more common in time greatly weakened the Friends Society.

The Quakers

In tracing the annals of the Schooley family it is fitting to comment about George Fox and the religious Society of Friends. Although not all of the Schooleys were Quakers, numbers of them became allied with Quakerism from the time of its founding. For the first several years the new society was concentrated in the English counties neighboring upon Yorkshire, where John, Robert, and Thomas Scholey lived before coming to America. Powerful religious principles dominated the lives of its followers.

The founder of Quakerism, George Fox, was born in Leicestershire in 1624, the son of a weaver. At an early age and with scanty education he became a lay preacher. George Fox was a visionary, a man obsessed. He had exalted emotional sensibility, fell into trances, heard voices, and saw visions. When he visited the town of Lichfield he wrote: "there seemed to me to be a channel of blood running down the street and the marketplace appeared like a pool of blood". One may conclude that Fox's mind was unsound, yet everyone who met him felt his superior power. His aim was not to found a new sect or to gather disciples, but to purify the church of errors. The basis of his teachings was that "each man is answerable to God alone, that the Holy Spirit is present in every soul, that the spirit of God shines in every man's breast and it joins the whole human race in the unity of equal rights". These concepts were intended to return mankind to the original gospel.

Even while it is observed that the founder of the society was of unsound mind, the Quaker religion is impossible to overpraise. The singular glory of the Society of Friends was that they were the first to awaken to the evils of slavery. The whole of Quakerism is embodied in about two simple points: complete tolerance and complete equality.

It sounds simple enough but these two basic tenets brought to the Quakers incredible suffering, deprivation, ostracism, prison, and even death. The Quakers were much impressed by the importance of their view and wanted, of course, to have their doctrine accepted by others. They were under the influence of the Inner Light. Their love of their fellow men flowed from them. For them religion was not a dull habit; it was an acute fever. They were the true extremists. The principle of equality meant that they would not take off their hats in the presence of the magistrates or anyone else. They would not use the plural pronoun of dignity. They rejected the communion of bread and wine. They rejected baptism. They were literal to an extreme. The injunction "swear not" was for them a prohibition against judicial oath. The commandment "thou shalt not kill" led to the condemnation of all warfare, yet they were unduly aggressive in spreading the word, sometimes invading the pulpit of others to harangue the congregation. To many they seemed like vagrant ranters. They refused to pay tithes, refused to testify under oath, and would not bow even before the king. For these activities they were constantly at odds with the law. It was not what they preached as much as how they preached.

Their breaches of custom and etiquette made them suspect in every quarter. It seems a small matter to us that the Quakers used the terms thee and thou when addressing others. But traditionally those terms were reserved for speaking to one's family or servants, though not when speaking to one's father, and certainly not in a session of court. But the Quakers would not forbear. To them all men and women were equal, and all must be addressed in the same way. To them many social conventions were a lie and a sham, and they must all be given up so that all their acts would be in accord with their beliefs. Not even a slight inconsistency between profession and deed should exist. The Quakers had hard battles to wage against worldliness and insincerity, and they might have succeeded with much less pain to themselves had they not been so dogged in their refusal to heed customs and conventions. It was their theeing and thouing and not doffing their hats nor acknowleding titles that really antagonized the magistrates. Those qualities that the Quakers saw as virtue were by others labelled fault. The Quaker's religion was called fanaticism, his courage was called stubbornness, his simplicity called ignorance, and his freedom of conscience called rebellion.

In England and all over Europe the Quakers were exposed to persecution, and in America also, where laws were passed to suppress them. While New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Rhode Island were tolerant and invited the Quakers to settle, Massachusetts held quite different views. There they were regarded as an abominable sect. Consequently they were jailed, kept in dungeons, whipped, fined, and exiled. But the Quakers did not seek to avoid persecution; they courted it.

The following incident indicates the hatred and suspicion that awaited Quakers elsewhere in the Colonies. Mary Fisher and Ann Austin made their way from Barbados to Massachusetts in the fifth month of 1656. News of their arrival no sooner reached the ears of the authorities than they were ordered detained on ship. Their books were taken from them. These two quiet women known by the name of Quakers, held to have heretical notions and blasphemous opinions, were put into prison. When a ship could carry them back to Barbados, they were returned there.

A few days after Mary Fisher and Ann Austin were sent back to Barbados, eight more Quakers came to Boston. The governors might have been less afrighted had they been invaded by an army. The General Court fixed a fine at 100 pounds for anyone who should bring in a Quaker, and the Quaker himself should be whipped. By a later enactment a Quaker was in danger of having his tongue bored with a hot iron, or his ears cut off, then he was to be banished. Although Connecticut had severe laws against the Quakers, Massachusetts alone prescribed the death penalty. In September 1659, Mary Dyer, William Robinson, and Marmaduke Stevenson came to Boston, courting martyrdom. They were arrested and brought before the Court. When they tried to remonstrate, handkerchiefs were stuffed into their mouths, and when one of them tried to object, he was sentenced to receive 20 lashes. Although they were banished and ordered not to return, they nevertheless felt compelled to come back. Evidently they expected the most severe punishment because they brought with them linen to wrap the bodies of those who were to die. They were, of course, arrested again. They were taken before Judge Endicott who pronounced sentence upon them: "we have made many laws and endeavored by several ways to keep you from us, and neither whipping nor imprisonment, nor cutting off ears, nor banishment on pain of death will keep you from among us". And so he pronounced the sentence of death. On the appointed day they walked hand in hand to the place of execution on the Boston Common, where today one may see a monument erected to the memory of the martyrdom of Mary Dyer.

Of course, eventually all these laws against the liberty of Quakers were amended and cancelled, but it was in West New Jersey and Pennsylvania that true freedom in religion was allowed, not because the law was written with sympathy toward Quakers, but because the law was written by Quakers.

Friends' Meeting House Burlington, New Jersey

22... JOSEPH[4] SCHOOLEY (Samuel[3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born the 19th of the 11th month [1730?],[a] probably in Washington Township, Morris County (then Lebanon Township, Hunterdon County), New Jersey, and he died on the 10th of the 2d month 1778,[b] probably in Nottingham Township, Burlington County (now Hamilton Township, Mercer County), New Jersey.

Joseph Schooley was of Nottingham Township when on the 11th of the 11th month 1756 he married SARAH[5] BROWN at the Chesterfield Meeting of Friends.[c-e] She was born, probably in Nottingham Township, the 2d of the 10th month 1737 and was buried the 2d of the 6th month 1811, aged 73 years 8 months, the daughter of Preserve[4] (Preserve[3]*, Abraham[2], Nicholas[1]) and Mary (French) Brown of Nottingham Township and niece of Elizabeth French who married (No. 10) William Schooley.[d,e] In his will of 13 June 1759, proved 11 December 1760, Preserve Brown of Nottingham, Burlington County, shopkeeper, named his wife Mary and his daughter Sarah "Scholey", bequeathing to the latter land in Nottingham and houses and lots in Chesterfield.[f] Mary Brown of Chesterfield Township, Burlington County, perhaps a niece of Sarah, left a will dated 28 August 1783 and proved 28 January 178[4], by which she bequeathed some goods to Mary Thorn, daughter of Joseph and Sarah Schooley.[g]

Unlike his brothers who made their homes on the frontiers up north in Morris and Sussex counties, Joseph lived in Burlington County. Quaker meeting records show nothing about his paternity, but proof that he was the Joseph who returned to the area of his father's birth is found in a record of 1809, by which a "resurvey of lands for James Schooley, a son of Joseph and grandson of Samuel", was required.[h]

* The name Preserve is reported in the Book of Names as Preserved and was used much in earlier days. It was used by the Fish family, Preserved Fish.

Joseph "Scholey" had settled in Burlington County by 1 October 1754, when he witnessed the will of Sarah Murfin of Nottingham, widow.[i] On 13 December 1766 Joseph "Scholey" witnessed the will of William Murfin of Nottingham Township, and with Isaiah Robins, he took the inventory of Murfin's estate on 1 November 1771.[j] This involvement with the Murfins probably indicates the Joseph Schooleys lived in the Lawrie's Hill neighborhood of Nottingham Township.[k]

Joseph was taxed as a freeholder in Nottingham in 1758 and 1772, and in 1762, 1763, 1764, and 1770 he was a member of the town committee.[k] In 1773 Joseph "Scholey" was taxed there with 233 acres and five cattle.[l] Joseph "Scholey" and Joseph Clayton inventoried the estate of Ann Burton of Burlington County on 29 February 1768.[m] Joseph Schooley is mentioned as one of the trustees for the Friends' burial ground of one and a half acres at Burlington on the 28th of the 9th month 1770.[n]

In 1762 Joseph was deeded by his brother-in-law William Brown of Nottingham Township, yeoman, four acres, which William had received by the terms of the will of his father.[o] On 13 December 1766, Davis Cole of Nottingham, yeoman, conveyed for £400 to Joseph Schooley of the same place, two tracts in the township amounting to 185 acres.[k,p] In the March 19, 1767 issue of the Pennsylvania Gazette, Abia Brown, Joseph's brother-in-law, advertised for sale one hundred acres of land with a mill and other improvements, along the river from Trenton to Crosswicks. Interested persons were to "apply to Joseph Schooley, living near the said premises" or to Abia Brown at Sharp's iron works in Sussex County, New Jersey.[q] Abia Brown was a prominent man of affairs. The governor of the colony appointed him a justice of the peace in Sussex County in 1772 and soon after he was a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1774. He was also a member of the New Jersey Assembly for Sussex County in 1777.[o] Joseph Schooley was a cooper,[o] a maker of barrels. The trade demanded exacting requirements.

Cook, "Chesterfield Monthly Meeting Burlington County, New Jersey Intentions of Marriage and Certificates of Removal 1685-1756" [1970], Colls. GSP, n.p.). Unfortunately, the parents' names are not shown. It is suggested in the Lundy Fam., 453, that Joseph, son of Samuel, was the one of Windsor, Middlesex Co., whose will was proved in 1761 and that this Joseph was the father of (No. 29) James of Burlington .

23...BENJAMIN[4] SCHOOLEY (Samuel[3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born the 24th of the 4th month 1733, probably in what is now Washington Township, Morris County (then Lebanon Township, Hunterdon County), New Jersey, and he died in Newton Twonship, Sussex County, New Jersey, the 17th day of the 12th month 1809.[a-e] Benjamin Schooley of "Newtown", Sussex County, was married in Hardwick Township, Sussex (now Warren) County, New Jersey, on the 21st of the 5th month 1755 to MARTHA[3] LUNDY of Hardwick.[c,f] She was probably born in Berks County, Pennsylvania, and died, probably in Newton Township, before 12 November 1804, as she was not mentioned in Benjamin's will.[e] She was the daughter of Richard[2] (Richard[1]) and Elizabeth (Large) Lundy and sister of Samuel Lundy who was the first husband of Benjamin's sister Anne.[c] By his will of 21 February 1772, Richard Lundy of Hardwick, Sussex County, bequeathed £5 to his granddaughter, Elizabeth Schooley "the Younger".[g]

In 1763 Benjamin was living in that part of Hardwick Township, Sussex County, which was set off as Stillwater Township in 1824,[h] but by 1773 he was in Newton Township, where as "Beniamin Scoolly" he was taxed for sixty-four acres and fourteen horses and cattle.[i] By September 1774 "Beniamin Scooly", husbandman, had increased his farm stock by two.[j] On the 12th of the 10th month 1775 it was decided at the Kingwood Monthly Meeting to allow Quakers in Paulinskiln to hold their meetings at the home of Benjamin Schooley.[k] Benjamin was appointed at the Hardwick Monthly Meeting of Friends in 1781 to serve on a "Committee of Sufferings" which was to keep account of losses suffered by Friends because of adherence to the Principles of Peace, to keep account of fines imposed for refusal to serve in the army or to take oaths, and to record the confiscation of property. The fines imposed on the members of this monthly meeting amounted to £206 5s. 6d.[c] Prejudice against the Quakers had not abated.

On 16 August 1786 Benjamin was conveyed by John Jay, Philip Livingston, and John Rutherford, some land in Newton Township, on which was located "Schooleys Log House", thus implying Benjamin was probably already living on the property.[l] This may have been some of the land which Benjamin Schooley, farmer, and his wife Martha conveyed in 1793 to John Jay of New York City, being "part of the farm on which said Benjamin now lives and joines the farm of John Jay on which John Pettit lives".[m]

In his will of 13 November 1804, Benjamin Schooley of Newton, Sussex County, farmer, called himself "advanced in years and infirm". To his daughter Martha Philips, widow of Joseph Philips, he left $125. Grandsons Ezekiel Dennis and Schooley Dennis were to have $25 and $62.50 respectively. To grandson Benjamin Schooley, "eldest son of my son, Joseph", he left four acres, "to be run off from my farm where I now live; the use and profits thereof to be my son, Joseph's, till said Benjamin is 21". All the rest was bequeathed to son Joseph, who was also to be an executor with William Akyerson and Ezekiel Dennis. Witnesses to the will, proved 26 December 1809, were Amos Pettit, Jacob Lundy, and Benjamin Philips, the first two of whom took an inventory of the estate that same day.[e]

The Dennis Family

The first of the Dennis family to appear in Sussex County, New Jersey was Ezekial Dennis. Ezekial persuaded his father, Joseph, who had lived many years in Quakertown, Bucks County, Pennsylvania to leave his home and come to Sussex County, New Jersey. The senior Joseph then prevailed upon his son, Joseph Jr., who had married Hannah Lewis, to join them. In this way the Dennises became neighbors of the Schooleys.

Joseph Dennis, Jr. and Hannah Lewis had seven children:

The record of the marriage of Jesse Dennis and Anne Schooley has been preserved and is here quoted:

> Whereas Jesse Dennis of Wantage in the County of Sussex and Province of New Jersey and Anne Schooley of Newton in the County and Province aforesaid, having declared their intentions of marriage with each other before several monthly meetings of the people called Quakers in the County of Hunterdon and Sussex in the Province aforesaid according to the good order among them, whose proceedings thereon after a deliberate consideration thereof and having consent of parents and relatives concerned, nothing appearing to obstruct were approved of by said meeting.

Now these are to certify all whom it may concern that for the full accomplishment of their said intentions, this eighteenth day of the tenth month, 1781, they, the said Jesse Dennis and Anne Schooley appeared in a public meeting of the said people at Newton aforesaid and the said Jesse Dennis taking the said Anne Schooley by the hand did in a solemn manner openly declare that he took her to be his wife, promising through divine assistance to be a loving and faithful husband till death should seperate them. And then and there in the same assembly she, the said Anne Schooley, did in like manner declare that she took him, the said Jesse Dennis, to be her husband, promising through divine assistance to be a loving and faithful wife till death should seperate them, and moreover, the said Jesse Dennis and Anne Schooley, she according to the custom of marriage assuming the name of her husband, as a further confirmation thereof did then and there to these presents set their hands and we whose names under-subscribed being among those present at the solemnization of their said marriage and subscription in manner aforesaid as witnesses thereto have set our hands, the day and year above written:

Anne Schooley was 22 years old when she married Jesse Dennis. She was 26 years old when she died. She left two infants, three year old Ezekial and 8 months old Schooley Dennis. The notice of her death is given:

> "departed this life on the 21st day of the fifth month and 7th day of the week betwixt the hours of eight and nine o'clock in the evening in the year 1785 and was buried the 23rd of the same".

The son Ezekial (1782-1832) married two times. The first marriage was to Mary Baldwin and the second marriage to Sarah Baldwin Smith. By the first wife there were five children: (i) Ann, (ii) Alfred, (iii) Mary, (iv) Francis, and (v) Martin. By the second wife there was but one child, Sarah. Both of Ezekial's wives were the daughters of Benjamin and Isabella (Wright) Baldwin.

24... SAMUEL[4] SCHOOLEY (Samuel[3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born the 26th of the 10th month 1745 in what was then Lebanon Township, Hunterdon County (now Washington Township, Morris County), New Jersey, and he died in April 1832 at "Schooley's Pine Creek Farms" near Ocala, Grayson (now Carroll) County, Virginia, aged 89.[a-c]

On 9 January 1766 Samuel married (1) MARGARET (BROWN) GIBBON in Lower Makefield, Bucks County, Pennsylvania. She was born in 1744 and died, probably in Newton Township, Sussex County, New Jersey, in February 1767. She was the widow of Nathan Gibbon who died in 1765 and by whom she had two daughters, Sarah and Katherine[b]. Samuel Schooley married (2) ELIZABETH[4] WILLSON of Warren (then Sussex) County, New Jersey, after the 13th of the 9th month 1770, when they made their first declaration of marriage intentions at the Kingwood Monthly Meeting of Friends.[d] Elizabeth was born the 7th of the 8th month 1751 and died, probably in Grayson County, Virginia, between 1820 and 1830, when the older female disappears on the census from Samuel Schooley's household. Elizabeth was the daughter of Gabriel[3] (Samuel[2], Robert[1]) and Elizabeth (Lundy) Willson.[e]

Samuel lived the brief time with his first wife, Margaret, at the home of his mother, Avis Schooley, in Newton Township, apparently on the land his mother had purchased there from Jonathan Hampton in 1765. When he married a second time in 1770 to Elizabeth Willson, Samuel continued to live at his mother's homestead for a period of about fifteen years. All together in this house were Samuel, Elizabeth his wife, two daughters of his first wife Margaret by her previous marriage (Sarah and Katherine Gibbon), Samuel's and Margaret's son William, and in time the first five children of Samuel's second marriage. So the whole list in the one household was eleven persons: Avis, Samuel, Elizabeth, William, Leah, Margaret, James, John, and Samuel [Jr.] Schooley, and Sarah and Katherine Gibbon.[f] Samuel was obviously running the homestead in Newton Township, for it was "Sammual Scolly" and not his mother who was listed on the tax rolls in 1773, having twenty-eight acres and seven horses and cattle. In September 1774 "Sammuel Scooly" was taxed for twenty-eight acres and four horses and cattle.[g]

When Samuel's brother James Schooley died in 1767 and the latter's widow Margaret renounced administration of the estate, the responsibility fell to Samuel Schooley of Newton.[h]

Samuel managed the farmstead of his mother's home and did some surveying of lands and teaching in private schools. A memorandum long existed of a survey he made for his brother, Joseph, on 8 October 1769, of lands near Hamburg, Sussex County. Samuel was evidently a sometime assistant to Samuel Green, Surveyor for the West Jersey Proprietors. He made a survey for Richard Armstrong of land lying along the Paulinskill River and Dark Moon Creek. Another of his surveys was of a tract of land for Jesse Lundy on the south side of Pine Run which Jesse had received from his father Samuel Lundy.[f] Samuel taught in a country private school in the winter of 1766-1767 near Sussex Court House (Newton). An inscription in an old spelling book in possession (about 1941) of a great-granddaughter indicates he taught in that area during several winters. Samuel's name is inscribed as "master" in an old Dilworth Speller dated 1767 and which has been preserved by one of his descendants.[f]

A military situation arose in 1772 which required the attention of Samuel Schooley, Aaron Hankinson, and others. About the year 1765 Hankinson had come up from lower Hunterdon County and was made "Captain of Upper Hardwick". His home was in or near Stillwater Township, Sussex County. The activities of these men were associated with a line of blockhouses built for defense along the frontier in the three river townships from Water Gap to Carpenter's Point. These fortifications were designed for protection against the Indians.[i]

During the American Revolution, Samuel Schooley's experiences in preparing blockhouses along the frontier were to prove valuable.

Although he had the responsibility of a large family, Samuel enlisted in June 1776 to serve five months with the State Troops. He was an ensign in Captain Bond's Company and was promoted to Second Lieutenant on 28 November 1776. In May 1777 he was a First Lieutenant in Colonel Thompson's First Sussex Regiment of the Continental Army. In the fall of 1778 Samuel was a captain in the Sussex County Militia, 1st Regiment, under Major Bescheres and Colonel Jacob West. Records in the Adjutant General's Office of New Jersey show further detail of Samuel's service:

> [C]ommission[ed] as Ensign, Sussex County, New Jersey, Militia; Residence, Greenwich, Sussex Co., N.J. Commissioned Ensign, Captain William Bond's Company, Col. Ephraim Martin's Battalion, Brigadier General Heard's Brigade, New Jersey State Troops, June 24th, 1776, five months service; Assigned to Major General Nathaniel Green's Division, Continental Army, on Long Island, New York, Aug. 27, 1776; At battles of Long Island, New York, Aug. 27, 1776; and White Plains, New York, Oct. 28, 1776; Appointed Second Lieutenant, Fourth Batallion, New Jersey Continental Line, Col. Ephraim Martin, and received warrant for recruiting, November 16, 1776; Commission declined; Second Lieutenant, First Regiment, Sussex County, New Jersey Militia, date unknown. First Lieutenant, Captain Andrew Malick's

W.F. Sadler,
The Adjutant General

Captain Samuel Schooley was mentioned by Cornelius Van Fleet, a soldier who had served under him, in October 1832, when he petitioned the United States Bureau of Pensions. Van Fleet was then a resident of Washington Township, Lycoming County, Pennsylvania, who had come from New Jersey. He stated in his petition for pension that in the American Revolution he, Cornelius Van Fleet, served under Captain Samuel Schooley, Captain John Tenbrook, and others during the years 1776 to 1778. Van Fleet (VanVliet), Tenbrook (Tinbroeck), and many others from New Jersey were, shortly after the war, residents of White Deer Valley in Lycoming County.[k]

The Samuel Schooleys moved from Newton to Hardwick Township, Sussex County, sometime between the births of daughter Margaret in November 1776 and son James in January 1780.[l] Following his mother's death in Newton in or before 1785, Samuel, by the terms of her will (dated fourteen years earlier), inherited most of her property and was sole executor of her estate.[m] As indicated in a deed dated the 16th of the 9th month 1785, between Samuel Schooley of Hardwick, Sussex County, and Samuel Lundy of "Newtown County aforesaid", Samuel received the old family homestead in Newton, title being conveyed to "a lot of Upland and Meadow in Newton, being a part of a tract of land surveyed for Governor Penn". The document was signed by Samuel Schooley and witnessed by Samuel Willson and Samuel Willson, Jr.

This deed was not recorded at the County Clerk's Office until 14 March 1814, nearly twenty-nine years after its date.[n]

Captain Samuel Schooley
(1745–1832)
(The identity is uncertain. See "c" under Notes and References)

After settling his mother's estate, Samuel moved his family to Surrey County, North Carolina, in 1785. The reason for the move is unclear. Obviously the tendency of the early settlers of the country to migrate seemed irrepressible. Although he had inherited the family farms from his mother, Samuel sold everything and went. The journey was undertaken in the interval between the births of sons Samuel and Gabriel. Samuel's son William, who was nineteen years old, and his Gibbon stepdaughters, who were in their twenties, did not go, but apparently went to live with their maternal aunt and her husband, Samuel and Rebecca (Gibbon) Oakes. Later, William Schooley married Elizabeth Oakes.

So it was in 1785 that Samuel Schooley, after having settled his affairs in Hardwick, sold his land and gathered together his possessions in wagons, putting some animals to harness and some in the carts assembled the members of his family, and started out on a long journey. The family started down the trail southwest to a settlement in North Carolina. They went partly on foot and often in the wagons. With him were his wife, Elizabeth, the daughter Leah, age 11, Margaret, age 9, James age 5, John age 3, and the infant Samuel, less than a year old. Sometimes they could travel only three miles a day, sometimes as many as ten. Some days there was no movement at all. They travelled down to Philadelphia and followed the Trader's Path to Winchester, Virginia, southwest to the Shenandoah and to Evan's Gap into North Carolina. They travelled in the daytime and camped at night. No milestone or marker indicated the direction. Much of their food was salt meat and roots which they carried with them.

Once settled, the Schooleys were received at the Deep River Monthly Meeting of Friends in Guilford County, North Carolina, on the 6th of the 2d month 1786, presenting their Certificate of Removal from the

Kingwood Monthly Meeting, dated the 13th of the 10th month 1785.[o] The Schooleys lived in that part of Surrey County which was set off as Stokes County in 1789, and here in the Salisbury District Samuel "Scooley" was listed on the first Federal census of 1790, with a household of one male 16 and upwards, five males under 16, and three females.[p] Samuel "Schoolley" was again enumerated on the census in Stokes County in 1800.[q] In January of 1795 Samuel and his family requested counsel from the Deep River Meeting about moving to the Chestnut Creek Monthly Meeting in Grayson County, Virginia, but they were advised not to move.[r] In December of that year Samuel received a grant from North Carolina of 171 acres in Stokes County, "on the waters of Muddy Creek, adjoining Hinshaw", probably John Hinshaw, whose will of 19 September 1800 Samuel witnessed.[s]

In 1801, fifteen years after moving to North Carolina, the Samuel Schooleys undertook another journey, to Grayson County, Virginia. This move was undertaken when the youngest child, Elizabeth, was four years old. The Schooleys were given a certificate of removal from the Deep River Meeting, dated the 5th of the 7th month 1802, and they were recieved at the Mount Pleasant Monthly Meeting in Grayson County on the 30th of the 10th month 1802.[t] Samuel's two married daughters and their families made the same move at this time.

In a few years Samuel Schooley had became owner of several tracts of land, the aggregate of which was in excess of a thousand acres. His properties were situated along both sides of Pine Creek, about one and a half miles east of its confluence with Big Reed Island Creek. His residence and water springs were about three miles north or northwest from Dugspur and about two miles southeast from the post town of Ocala, Carroll County (set off in 1843 from Grayson County). These lands were known as "Schooleys Pine Creek Farms" as late as 1930. Some of Samuel's pioneer log houses were then in use as they had been for over 125 years.[u] The family of Samuel Schooley lived here about 30 years. Four of his younger sons and daughter, Elizabeth, were married in this area.[l]

The Schooley homestead consisted of 260 acres, described in a deed as "a certain parcel or tract of land lying on both sides of Pine Creek, a branch of Big Reed Island Creek in the said county of Grayson", which Samuel bought from Zachariah Stanley of Montgomery County, Virginia, in March, 1802. The survey points included "beginning at a Chestnut tree on the ridge near Chiswell's Road", and the indenture was signed in the presence of Robert Commons, Amos Hiatt, and James Schooley.[v]

Two years later Captain Schooley purchased from Zachariah Stanley another 80 acres situated on Pine Creek. The witnesses to this purchase were John, Samuel, and Benjamin Schooley, sons of the Captain. In the year 1813 Samuel purchased from Thomas Johnson (or Johnston) 449 acres of land which adjoined his homestead, "situated, lying, and being on both sides of Pine Creek, the Branch of Big Reed Island Creek". The witnesses to this purchase were Samuel Schooley, Jr., Isaac Johnson, Nathan Schooley, and Zachariah Wright. Yet another purchase of land was made by Captain Schooley described as follows:

> This Indenture, made this 25th. day of the 3d. mo. (March), 1822, from Isaac Wright,... of Grayson County, state of Virginia,...a tract of 175 acres having its beginning at a chestnut tree on a ridge near Chiswell's Road, being Samuel Schooley's corner and lying on both sides of Pine Creek, a branch of Big Reed Island Creek.

The names of witnesses in this sale were Samuel Schooley, Jr., Abraham Wright, and Stephen Lindsey.[w]

In the year 1822 Samuel Schooley conveyed to his son Samuel a large portion of these lands. The witnesses to this conveyance were Alexander Smith, Charles Smith, and Benjamin Schooley. In the same year another conveyance of land was made to son Samuel. The witnesses in this instance were William Ballard Sr., Abraham Wright, and Stephen Lindsey.[x]

The Friends had establishments in the Grayson County section of Virginia, having also established a Monthly Meeting at Mount Pleasant (later called Chestnut Creek), near the present town of Galax. Attached to Mount Pleasant there were several constituent meeting places in Grayson County and in adjoining Stokes County, North Carolina. One of them was named Pine Creek and was at or near Schooleys Pine Creek Farms. The Presbyterians founded their Pine Creek Church early in the 1800s near the edge of Schooleys Farms. The place was named Bethesda. The Mount Pleasant records show the membership of Samuel Schooley, his wife and children, the dates of their births, marriages, and removal, and in some instances their destinations.[y]

There developed another Quaker migration rising out of Virginia and the Carolinas which was to move across the mountains and establish new settlements in what was then called the Great Northwest Territory. With the admission from this territory of the new state of Ohio into the Union, from Mount Pleasant went the Thomases, Lundys, Ballards, Schooleys, Johnsons, Hunts, Hiatts, Betts, and Bundys. A major cause of the migration was a protest against slavery.

It is curious that on the 1820 Federal census Samuel Schooley and his son Samuel are shown as slave owners, although no slaves were reported for them in 1830.[w] The tendency was for the Quakers who lived in Virginia to migrate to Ohio and for those who lived in North Carolina to migrate to Indiana. Several of Samuel Schooley's sons and daughters and their families migrated to Ohio and settled in the counties of Preble, Clinton, and Warren in southwestern Ohio. Son Samuel, however, continued to live on the Pine Creek Farms until 1833, the year following his father's death.[z]

The great route used by the pioneers of the western migration was the Cumberland Road, which extended from Cumberland, Maryland, through Wheeling, [West] Virginia, across the Ohio River. The road was not begun until 1806 and not completed to Wheeling until 1821. It did not reach Columbus until 1827, nor Indianapolis until 1830. These events came after the Pikes and Harrolds, Samuel's daughter's families, made their move; their journey to the Northwest Territory was in advance of the road. They went on horseback with pack horses, following the buffalo trails. Two-horse wagons and two-wheeled carts could be used; however, these pioneers had to double or triple the teams in crossing the mountains. A man was put at each wheel to push; others were behind the wagon for the same purpose. These unpainted wagons were covered with pitch or tar. The horses were hitched to them with husk collars and rawhide traces. They went singly or in companies. The women rode in the wagons or on horseback. The travelers were often followed a short distance behind by runaway Negroes who took the opportunity to make their way to the land of freedom. The migratory spirit of the Quakers seemed irrepressible. These settlers were something more than Friends; they were pioneers who had imbibed the spirit of their surroundings. Moving into new territory seemed to be a part of their blood. By the time the Pikes and Harrolds moved into Ohio, no less than eight hundred families of Friends had preceded them.

Captain Samuel Schooley of Grayson County, Virginia, left a will dated the 20th of the 3rd month 1825, in which he named his daughter Margaret, sons John, Benjamin, and Nathan, daughter Elizabeth, and son Samuel. Margaret was to have a tract of land near Muddy Creek in Stokes County, North Carolina, and son Samuel was to have a tract of land lying on both sides of Pine Creek in Grayson County, State of Virginia. Son Samuel and William Montgomery were to be executors of the will, which was witnessed by Thomas Marshall, John Lindsey, and Henry Bourne.[aa] An inventory of the estate was taken 19 July 1832 by Stephen Lindsey, Peter Huff, and Samuel Hylton.[z]

Captain Samuel Schooley was interred in the small Quaker burying ground on Grape Hill, a few miles south of Dugspur.[z] His grave is without marker and the ground a place of neglect.

c. Samuel has long been confused with his contempory cousin of the same name, who was perhaps (No. 49) Samuel. Both men were born in the 1740s and lived in Sussex Co. (No. 24) Samuel, a Quaker, lived in Newton and Hardwick twps., before moving to North Carolina in 1785. The other Samuel, perhaps b. 16 Feb. 1742 or 1743--a date often assinged to (No. 24) Samuel--lived in Greenwich Twp. (now part of Warren Co.), later moving to Northampton Co., Pa. Any military service of (No. 24) Samuel would not have escaped notice of the Quakers and he would have been disowned by that society.

The confused identities also bring into question which Samuel was the father of (No. 39) William Schooley. (No. 24) Samuel's will and Quaker records clearly show he and Elizabeth Willson had nine children; neither source documents a son William for this Samuel. The earlier marriage of Samuel to Margaret (Brown) Gibbon has not been substantiated by primary records. In one account, Samuel the Revolutionary officer is wrongly shown as the son of Samuel and Avis (Holloway) Schooley and yet is correctly shown to have moved to Northampton Co., Pa., after the war. (There is no Revolutionary War pension file for this Samuel, suggesting he probably d. before 1818, from which time the majority of applications were made.) This Samuel, perhaps (No. 49), is further shown to have married Abia Brown in 1765 and to have had two children, William, b. Nov. 1766, and Avis Abia, b. 14 Apr. 1769 ("Schooley," Lycoming County, Pa., and Miscellaneous Bible Records, Pa DAR, 4[1960-1961]:216-220, Colls. GSP; see also NSDAR, Lineage Book, 108:28, 29). (No. 39) William Schooley, b. 8 Nov. 1766, did live in Northampton Co. The name Avis Abia Schooley suggests a close relationship to (No. 11) Samuel and Avis (Holloway) Schooley, but without further research the questions cannot be answered. Ed.

Early Medicine

Medical knowledge in the 17th and 18th centuries was a gathering of folklore and superstition. Science as it is applied to medicine was unknown. Experiment was not conducted. Professional meetings were not held. Whoever would become a physician apprenticed himself to one who was already in practice. And so it was that their appalling procedures were handed on from one generation to another. Bleeding and the giving of emetic, purging, and the like were carried out without any apparent evaluation of the consequences. The length of life was accordingly diminished.

Mary Scholey, who came to America in 1678 and who married John Rogers, died in 1680 soon after her marriage. Elizabeth Scholey lived seven years, Peter Schooley died in his teen years, Margaret Schooley died at the age of one, Marion Schooley Carpenter lived three days, Thomas and Sarah (Parker) Scholey's son Joseph lived two or three months. Mary Schooley Shinn lived ten years. Rebecca Bennett Schooley died soon after her marriage. Margaret Brown Gibbon, widow,was married a second time in 1766 to Samuel Schooley, but died soon thereafter at the age of twenty-three.*

Joseph Schooley married Sarah Brown in 1756. They had seven children of whom only three lived to adulthood, James to age 69, Mary to 52, Rachel to 40. Of their other children, Samuel, born 1759, died the same day, Martha, born 1761, died the same day, Ann born 1766, lived two years, and John, born 1769, died soon after birth.

What did they know of medicine? Not much. Nor about nutrition nor about hygiene. Most common practices by the physicians of the day were to prescribe bleeding and sweating and purging. Sometimes the remedy required making a string of certain kinds of berries and wearing them as a necklace. Children died in vast numbers in spite of these charms.

It is likely that there was no physician within a considerable number of miles. But if one could be obtained, a day for him to travel to the patient was required. Then he could prescribe an emetic or a cathartic or practice bleeding or pull a tooth. If a patient suffered from burns, the treatment may have consisted of laying upon the injured part a paper or a linen soaked with vinegar and sugar of lead or perhaps of laying on scraped potatoes or of sprinkling the afflicted part with flour.

In vogue also was an old medical theory that plants and minerals were supposed to be marked by some natural sign or symbol to indicate the particular medicinal value or use to which it could be put. The concept was called the "doctrine of signatures". Yellow flowers were used for the treatment of jaundice. Scorpion grass, the old name for forget-me-not, was used for the bite of a scorpion. The bloodstone was taken to be a cure for hemorrhage. The lung wort, Lobelia pulmonaria , having the appearance of the surface of the lung, was thought to be good for the treatment of tuberculosis, pneumonia, and similar afflictions. A certain plant, the dog lichen, Peltigera canina, having a fruit which resembled teeth, was used in the treatment of rabies. The skull lichen, Parmelia saxatilis, was considered excellent for epilepsy, and if found on old skulls, instead of in its usual habitat as on a trunk of a tree or rocks, its value was greatly enhanced, and even more so if the skull happened to be that of an executed criminal.

When the autumn days turned to winter, death came more frequently. Fierce winds and frosts and the snow chilled them. Their fare was scant, and amid all the want and cold little children were born and welcomed and lost in the first days or in the first year of their lives. The mortality rate which was great among them came from putrid fevers, epidemic influenza, sore throat, bladders in the windpipe, and raging smallpox. Sanitation was unknown or disregarded. Drainage was not attended to. Disinfection was feebly carried out and not understood. Bacterial organisms were unknown. Disinfection might have been attempted by the sprinkling of vinegar. Isolation of contagious disease was proclaimed, but it was a futile measure because they knew nothing about what was communicable. A wide belief that meteorological and astrological conditions affected medicines was common. The best physicians seem to have taken considerable concern about the phase of the moon when gathering herbs or when concocting medicines, as it was held that certain of them could be made at certain times but would be useless if prepared at other times.

Daffy's Elixer was a decoction of snail water. Venice Treacle was made of vipers, white wine, opium, spices from the Indies, licorice, red roses, tops of germander, St. John's wort, and some twenty other herbs. Another decoction, mithridate (something taken as an antidote for poison) contained forty-five ingredients.

Snails furnished many of the doses used in the treatment of rickets. In the time before these families came to the American continent the diet of children consisted often of brown bread, cheese, and warm beer. Yet in the New World less beer was drunk and more milk. The result of this was more infection of tuberculosis and brucollosis.

There was a fondness for the use of "crab's eyes" in medicine. "Crab's eyes" were concretions from the stomach of a crayfish. Equally efficacious must have been the treatment of sore gums by pricking them with the bill of an Osprey.

With some of their observations we would have to agree: "Things bad for the heart are beans, pease, sadness, onions, anger, evile tidings, and the loss of friends".

The practice of bleeding was almost universal. It was supposed to free the patient of hostile humors. The infant in the cradle and the aged were alike subjected to the treatment which often weakened them at the very time their strength was most needed. If those who were sick could have been left to have the disease run its course, many more would have survived. Here is a treatment that was prescribed for rickets:

> Dip the child in the morning head fore-most in cold water, don't dress it immediately, but let it be made warm in the cradle, and sweat at least half an hour moderately. Do this three mornings going and if one or both feet are cold while other parts sweat let a little blood be taken out of the feet the second morning. Before the dips of the child give it some snake root and saffern steeped in rum and water. Give this immediately before dipping, and after you have dipped the child three mornings, give it several times a day a syrup made of comfry, harts horn, red roses, hogbrake root, knot grass, petty moral (pennyroyal) roots....

And so it was the children who suffered from rickets went through life as hopeless cripples.

William Penn's Book of Phisick has been preserved by the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. A few recipes from it are quoted to help perplex our understanding of the medicines of the time:

A medison for the Cough

Take a handfull of too of new hay that was made before Midsummer and 2 handfulls of bay sallt, boyle them together in runing watter, and the patients feett bee bathed and washed and scoked therein and they shall bee well.

To Make oyntment for Scald Heeds

Take slices of bacon and fry them then take the grece and set it over the fire, put to it this powder following, take the uper Lether of an old shew, burn it beat it and serce it very fine take the uper shell of an oyster burne it and searce it very fine, take of each of these of each alike 1/2 as much brimstone in powder mingle them together and boyle it a while in the bacon grece,then put in the pot for youre use and anoynt the heed twice a day.

To draw out a thorn

Have Alwais by you a snake dryed kepe it Close in a box Clap a pece of it upon the place where the thorn entered and Clap a top of it too keep it in shoumakers wax if you can lay it on ase sone as you can.

Griffith Owen was one of the early settlers of Pennsylvania, a physician and a Quaker. He left us a recipe for the treatment of a sore leg that is cut:

"Take wheat meal mix it with milk in a small skillet full: put in the yolk ofone egg and a little honey and a very little Rosin, warm it and lay it on once a day. Let a plaster of salve cover the sore."

When they left their homes in England they brought with them seeds and herbs that would serve them in the preservation of their health as well as in the preparation of food. "Pusley", burdock, hoarhound, chamomile, peppermint, spearmint, and St. John's wort were brought along and sown in little gardens among the stumps. Sassafras had wonderful properties in the treatment of dropsy, and the young mucilaginous shoots of it were chewed and applied to cuts and sores.

In a book that was brought to Burlington in 1681 by Elias and Sarah Farr and which bears the title The Memorable Works of a Son of Thunder and Consolation, written by Edward Burrough, can be found a treatment for a burn or scald:

> "take the white of Egg and bet them very well, then put by the froth and anoint the sore, then take fine wheat meal and salitoyle and some of the Egg for plasters."

Still it seems to have been contended by some that New Jersey was so singularly blessed that everything that could be desired was there already provided and that there was no need for physicians, or for lawyers or parsons either, especially in the colonies where the Quakers predominated. It is a strange fantasy to have taken place in a situation where one of four perished of smallpox. If there had been no physicians it might have been better for them. It is hard to tell which among them did the most harm with their bleeding, sweating, and purging.

25... THOMAS[4] SCHOOLEY (?John[3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born about 1733,[a] probably in Chesterfield Township, Burlington County, New Jersey, and he was living in Mansfield Township, Burlington County, in 1774.[a] That he may have been one of the "children" of (No. 12) John[3] Scholey is suggested since Thomas was about the right age to be John's son, lived in the same general area as John, and could have been named for John's father, Thomas Scholey. Furthermore, Asa Schooley, perhaps a close relative of Thomas, also lived in Mansfield Township about the same time.

Thomas Schooley may have married SUSANNAH----, who as Susannah Schooley witnessed the will of John Buffin of Mansfield Township, yeoman, on 20 April 1771.[b]

Very little information has been discovered about Thomas. He may have been the "Thomas Scholey, Jr." who on 29 August 1773 witnessed the will of John Buffin of Mansfield, yeoman (a different John Buffin from the one mentioned above).[b] In 1774 "Thom[s] Schooly" was taxed in Mansfield Township as a householder.[a]

26...ASA[4] SCHOOLEY (?John[3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born 23 June 1739, possibly in Chesterfield Township, Burlington County, New Jersey, and he was living in Bertie Township, Welland County, Ontario, in 1799.[a] His parentage is not proved, but his residence near (No. 11) Samuel Schooley suggests they may have been close relatives, Asa perhaps one of the unknown "children" of Samuel's brother (No. 12) John Schooley.[b] If true, it can also be suggested that after his father's death Asa went to live with his Uncle Samuel. The circumstantial connection is further strengthened since Asa had children Samuel, perhaps named for (No. 11) Samuel, and Jehoida, another unusual name.

Asa's wife SARAH ------ was born 4 February 1743.[a] If she was his only wife, they were probably married about 1750 and perhaps in Sussex County, New Jersey.

The earliest discovered record of Asa is 25 October 1765, when his lands were mentioned as a boundry in a deed whereby Avis, widow of (No. 11) Samuel Schooley, purchased land in Newton Township, Sussex County.[c] Three and a half years later, on 12 April 1769, Asa Schooley received money from the estate of James Schooley of Newton, Sussex County, James being a son of (No. 11) Samuel.[d]

At the Kingwood Monthly Meeting of Quakers on the 12th of the 4th month 1787, "Hardwick [Meeting] informs that Asa Schooley requests to be joined in membership with Friends, and women Friends inform that his wife makes a like request. The two Gabriel Willsons are appointed to visit them, and also Mary Lundy". The Meeting records show that for the next several months the "case of Asa Schooley and wife is continued". Finally, on the 8th of the 9th month 1787, the "Friends on the request of Asa Schooley and wife report a favorable opportunity with them, and the Meeting being easy, it was agreed to receive them into membership".[e]

About the same time there was much discussion among the Friends in and around the Hardwick Meeting to move to the "Niagara Lands" in Ontario. In 1788 Asa, his wife, and six of their twelve[f] children went to Canada, where on 20 April Asa presented a letter of his good character from the Hardwick Meeting to the [Commanding?] Officer of the Niagara Garrison.[a] Other Friends who went with or about the same time as the Schooleys included Willsons, Ridgways, and Lundys.

Asa was recommended on 14 July 1796 to receive a Crown Grant of 200 acres and an additional 350 acres for family lands. The Schooleys settled in Bertie Township, Welland County, Ontario, near Port Colborne and Fort Erie, and here Asa and his wife were among the founders of the Pelham and Black Creek Monthly Meeting in 1799.[a,g]

When Joseph Moore made a journey to visit Friends in Canada in the summer of 1793, he visited Asa Schooley, Obadiah Dennis, William Lundy, Ezekial Dennis, in a sense all members of a family. On his return journey he met Sarah Lundy who was also related to these people. Unfortunately he went to Philadelphia while an epidemic of yellow fever raged. Being much fatigued by his travels and from exposure he became a victim of this disease and died in the autumn of 1793.

27... JUDIAH[5] SCHOOLEY (William[4], ?William[3], Robert[2-1]) was born about 1735, probably in Greenwich Township, Sussex (now Warren) County, New Jersey, and he died, probably in Greenwich Township, between 1798 and 11 April 1805.[a,b] His name is given in some accounts as Jedidiah,[c] the name evidently assumed from the spelling "Jedidah" which appears in one record.[b] Jedediah married ELIZABETH [PARKS?] who was living in 1805,[b] probably the daughter of Joseph Parks.[c]

The Schooleys lived in Greenwich Township where Judiah "Scholey" was taxed in September 1774 for twenty acres and four horses and cattle.[d] On 21 November 1777 Judiah "Scholey" and Valentine Bidleman took the inventory of the estate of William Paterson of Greenwich and on 15 January 1785 Judiah, with Peter Davis and Jacob Cleine, witnessed the will of Christian Minnier, also of Greenwich Township.[e] Judiah Schooley was a trustee of the Presbyterian Church in Washington Borough in 1797 but declined to serve the following year.[a] After Judiah's death, Elizabeth Schooley, widow, with John, Samuel, William, Andrew, and Mary Schooley, and Thomas Cox by right of his wife Anna, heirs of "Jedidah", sold to John Schooley "the elder" on 11 April 1805, Judiah's one-fifth share of one hundred acres that formerly belonged to his father William Schooley.[b] John Schooley who bought the land was probably (No. 52), Judiah's nephew.

28... JOHN[5] SCHOLEY (William[4], ?William[3], Robert[2-1]) was born 15 April 1739, probably in Greenwich Township, Sussex (now Warren) County, New Jersey, and he probably died there, possibly on 20 January 1808.[a-c] John married (1) MARY COLEMAN.[a,b] Before 1800 he married (2) ELIZABETH --------,[d] evidently a widow with children and who was living 17 December 1807.[c]

The John Schooleys lived in Greenwich Township where in 1770 he was granted land by William Schooley.[e]

When taxed in Greenwich in September 1774, John "Scholey" had two hundred acres and ten horses and cattle. He was also the assessor for the township that year.[f] During the Revolutionary War, John may have served as a private in Captain Henry Luce's Company in the 2d Battalion, 2d Establishment of New Jersey. Troops under Colonel Israel Shreve.[a,b,g]

On 12 March 1777 John Schooley of Sussex County became a bondsman to the estate of Godfrey Melick of Greenwich, and with John Kline he took the inventory of Melick's estate on 25 February 1777.[h] John "Scholey" and Joseph Hixon inventoried the estate of Philip Cline of Greenwich Township on 29 November 1784.[i]

John sold in 1790 land which had been left to him by the will of his father William Schooley.[j] Three years later John "Schoolly" was listed on the New Jersey militia census for "Grannage" Township.[k] In 1800 John and his wife Elizabeth sold to George Bidleman part of the larger tract which had been granted to his father in 1739.[d]

By his will of 17 December 1807, proved 16 February 1808, John Scholey of Greenwich, Sussex County, New Jersey, left to his wife Elizabeth bed and bedding, a sorrel mare, a saddle and bridle, a milk cow and three sheep, articles and household furniture "she brought when we were married (except what she has given her children)", and $500, in lieu of a dower. She was also to have another milk cow, for the use and benefit of Elizabeth Sampsel, who was living with the Scholeys. Daughters Emelia, wife of Lefferd Haughawout, and Theodosius, wife of Michael Minnier, were to each have $100, as were the children of daughter Sarah, "late wife" of John Barber. To his other daughters, Anne (wife of Herbert Hyner), Rachel (wife of John Hyner), Mary, Abigail, and Elizabeth (wife of Samuel McNeal), John bequeathed $150. The land "north of the road laid out for the New Jersey Turnpike" was to be sold, but son Nathaniel was to have all the land between the turnpike and the road "running through my farm leading by William Carter's and Lefferd Haughawout's towards John Sharp's". Son John was to have the remainder of the real estate, as well as a horse, mare, plough, and harrow. He and his brother Nathaniel were to pay their father's debts and legacies. One of them, not named, was also to care for Joe, "my black man". John Scholey named Thomas Stewart and Peter Sharp as his executors and the will was witnessed by John Sharp, Abraham Bidleman, and Jacob Bidleman. By a codicil of 22 December 1807, witnessed by George Bidleman, John Sharp, and Abraham Bidleman, John directed that 500 acres in Kentucky which he held "by articles of agreement with Andrew Pearse of Berkley Co., Virginia, dated 3rd day of --[sic] in the year 1791" were to be sold and the income divided among "my 8 said daughters, or their heirs". Daniel Hixson (possibly a relative) and Abraham Bidleman inventoried the estate of John Scholey on 4 February 1808, showing a value of $1620.55.[c]

29... JOHN[5] SCHOOLEY (Samuel[4], ?Robert[3-1]) was born about 1727, possibly in Hunterdon County, New Jersey, and he died between March 1814 and 9 January 1815, probably in Loudoun County, Virginia.[a,b]

About 1755 John Schooley married MARY [WRIGHT?],[a] who was living in 1814.[b]

The Schooleys lived in Loudoun County, Virginia, evidently on part of the 150-acre plantation which John's father acquired in 1762 and was to pass to John after his mother's death.[c] John may have been living on part of this land in 1771 when he was taxed in Shelburne Parish of Loudoun County.[d]

Although other members of his family had become Quakers at an earlier time, it was not until the 25th of the 2d month 1764 that John Schooley, his wife, Mary, and his daughter, Sarah, were received as members at the Fairfax Monthly Meeting of Friends in Loudoun County. For John and Mary's children who were born later membership was requested on the 29th of the 8th month 1772.[e]

By his will dated the [blank] day of the 3d month 1814 and proved 9 January 1815, John Schooley of Loudoun County, "advanced in age", left his wife Mary for her life the plantation of 100 acres "whereon I now live". She was also to have one-eighth of "the neat proceeds of my personal estate". Son Elisha was to have a quarter of the personal estate and son William and daughter Sarah Hughes each "an equal share with my son Elisha". The remainder of the personal estate was to be son Reuben's, he to also have the plantation after Mary's death. Sons Reuben and William were named executors of the will.[b]

The Wrights

The Wright family name has been mentioned frequently in this chronicle. John Schooley married Rachel Wright. Mary Schooley married Samuel Wright. Rebecca Schooley married Joseph Wright. Jonathan Schooley married Mary Wright. There have been so many contacts of the Wrights with the Schooleys that it becomes appropriate to trace the Wright family origins in more depth.

It is said there were seven Wright brothers who came to America and settled in New Jersey.....one at Pennyhill (later to be called Wrightstown), one at Crosswicks, one at Trenton, one at Arneytown, one at Jacobtown, and one on the Delaware River below Rancocas Creek. That doesn't add up to seven. Three brothers came: Thomas Wright (1630-1705/6), Joshua Wright (1633-1695), and Samuel Wright (bet. 1643 and 1648-1690).

1. JOSHUA[1] WRIGHT was the father of the following four children, said to have been of a family of five daughters and six sons, two of the latter dying in infancy.

Children:

2. i. THOMAS[2], b. ca. 1630.
3. ii. JOSHUA, b. ca. 1633.
4. iii. SAMUEL, b. ca. 1643.
   iv. JOSEPH

2. THOMAS[2] WRIGHT (Joshua[1]) was born about 1630 and died the 25th of the 1st month 1705/6. Thomas married (1) MARY ---- who died in 1672, after which he married (2) ANNE -----. Thomas was a passenger on the flyboat Martha with Thomas Scholey in 1677.

Child: BENJAMIN[3]

3. JOSHUA[2] WRIGHT (Joshua[1]) was born about 1633 and he died on the 10th of the 8th month 1695. On the 10th of the 4th month 1669 Johsua married ELIZABETH EPSON, the daughter of William Epson of Gowle Field House, Hull, Yorkshire, England. With their first three children the Joshua Wrights came to America in 1679. Joshua's will of 25 March 1690 was proved 11 May 1690 and executed 7 October 1695. In it he named his wife Elizabeth, son Joseph, and others.

Children, first two born in England:

i. ELIZABETH[3], b. 9 2m 1670; d. 1733; m. at the Chesterfield Mtg., 6 7m 1688, PETER FRETWELL.
ii. JOSHUA, b. 16 3m 1672; d. ca. 1740; m. 10 4m 1705, REBECCA STACEY.
iii. ROBERT, b. 1678; d. 1742; m. (1) ELIZABETH HYERTON; m. (2) JANE WARE
5. iv. THOMAS, b. 1681, d.1769; m. ELIZABETH PARKER
6. v. JOHN, b. 1683, d. 1733; m. ABIGAIL CRISPIN 7. vi. JOSEPH, b. 1685 ; m. in 1710 to MARY SCHOLEY [not named in Joshua's will].
8. vii. SAMUEL, b. 1689, d. 1762; m. SARAH WRIGHT

4. SAMUEL[2] WRIGHT (Joshua[1]) was born between 1643 and 1648 and he died before 25 March 1690.

Children:

i. ALICE[3]

ii. SAMUEL
iii MARY, b. 1679 at sea.
iv. JOHN
v. ELIZABETH
vi. SARAH, b. 1688; m. Samuel Wright !*

Samuel Wright came to America with his brother, Joshua, which is ascertained by the knowledge that his daughter, Mary, was born at sea in 1679. He came with his wife, Mary, and two children, Alice and Samuel. By the time they arrived in New Jersey there were three children. Samuel had been in prison in 1675 for refusing to pay a demand of four pence his wife at the time "being in weakness".

The three brothers mentioned above, (2)Thomas, (3)Joshua, and (4)Samuel, who came to America were born of a family of eleven children which included six sons, two of whom died in infancy. In order to account for the seven Wright males who are considered to have early settled in New Jersey, it is necessary to include some of the children of these brothers, namely Benjamin, the son of Thomas, Joshua and Robert, the sons of Joshua, and Samuel, the son of Samuel. These also came to America.

However, neither the children of Samuel nor the children of Thomas were directly allied to the Schooleys, and attention should be directed only to the family of Joshua. He had suffered indignity from the Quaker Meeting since he had not conformed to their tenets. This account focuses upon Joshua's three sons: Thomas, John, and Samuel.

* One must look more than once in reading that Samuel, the son of Joshua, married Sarah Wright, and that Sarah, the daughter of Samuel, married Samuel Wright, her first cousin..!

5. THOMAS[3] WRIGHT (Joshua[2-1]) was born in 1681 and died in 1769. He married ELIZABETH PARKER.

Children:

i. ELIZABETH[4]
ii. SARAH
iii. JACOB
iv. AMOS; m. ANNE BLACK, dau. of John and Sarah (-----) Black.
v. THOMAS
vi. LYDIA, b. 1717; m. (1) JOHN TAYLOR; m. (2) WILLIAM FRENCH, son of Richard and Mary (King) French and sister of Elizabeth French who m. (No. 10) William Schooley.
vii. MARGARET viii. DEBORAH
ix. ELIZABETH II
x. EZEKIAL

Of the children of Thomas Wright (1681-1769) the lives of two of them are connected to the Schooleys: Amos married Anne Black. Anne was the daughter of John and Sarah Black. They had also a son, Thomas, who was the second husband of Mary Scholey. Lydia (1717-), the daughter of Thomas Wright was married first to John Taylor and second to William French, who was the son of Richard French and Mary King. They had ten children. One of these children was Elizabeth who married William Schooley.

6. JOHN[3] WRIGHT (Joshua[2-1]) [or son of Samuel?] was born in 1683 and died in 1733. John married ABIGAIL CRISPIN.

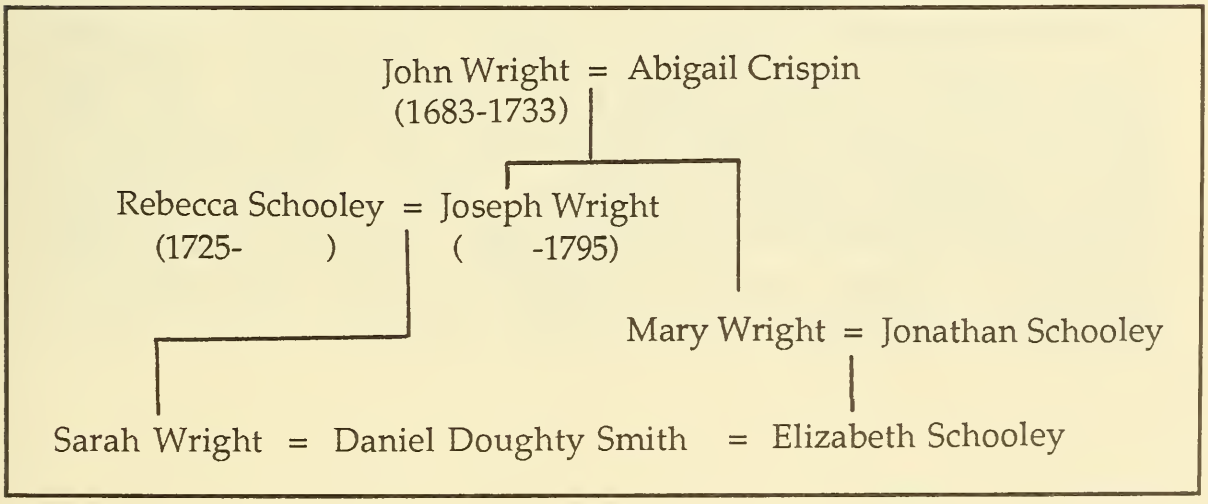
Children:

i. SAMUEL[4], b. 1719; d. 1781; m. (1) RACHEL KIRBY; m. (2) ELIZABETH HAINES; m. (3) 1755, as her 3d husband, MARY[4] (SCHOOLEY) (BARTON) BLACK, b. 24th 12th mo. 1720, d. between 1788 and 1791, dau. of John[3] (John[2], ?Robert[1]) and Frances (Taylor) Schooley, sister of Jonathan Schooley who m. Samuel's sister Mary Wright, and sister of Rachel Schooley who m. Samuel's brother Joseph Wright. Mary was condemned by the Quakers 3d 2 mo. 1755 for marriage contrary to discipline.

ii. JOHN

9. iii. JOSEPH; d. 1795; m. 1747, REBECCA SCHOOLEY, b. 1725.

iv. MARY, b. 1730; d. 1795; m. (1) (No. 14) JONATHAN[4] SCHOOLEY, 3 8m 1729; d. bef. 14 Dec. 1758, son of John[3] (John[2], ?Robert[1]) and Francis (Taylor) Schooley, brother of Mary (Schooley) (Barton) (Taylor) Black who m. Mary's brother Samuel Wright, and brother of Rachel Schooley who m. Mary's brother Joseph Wright. m. (2) JOB RIDGWAY, d. 1782.



7. JOSEPH[3] WRIGHT (Joshua[2-1]) was born in 1685 and he died probably in Chesterfield Township between the 3d of the 12th month 1713/4 and 10 May 1715.

In Chesterfield in 1710, after the 6th of the 2d month, Joseph married MARY[3] SCHOOLEY. She was born on the 6th of the 11th month 1681, the daughter of (No. 3) Robert[2] (Robert[1]) and Sarah (Bingham) Schooley. After Joseph's death Mary married (2) SAMUEL DANFORD in 1717. There were no children of Mary's second marriage.

Children of Joseph and Mary:

i. SARAH[4]
ii. MARY

8... Samuel Wright[3] (1689-1762),(Joshua [2-1]) , married twice. His first marriage was to Sarah Wright by whom was born one child, Empson. The second marriage was to Rebecca Kirby, and by this marriage there were three children: Mary, Rachel who in 1743 married John Scholey (1714-1757), and Phoebe. John Scholey and Rachel had a daughter, Frances (-1801) who in 1769 was married to John Leonard. John Leonard was a Loyalist, and his property was confiscated. John and Frances Scholey Leonard had two children: Rebecca and Samuel.

9. JOSEPH[4] WRIGHT (?John[3], ?Joshua[2-1]) died in 1795. Joseph married REBECCA[4] SCHOOLEY in 1747. She was born the 3d of the 8th month 1725, the daughter of (No. 6) John3 (John2 ?Robert1) and Frances (Taylor) Schooley, sister of Mary (Schooley) (Barton) Black who married Joseph's brother Samuel Wright, and sister of Jonathan Schooley who married Joseph's sister Mary

Wright. After Joseph Wright's death, his widow Rebecca married (2) SAMUEL DANFORD.

Children:

i. ABIGAIL[5], b. 1748.
ii. WILLIAM, b. 1750.
iii. SARAH; d. before 1826; m. as his second wife DANIEL[7] DOUGHTY SMITH, son of William Lovett[6] (Richard[5], Samuel[4], Richard[3-2], William[1]) and Mary (Doughty) Smith. Daniel first m. in 1772, Sarah's first cousin, Elizabeth[5] Schooley, dau. of (No. 14) Jonathan[4] (John[3-2], ?Robert[1]) and Mary (Wright) Schooley.

v. FRANCES
vi. SCHOOLEY, b. 1760; m. LAVINA HOLLOWAY.
vii. JOSEPH viii. ELIZABETH

Sarah, the daughter of (9) Joseph had married Daniel Doughty Smith as his second wife, he having been married to Elizabeth Scholey, the daughter of Jonathan Scholey and Mary Wright.

Mary Wright (1730-1795) also married twice. Her first marriage was to Jonathan Scholey, the brother of Rebecca who had married Joseph Wright, and her second marriage was to Job Ridgway. By her first marriage to Jonathan Scholey there were two children: Abigail (1755-) who m. Samuel Smith, and Elizabeth Scholey who m. Daniel Doughty Smith. By the second marriage to Job Ridgway there were three children: Rebecca who married Michael Earl, Job, and Jonathan.

30... SAMUEL[5] SCHOOLEY (Samuel[4], ?Robert [3-1]) was born about 1728, possibly in Hunterdon County, New Jersey, and he died between 25 September 1786 and 9 April 1787, probably in Loudoun County, Virginia. [a,b.]

Samuel married DOROTHY ---- about 1755 probably in Hunterdon County, New Jersey. Dorothy was born about 1736 and was living in Jefferson County, Ohio, in May 1805. She was probably the daughter of Nicholas[3] (?Garret[2], Derrick[1]) and Eugeltie (Vandewater) Albertson. [a,c.]

Samuel Schooley lived in Loudoun County where in the early 1760s he assisted his brother-in-law Garret Albertson (doubtless his wife's brother) in clearing eight acres of the latter's land there.[d] On 24 April 1761, Samuel was granted two "Leases for Lives" in Loudoun County by John Patterson of Loudoun County, Gentleman, attorney for Charles Earl of Tankerville, England. The first lease was to hold during the natural lives of Samuel, age 32, his wife Dorothy, age 24, and his son Garret Schooley, age 3. The other lease was also for the natural life of Samuel Schooley and the natural life of Garret Albertson, age 24, of William Schooley, age 5, and of Nicholas Schooley, age 1 year. [e] In 1771 Samuel Schooley was taxed in Shelburne Parish, Loudoun County.[f]

In his will of 25 September 1786, proved 9 April 1787, Samuel Schooley of Loudoun County, " being sick and weak", named his wife Dorothy and brother John executors. To his daughter Ann he bequeathed a bed and furniture and he requested that his son Jesse have "two years schooling with his board and clothing and that he then may be bound apprentice to a statter or saddler". Upon Dorothy's death or remarriage, the remainder of his estate was to be divided between Jesse and Ann.[b]

a member of the Fairfax Monthly Meeting of Friends in Loudoun County, Virginia, on the 24th of of the 12th month 1785.g On the 24th of the 5th month 1800 she was granted a certificate to the Redstone Monthly Meeting in Fayette County, Pennsylvania, where she was received the 4th of the 7th month, g,h. Five years later, on the 4th of the 10th month, she was granted a certificate to the Short Creek Monthly Meeting in Jefferson County, Ohio, being received there on the 24th of the 5th month 1806.c,h

Before the 28th of the 3rd month 1761 William married ANN MATHEWS of Loudoun County, Virginia. On that date they were reported at the Fairfax Monthly Meeting of Friends in Loudoun County for the misdeed of being married by a priest, and they were disowned on the 30th of the 5th month of that year. Ann made an humble acknowledgment for the marriage on the 31st of the 12th month 1763 and it was accepted, but William was not reinstated as a member until the 21st of the 10th month 1768. As their first five children were born "whilst their parents were not in unity", William and Ann requested they be received as members of the Fairfax Monthly Meeting on the 27th of the 10th month 1770.[b]

In 1760, William was the first Schooley to migrate to Virginia, preceding his father by a year.[a] On the 26th of the 7th month that year William was received at the Fairfax Monthly Meeting from the Kingwood Monthly Meeting in Hunterdon County, New Jersey.[b]

On the 22d of the 10th month 1781, William and Ann and their sons Mahlon, William, John, and Isaac, were granted a certificate to the Hopewell Monthly Meeting in Frederick County, Virginia, being received there on the 17th of the lst month 1782.[b,c] Here again William was condemned for disunity on the 2d of the 5th month 1785, but his acknowledgment was accepted on the 2d of the lst month 1786.[c] The Schooleys then settled in Menallen Township, Fayette County Pennsylvania, in the area now called Brownsville,[a] and here in 1790 William's household was enumerated with two males 16 and upwards and three females.[d] William's family and other Quakers in the area had come under the Westland Monthly Meeting in Washington County, Pennsylvania, in 1785, and then under the Redstone Monthly Meeting in Fayette County in 1793. From the latter meeting he and Ann were granted a certificate back to the Fairfax Monthly Meeting in Virginia on the 29th of the 7th month 1796, they being received there on the 22d of the 4th month 1797.[b,e] On 13 February 1797 William Schooley "Sr." had given his son William power of attorney to execute deeds for land he sold in Fayette County, Pennsylvania.[f]

32...JOHN[5] SCHOOLEY (?Michael[4], ?Thomas [3-2], ?Robert[1]) was born in Middlebrook, New Jersey, on 28 November 1761 and he died in Hamilton County, Ohio, probably in Springfield Township, on 2 or 3 September 1834, aged 74. [a-d.] John Schooley married MARY EARLE. She was born about 1765 and died 14 February 1833, aged 67, probably in Springfield Township, a daughter of Nathaniel and [Mary?] (----) Earle. In his will of 15 March, proved 29 May 1810, Nathaniel Earle of Bergen Commons, Bergen County, New Jersey, named his wife Mary and daughter Mary Schooley. [a-c,e]

During the Revolutionary War, John served as a private in Captain John Outwater's Company of New Jersey Militia. He volunteered for one year of service in April 1799, his residence then being Raritan (in that part now Somerville), New Jersey. In the spring of 1779 he was stationed in Hackensack, guarding lines from Amboy to the North [Hudson] River. He was later pensioned for this service. [a-c]

In his application for a pension John Schooley stated he moved to Ohio from Raritan, New Jersey,[a] but he was doubtless the John taxed in July 1784 in Bridgewater Township, Somerset County, just north of Raritan, and in September 1788 in Hillsborough Township, just south of Raritan.[f] In the late 1790's the Schooleys moved to Hamilton County, Ohio, settling in what became Springfield Township.[g] As "Jno. Scholey" he was a voter in Hamilton County in 1798 and in 1799 the voting list showed his name as John Schooley.[h] John was taxed in Hamilton County in 1806, 1808, 1809, and 1810.[i] In the latter year he had 290 acres in Springfield Township and his tax was $2.90.[j]

Most of the 1800 and all of the 1810 censuses for Ohio were destroyed. In 1820 John's household consisted of one male 10-16, one 45 and upwards, with two persons engaged in agriculture.[k] In 1830 he was enumerated with one male 60-70, one female 15-20, and one 60-70.[l] John's widow Mary may have been the female age 70-80 enumerated with Nathaniel Schooley in Springfield Township in 1840.[m]

John Schooley of Hamilton County was seventy-one years of age when on 25 April 1833 he applied for a Revolutionary War pension under the Congressional Act of 7 June 1832. He was issued a pension certificate on 28 May 1833 at the rate of $40 a year to be paid from March 1831.[a]

John Schooley left a will which was proved in Hamilton County in 1834.[n] He and his wife Mary and most of their family were buried in the cemetery adjacent to the Presbyterian Church in Springfield Township.[a]

Children:

i. NATHANIEL SMITH [6] SCHOOLEY , b. 1780's; d. probably in Springfield Twp., Hamilton Co., in 1847.[n] Nathaniel Schooley lived in Springfield Twp. where in 1820 he was enumerated with two males 16-26, two females under 10, and one 16-26, with two persons engaged in manufacturing.[o] As "Smith" Schooley he had in 1830 one male 15-20, three females under 5, two 5-10, one 10-15, and one 30-40,[p] In 1840 Nathaniel's household consisted of one male under 10, one 15-20, one 50-60, one female 5-10, one 10-15, one 15-20, one 40-50, and one 70-80, with six persons engaged in agriculture.[q] The elder female with Nathaniel that year may have been his widowed mother. Nathaniel Smith Schooley's will was proved in Hamilton Co. in 1847.[n]

34...RICHARD[5] SCHOOLEY (Robert[4], William[3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born the 7th of the 10th month 1758 in New Jersey, probably in Morris County, and he died 13 December 1853, aged 95, probably in the Town of Warren, Herkimer County, New York. [a-e]

On the 14th of the 2d month 1782 Richard Schooley of Hardwich and ELIZABETH [4] SILVERTHORN first declared their intentions of marriage at the Kingwood Monthly Meeting of Friends in Hunterdon County, New Jersey.[f] She was born in Sussex (now Warren) County, New Jersey, 24 December 1763 (or 28 May 1762?), and died 5 February 1854, aged 91, in Richfield Spa, Herkimer County, New York, the daughter of Oliver[3] (?Thomas[2], Oliver[1]) and Eve (----) Silverthorn. [b,d]

In 1793 the Richard Schooleys settled in the Town of Warren, about a mile north of Richfield Springs.[g] In 1800 the Richard "Scooley" household in Warren consisted of two males under 10, one 10-16, one 16-26, one 45 and upwards, three females under10, one 10-16, one 16-26, and one 26-45.[h] In 1810 there were one male under 10, two 10-16, one 16-26, one 45 and upwards, two females under 10, two 10-16, one 16-26,and one 45 and upwards.[i] The Richard Schooley family in 1820 had one male 26-45, one 45 and upwards, one female 10-16, four 16-26, and one 45 and upwards, with two persons engaged in agriculture.[j] Richard has not been found on the 1830 census, at which time he may have been enumerated in the household of one of his children, but in 1840 he was again on the census for Warren, with one male 80-90 and one female 70-80, with one person engaged in agriculture.[k] Lavinia Livingston, 28, born in New York, was living with Richard and Elizabeth in Warren in 1850.[d]

35...WILLIAM [5] SCHOOLEY (Robert[4], William[3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born 30 May 1770 in New Jersey, probably Morris County, and he died at the age of 102 in 1872, perhaps in the Town of Romulus, Seneca County, New York.[a,b]

Until his appearance in New York State, little is known about William, although he may have been the William in Mendham Township, Morris County, listed on the 1793 New Jersey militia census.[c] By 1810 William Schooley had settled in Romulus. That year his household was enumerated with one male under 10, one 10-16, one 26-45, one 45 and upwards, two females under 10, and one 26-45.[d] In 1820 there were one male 10-16, one 16-26, one 26-45, one 45 and upwards, one female 10-16, one 16-26, one 26-45, and one "foreigner not naturalized", with three persons engaged in agriculture.[e] William was also listed on the 1830 census for Romulus[f] but he is not found there in 1840, when he may have been included in the household of a child.

In 1850 William was living with his daughter Adeline in Romulus. Also in the household was Lucien G. Schooley, aged 15, born in New Jersey, perhaps a grandson of William. [b]

36...JONATHAN[5] SCHOOLEY (?Isaac[4], William[3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born about 1777 in New Jersey, probably in Morris County, and he died before 14 May

1856, probably in Goshen Township, Clermont County, Ohio.[a,b]

Jonathan "Schooly" married (1) MARY CLARK in Morris County, New Jersey, in June 1797, they both being of that county at the time.[c] In 1830 he married (2) MARY MORRIS,[d] who was born in Delaware 25 May 1785 and died 14 July 1867.[e]

Selling his land in Morries County in 1805,[f] Jonathan Schooley went to Washington County, Pennsylvania late in 1806.[g] Here in Morris Township he was enumerated in 1810, with three males under 10, one 10-16, one 26-45, one female under 10, one 10-16, and one 26-45.[h] About 1813 the Schooleys moved further west to Hamilton County, Ohio,[g] although they eventually settled in Clermont County. During the War of 1812 "Jonothan" Schooley served as a private in Captain Thomas McConnell's Company in the Ohio Infantry, from 4 September to 31 December.[i]

In Clermont County Jonathan first purchased land in Wayne Township, the original proprietor of which was Andrew Vance. Here Jonathan was an active member of the Newtonville Methodist Episcopal Church.[j] Jonathan was enumerated in Wayne Township on the 1820, 1830, and 1840 censuses.[k]

The Schooleys later moved to Goshen Township, Clermont County, where Jonathan purchased a farm from Lewis Caudler. In Goshen Township the Schooleys were among the first members of the Shiloh Methodist Episcopal Church.[l]

Jonathan Schooley was enumerated in Goshen Township, Clermont County in 1850 at which time he was not working but had real estate valued at $1500. He and his wife Mary could not read or write.[a]

The estate of Jonathan Schooley was settled 14 May 1856.[b]

37...JAMES[5] SCHOOLEY (Joseph[4], Samuel[3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born the 19th of the 9th month 1757, probably in Nottingham Township, Burlington County (now Hamilton Township, Mercer County), New Jersey, and he died the 25th of the 2d month 1826, [a-c] probably in Nottingham Township.

On the 7th of the 9th month 1786 James Schooley of Nottingham Township was married at the Chesterfield Meeting of Friends in Burlington County, to MARY ROGERS, born between 1760 and 1770 and living in Nottingham Township in 1840, the daughter of Isaac and Ann (Taylor) Rogers of Windsor Township, Middlesex County (now Washington Township, Mercer County), New Jersey. [c-f]

The land of James Schooley was mentioned as a boundary to 250 acres of Abraham Eldredge of Nottingham Township, Burlington County, in the latter's will of 9 July 1788.[g] On 31 October 1795, James "Scholey" and William West were made bondsmen to the estate of John Appleton of Nottingham Township.[h] The land of James Schooley was again mentioned on 29 December 1797, in the estate records of William Nutt of Nottingham Township.[i] James was taxed in Nottingham Township in 1820.[e] In the entry of the births of James and Mary's children made in the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting of Friends records is the notation that "the following deem themselves members of the Trenton Meeting".[j]

On the 11 March 1826 administration of the estate of James Schooley of Nottingham Township was granted to Joseph, Mary, and Benjamin Schooley.[b] In 1830 Mary Schooley's household in Nottingham Township had one female 10-15, two 15-20, and one 50-60.[k] In 1840 there were one female 50-60, one 60-70, and one 70-80.[f]

38... JOSEPH[5] SCHOOLEY (Benjamin[4], Samuel[3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born in Newton Township, Sussex County, New Jersey, on the 2d of the 11th month 1760 and he died in Stillwater Township, Sussex County, on 6 June 1846 in his 86th year.[a-d]

On 21 August 1785 Joseph "Scooly" married SUSAN CASE in Sussex County.[e] Susan was born 3 February 1766 and died 6 December 1832, daughter of Joshua and Elizabeth (Dickerson) Case.[a,f]

In 1830 the Schooley household consisted of one male 5-10, one 70-80, three females 20-30, and one 60-70.[g] Ten years later Joseph and his son Benjamin were enumerated in a combined household, which included one male 15-20, one 50-60, one 80-90, one female 30-40, one 40-50, and one 60-70, with two persons engaged in agriculture.[h]

39...WILLIAM[5] SCHOOLEY* (?Samuel[4-3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born the 8th of the 11th month 1766 near Newton, Sussex County, New Jersey, and he died on 6 April 1857 at his home in Brady Township, Union County, Pennsylvania, aged 90 years and 5 months.[a-d] On 26 or 31 March 1796 William married ELIZABETH[3] OAKES in White Deer Valley Hole, Lycoming County, Pennsylvania.[a] She was born 17 November 1774 or 1776, probably in Chester County, Pennsylvania, and she died 22 or 29 October 1831 in White Deer Valley, Lycoming County, Pennsylvania, in her 55th year, the daughter of Samuel[2] (Samuel[1]) and Rebecka (Gibbon) Oakes.[a-c]

In his childhood William lived with his father and step-mother, Elizabeth Willson, in the home of his grandmother, Avis Schooley, with his half-sisters, Sarah and Katherine Gibbon, and his half-brothers and sisters born of Elizabeth Willson, but when his father, Samuel, made ready to leave New Jersey and go to North Carolina, William, then aged 19, together with the Gibbon girls, moved to the home of Samuel Oakes and his wife, Rebecka Gibbon, this Rebecka Gibbon being the sister-in-law of William's mother, Margaret Brown Gibbon.

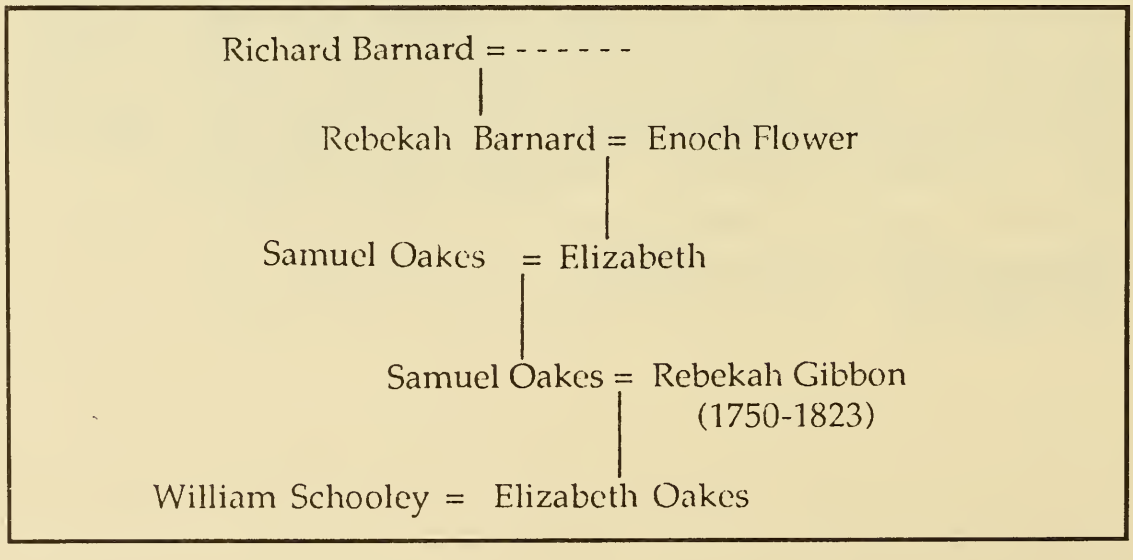
OAKES AND GIBBON

Samuel Oakes was 29 years old at the time he married Rebecka aged 16. He was the son of Samuel Oakes and Elizabeth Flower.

This account confronts an overgenerous number of Samuels! There was Samuel Oakes Jr., the son of Samuel Oakes Sr. , and this Samuel Oakes Sr. was the son of another Samuel Sr. The senior Samuel Oakes in 1713 had married Elizabeth Flower who was the daughter of Enoch Flower and Rebecka Barnard. They had several children included among whom were Flower, Jesse, and Samuel Oakes. Samuel, the son of the Samuel who had married Elizabeth Flower, married in 1766 Rebekah Gibbon (1750-1832), and they, too, had a son, Samuel, and a daughter, Elizabeth Oakes, who in 1796 married William Schooley. (See the chart below.) The Flowers were of Philadelphia and Chester County, and the Gibbon family was also of Chester County in Pennsylvania and northwestern New Jersey.



The Gibbon family had earlier lived in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, whence came John Simcock Jr. who married Samuel Schooley's sister, Asenath. There, too, lived Josiah Dyer Jr. who married another sister of Samuel, Rachel Schooley.

The presence of Oakes, Gibbons and Schooleys under one roof encouraged romance. Sarah Gibbon married William Oakes, the first son of Samuel and Rebecka, and William Schooley married Elizabeth Oakes.

Samuel Oakes and Rebecka Gibbon had eight children:

i. WILLIAM, b. 1768; d. 1832; m. his first cousin SARAH[3] GIBBON, dau. of Nathan[2] and Margaret (Brown) Gibbon.

ii. SAMUEL, b. 1770; d. 1841; m. ANN -----, d. 1855.

iii. FLOWER, b. 1772.

iv. ISAAC, b. 1774?; d. 1834; m. NANCY HOGE, d. 1837.

v. ELIZABETH, b. 17 Nov. 1774 [1776?]; d. in White Deer Valley, Lycoming Co., Pa., 22 Oct. 1831; m. in Washington Twp., Lycoming Co., Pa., 26 Mar. 1796, (No. 39) WILLIAM[5] SCHOOLEY* , b. near Newton, Sussex Co., N.J., 8 Nov. 1766, d. in Brady Twp., Union (now) Co., Pa., 6 Apr. 1857, son of Samuel[4] (Samuel[3] Thomas[2], ?Robert[1] and Margaret (Brown) Schooley.

vi. JOSEPH, b. 1783; d. 1863 [1864?]; m. MARGARET BOWER.

viii. SUSANNAH; m. JOSEPH BEACH.

The records show that Elizabeth's father, Samuel Oakes, was among the taxpayers in Turbit Township of Northumberland County, Pennsylvania about 1779. These records further indicate that Samuel continued to live in Turbit and pay taxes on large holdings of land and livestock until about the year 1792/3 when he moved across the river (West Branch of the Susquehannah) into White Deer Valley onto lands which he then owned.

He is described in a land deed bearing the date May 9, 1792 as a "husbandman of White Deer Township of Northumberland County". The property was conveyed to him by William Gray of Sunbury, Pennsylvania. The tract consisted of 403 acres known as "Hainsburg",* and also a tract of land called "Deer Park" adjoining "Hainsburg" consisting of 388 acres as well as another tract consisting of 325 acres known as "Pleasant Grove". These tracts of land which made a total of 1116 acres comprising a large section of the best farm lands in White Deer Valley lay westwardly from the banks of the West Branch River. These properties had been granted in 1785 by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to Margaret Miller and George Miller of Windsor Township, Berks County, Pennsylvania by letters patent issued by the Commonwealth.

* Reference is made in another place to the "Hainsburg" tract when it, or more likely a portion of it, was sold to Capt. Thomas Silliman in 1796. This is probably not a conflicting statement because the "Hainsburg" consisted of several portions.

Samuel, Oakes had paid to the Commissioners of Northumberland County the amount of defaulted taxes for the years 1787-1790.

The records in the office of the Register of Deeds at Sunbury show that in the year 1802 Samuel and Rebekah Oakes made conveyances of title to large tracts of the above described lands to their sons, William, Flower, Samuel Jr., Isaac, and John, all of whom were at that time of Washington Township then a part of Lycoming County. Also in the same year Samuel Sr. and Rebekah deeded to William Schooley, the husband of Elizabeth, a tract of land of five acres and a fraction. These title deeds were all acknowledged before John Brown, Esq., Justice of the Peace of Washington Township.

The Samuel Oakes family with the Gibbon girls and William Schooley moved from their home in Chester County, Pennsylvania to a section east of Dewart, Pennsylvania at about the time that Samuel Schooley (1743-1832) emigrated to North Carolina in 1785. Then after another 8 years they moved again to the west side of the Susquehannah River into White Deer Valley, then a part of Northumberland County. The descendents of these settlers were still living in the valley 150 years later.

At the very same time that the Oakes family and William Schooley were making their way into White Deer Valley, a French traveler was making his way through the same territory. He left an account of his impressions. He wrote

> " the trees are more frequently barked and burnt than felled which renders the prospect dull and gloomy"

He recounted that the people at the inn were > much surprised at the refusal to sleep with one or two other men in the same bed or between dirty

> There is no settler however poor who does not drink coffee and chocolate and eat saltmeat at breakfast, at dinner comes salt meat again, or salt fish and egg and at supper, once more salt meat and coffee.

At Northumberland the traveler sought the best housing that could be obtained and of it he reported that

> " If the land is well cleared it may yield 15 bushels of wheat to the acre. Corn is produced in large quantities which shows the ignorance and indolence of the farmers for it exhausts the soil. Most of the colonists which have lately arrived from the Jerseys seem all poor, are badly cloathed, yet they have a strong and healthy appearance."

Samuel Oakes Sr. died in 1810 or very soon thereafter. His last will and testament provided for

> "to son, Joseph, all the real estate not previously given to other children except the part on which William Schooley lives"
>
> "to Christiana Bailey...."
> "to Susannah (his daughter), the wife of Joseph Beach....."

The will stipulates that the "title to the tract of land on which William Schooley now lives is to be conveyed to him", and that William Schooley is directed to have surveyed and patented some lands referred to in the will.

William Schooley is not to pay a bond which he had given to the testator.

The first settlers of White Deer Valley constructed their homes of logs along the western shore of the West Branch River from the mouth of South Creek (White Deer Creek) and extending along the river for a mile or so. Communication with families dwelling on the other side of the river in Turbit and Delaware Townships was made possible by the use of a ferry boat or by fording the river when the water was low.

Near the shoreline where the ferry landing was constructed there was built between the years 1793 and 1796 a general store owned by the Brown brothers. William Schooley was the clerk and manager of this store for a short time. William Schooley's principal occupations were in teaching school, surveying and farming. Doubtless he gained some of his knowledge of surveying from assisting his father at such work in New Jersey. The school where he taught was conducted in winter sessions at White Deer Valley. Built of logs the school house was heated by burning wood in an open fireplace built of stone. The window openings were covered with oiled paper to admit the light and keep out the storms. Some of the books which he used in his teaching have been preserved by his descendants. They include The Science of the English Language, The Young Bookkeepers Assistant, Town and Country Builders Assistant, The Young Algebraists Companion. William Schooley appears to have devised a system of shorthand. Manuscripts in his hand have been preserved indicating that he was a skillful penman.

About six months before his marriage to Elizabeth Oakes William made preparation for their home by purchasing on October 8, 1795 "a small tract of land and the building thereon" in Washington Township of White Deer Valley. The purchase was made of James McLaughlin. The deed is recorded at Sunbury, Northumberland County in the Register of Deeds Office April 1, 1796.

Other records in the Registry of Deeds indicate that William Schooley was the surveyor of plats of land for several persons: the Oakes, Browns, Montgomery, Fulmers, and others. He owned a "farmer's store" between the years 1810-12. The building stood next to Hugh Donley Inn at Weeks by which name the settlement was then known. The area was named after the first settlers, the widow Weeks and her son, Jesse.*

In 1815 the region became a part of Union, and the village is now known by the name of Allenwood. The following is quoted from the History of Susquehanna and Juniata Valleys:

> "A school taught by William Schooley stood where the town of Union was laid out. Another was at the place where Spring Creek crosses the main road west of Spring Garden Mills. At this place then stood an Indian fort. Another school of his was near the base of Penny Hill near the Old Log Presbyterian Church".

The following is quoted from the report of the Hon. T. F. Gahan, Superintendent of Schools of Lycoming County, Pennsylvania of the year 1877:

> " In 1799 William Schooley had a school in that part of Washington Township which is now in Brady

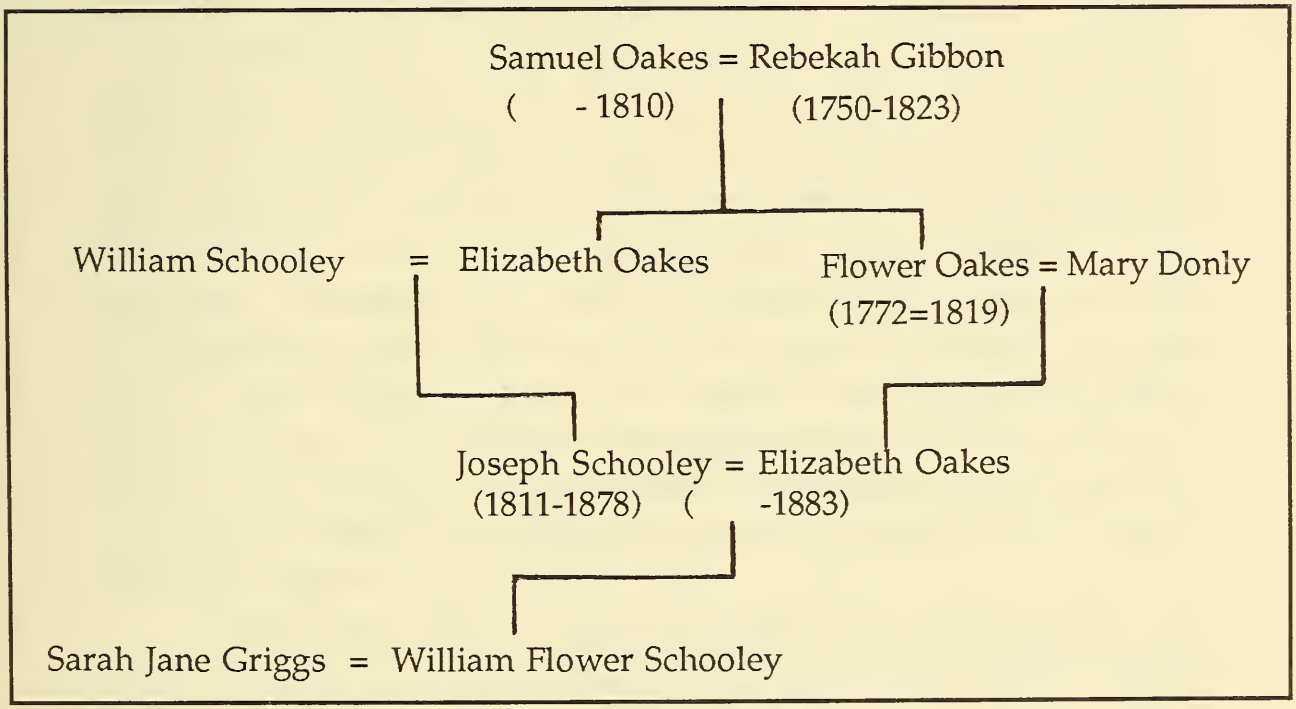
* Rachel Weeks occupied a small hut near the mouth of White Deer Hole Creek. Also living in the same neighborhood was the widow Smith. This lady manufactured gun barrels for the Continental Army, but the Indians burned her works there. She is said to have walked to Philadelphia thirteen times in an attempt to obtain some justice. When she died it was said that she was buryed in the settlers graveyard, yet her bones were "kicked up" when someone was constructing a sheep shed.

Township, Lycoming County. The school was built by the free labor of the patrons of the school of round logs. The tuition was $1.50 for a three month term.

The report of the Hon. A. S. Burrowes, Superintendent of Schools for Union County relates:

" The first school of which we find any account was a night school taught by William Schooley Sr. in a house situated north of Spring Creek. This was prior to the year 1799."

Of the children of Samuel Oakes and Rebekah Gibbon only two of them, Flower Oakes and Elizabeth Oakes, are treated here. Elizabeth Oakes married William Schooley in 1796. Flower Oakes married Mary Donly. The son of William Schooley and Elizabeth Oakes, Joseph, married another Elizabeth Oakes, the daughter of Flower Oakes and Mary Donly. This is best visualized in the accompanying graph:



Samuel Oakes Jr. and his wife Rebeckah by a land deed conveyed title to William Schooley, their son-in-law, for a small tract of land. All parties to this deed are described as being residents of Washington Township of Northumberland County, yet this part of Washington Township was taken in the year 1795 from Northumberland County and incorporated into the newly erected county of Lycoming. Their deed was dated Dec. 15, 1802. The land mentioned in this deed was in Washington Township and was part of a large tract of land which had been purchased May 9, 1792 by Samuel Oakes. It became a part of the homestead of Willaim Schooley and his family. In 1833 William passed title to Daniel Steinmetz of Philadelphia for the portion of his farm which he received by deed from Samuel Oakes. At this date the deed says the land conveyed was in Gregg Township of Union County. The following day William Schooley bought of Daniel Steinmetz and Eliza, his wife, of Philadelphia for $1575 and other considerations a "plantation or tract of land in Washington Township consisting of 242 acres bounded by lands of Mary Stevens, McClosky and Culbertson along a creek to a buttonwood tree". Eight years after this purchase of the Steinmetz plantation in 1841 William, then a widower* sold and conveyed title by deed to Dr. Peter Ludwig of White Deer Valley a small tract of land of over 46 acres, a part of his homestead where his children were raised. This property was located on Schooley's Hill about a quarter of a mile west of the village of Allenwood, then called Uniontown, in White Deer Valley. After disposing of this farm, he and his unmarried children moved up the valley to a larger farm. The deed from Steinmetz was acknowledged before Daniel Fulmer, Justice of the Peace of the Valley and recorded in May 1843 at Williamsport. William bought 53 acres in August 1852 of his son-in-law, Joseph McCormick. This land was along South Creek joining the lands of Snoddy, Sylliman, and Schooley. The title deed was acknowledged before Thomas Sylliman, Justice of the Peace of Washington Township, Lycoming County, Pennsylvania.

The home where William resided at the time of his death in 1857 was his farmstead which lay along South Creek. The farm was partly in two townships in two counties. The division line between these counties ran between his residence and his barns. The records of the deeds at Lewisburg, Union County indicate that in April 1859 the heirs of William Schooley sold to William Schooley Jr. "283 acres of land lying along South Creek, a branch of White Deer Creek in Washington Township, Lycoming County and in Brady Township of Union County". William had died intestate.

White Deer Valley was a broad and beautiful valley extending westward from the Susquehannah River in what was then Northumberland County but which was later adopted a part of Union County. It lies between mountains on two sides, Bald Eagle Mountain is on the northern side near the cities of Montgomery, Muncy, and Williamsport, and White Deer Mountain is on the south side with Allenwood and Elimsport nearby. The West Branch River flows along the easterly side. The valley is about eleven miles long and eight miles wide lying along the river. Here the Schooleys made their homes for a hundred seventy years.

If one should drive up the highway today to the town of Allenwood and ask about the location of White Deer Valley, one might receive a puzzled look. Of course many know it, but someone will say, "oh, that's where the prison is" or "that's where they put all them missile sights". Obviously White Deer Valley is not what it used to be.

White Deer Valley was originally a part of Berks County. Then in 1772 Northumberland County was organized out of Berks. In the beginning of Northumberland County the Township of Buffalo included White Deer Valley, but in 1776 White Deer Township was formed. In 1789 a new township of Washington was established by dividing White Deer Township. The valley became the new Washington Township of Northumberland County. Six years later, in 1795, Lycoming County was erected, and the Township of Washington passed from Northumberland to Lycoming County.

The earliest settlers of White Deer Valley and those on the opposite eastern side of the West Branch River attended church services at a log Presbyterian Church which stood at the present site of Watsontown. This building was burned by the Indians. A replacement for this church was also built of logs on the site of Warrior Run near old Fort Freeland. This structure was also burned down along with all the church records. A new church stands on the same ground a short distance east of Dewart. Beside it lies a cemetery whose ground was the gift of Joseph Henderson, deeded by him in the year 1789. Previous to the year 1795 the Samuel Oakes family and William Schooley attended the services at the Warrior Run Presbyterian Church.

The "Old Log" Presbyterian Church near the western base of Penny Hill was the only church available to the settlers of White Deer Valley and Black Hole Valley for a number of years. The "Old Log" which burned along with its records was succeeded by the "Stone Church" which became known as "Old Stone". In the graveyard of "Old Stone" are the graves of pioneers of the valley, soldiers of the War of the American Revolution, the War of 1812, and of the Civil War 1861-65.

The Washington Presbyterian Church was organized in 1829. Among its first elders were William Oakes, James Russell, Samuel Oakes, and Daniel Fulmer. Isaac Greer became the first minister in 1830 and continued until 1853, then the Rev. Mathew Patterson served from 1854 to 1858. He was succeeded by John Boyd who remained until 1870. After 1870 the Rev. Leffard Houghawout held a long pastorate.*

The White Deer Baptist Church was organized in 1808. The ground for the cemetery which lies opposite this church was received from Joseph Oakes in 1850. This site lies along the highway between Allenwood and Alvira. William and Elizabeth Oakes Schooley are buried there along with Samuel and Rebeckah Oakes, the parents of Elizabeth.

William and Elizabeth Oakes Schooley had thirteen children:

40... JAMES[5] SCHOOLEY (Samuel[4-3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1] was born in Hardwick Township, Sussex (now Warren) County, New Jersey, the 13th of the 1st month 1780,[a] and he died before 4 April 1804, probably in Grayson County, Virginia.[b]

On the 12th of the 7th month 1802 James married SUSANNAH BETTS in Grayson County. She was the daughter of William and Mary (-----) Betts of Grayson County.[c] James had been granted a certificate on the 5th of the 7th month 1802 from the Deep River Monthly Meeting of Friends in Guilford County, North Carolina, to the Mount Pleasant Monthly Meeting in Grayson County, no doubt in order to marry.[d]

Earlier in the year of his marriage James witnessed his father's purchase of the family homestead. In 1803 James was listed on a personal tax list for Grayson County.[b]

The estate of James Schooley was appraised in Grayson County on 4 April 1804 and the inventory included a flax wheel, an old chest, a woman's saddle, a looking glass, and pewter dishes.[b]

After the death of James Schooley, his widow Susannah and son William were granted a certificate on the 26th of the 8th month 1809 from the Mount Pleasant Monthly Meeting to the Fairfield Monthly Meeting in Highland County, Ohio, where they were received on the 27th of the 1st month 1810.[c,e] While there Susannah married (2) Amos Lundy, for which she was dismissed for marriage contrary to Quaker discipline.[e] Amos and Susannah had four children: Maryann, Rachel, Dempsey, and Aaron.[f] He was probably the Amos[5] Lundy, son of Amos[4] (Richard[3-2-1]) and Ann (Collins) Lundy of Grayson County, Virginia.[g]

Susannah was reinstated a member at the Fairfield Monthly Meeting on the 30th of the 1st month 1813.[h] On the 26 of the 2d month 1814, Amos Lundy, his wife Susannah, and her minor son William Schooley were granted a certificate by the Fairfield Monthly Meeting to the Center Monthly Meeting in Clinton County, Ohio, where they were received on the 2d of the 4th month 1814.[h,i] Here Amos and Susannah were disowned the 17th of the 12th month 1828 for joining the Hicksite Quakers.[i]

Child:

WILLIAM[6]; perhaps the William condemed 18 8m 1827 by the Center MM for marriage out of unity and dismissed 17 11m 1830 for disunity.[j]

41...JOHN[5] SCHOOLEY (Samuel[4-3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born in Hardwick Township, Sussex (now Warren) County, New Jersey, on the 13th of the 2d month 1782 and he was living in 1860 in Indiana, probably in Grant County.[a,d]

John Schooley married SUSANNAH JOHNSON on the 4th of the 4th month 1805 in Grayson County, Virginia. Susannah, who died in Indiana at the age of 83, was a daughter of Thomas and Ann (-----) Johnson and sister of Rachel who married John Schooley's brother Samuel and of Rebeckah who married John's brother Benjamin.[b,c,e]

i. SUSANNAH m. JOHN SCHOOLEY
ii. RACHEL m. SAMUEL SCHOOLEY
iii. REBECKAH m. BENJAMIN SCHOOLEY
iv. JOAN
v. SAMUEL

vi. ELIZABETH m. JAMES LUNDY*

The Johnson family came from Stokes County, North Carolina about the year 1802 and had acquired land along Pine Creek being neighbors of Samuel Schooley. They were members of the Mount Pleasant Meeting.

In 1804 John witnessed his father's purchase of 80 acres from Zacariah Stanley. John then purchased from Stanley in November 1805, 175 acres on Lower Pine Creek in Grayson County, selling it in 1818 to Stephen Wright.[f]

In 1811 John and Susannah Schooley and their children, Isaac and Asenath, went to Preble County, Ohio, where they were received the 7th of the 12th month by the Elk Creek Monthly Meeting of Friends on a certificate from the Mount Pleasant Monthly Meeting in Grayson County, Virginia, dated the 28th of the 9th month.[g] Three years later, Susannah's parents also settled there, by which time the Schooleys had moved to the Center Monthly Meeting in Clinton County, Ohio, being granted a certificate on the 5th of the 9th month and received the 6th of the 6th month (or the 4th of the 7th month) 1812.[h] From the Springfield Monthly Meeting in Clinton County, Ohio, they were granted a certificate on the 27th of the 3d month 1819 to the New Garden Monthly Meeting in Wayne County, Indiana, where they were received the 19th of the 6th month.[i] The Schooleys lived in Randolph County, Indiana, where in 1820 their household consisted of one male 10-16, one 26-45, three females under 10, and one 26-45, with one person engaged in agriculture.[j] By 1830, however, the family was living in

* James Lundy who married Elizabeth Johnson was the son of Amos Lundy and Ann -----. James was married a second time to Sarah Schooley, and by this marriage there were twelve children.

Wayne County.[k] While at New Garden, John Schooley served on various committees and on the 20th of the 5th month 1820 he was appointed overseer of the Arba Preparative Meeting in Randolph County, Indiana, requesting to be released of that post three years later.[l]

From Wayne County the John Schooleys moved in 1831 with son Isaac and their married daughters to Henry County, Indiana, where Susannah and her youngest daughters "Edith", Susannah, and Rachel were received at the Duck Creek Monthly Meeting in Henry County on the 21st of the 4th month 1831. Here John, a member of the Spiceland Preparative Meeting, attempted membership the following year, but the New Garden Monthly Meeting, from which he had been dismissed, did not give consent.[m] When the Spiceland Monthly Meeting was formed in or about 1833, Susannah and her daughters, Susannah and Rachel, were among the original members.[n] On the 21st of the 12th month 1836 Susannah and daughters Susannah and Rachel were granted a certificate to the Mississinewa Monthly Meeting in Marion, Indiana, where they were received the 8th of the 2d month 1837. Here John Schooley was reinstated as a member on the 17th of the 9th month 1838.[o] In 1860 he was on a committee "for welfare of people of color".[d]

42... SAMUEL[5] SCHOOLEY (Samuel[4-3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born in Hardwick Township, Sussex (now Warren) County, New Jersey, on the 25th of the 8th month 1784 and he died in Clinton Conty, Ohio, on the 27th of the 1st month 1844, aged 59.[a,c]

On the 2d of the 1st month 1809 Samuel married RACHEL JOHNSON in North Carolina. She was born the 27th of the 2d month 1792 and died in Clinton County the 11th of the 4th month 1863, aged 71, the daughter of Thomas and Ann (-----) Johnson of Grayson County and sister of Rebeckah who married Samuel's brother Benjamin Schooley and of Susannah who married Samuel's brother John Schooley[b-d] .

In 1835 the Schooleys moved to Indiana, being received on the 17th of the 9th month at the White Lick Monthly Meeting in Morgan County, on a certificate from the Deep Creek Monthly Meeting in Surry (now Yadkin) County, North Carolina, dated the 2d of the 11th month 1833, with the intent of transferring their membership to the Center Monthly Meeting in Clinton County, Ohio.[e] They were received at the latter meeting on the 17th of the 12th month 1834, being "endorsed by White Lick" on the 17th of the 9th month 1834.[f]

Samuel's will was proved in 1844 in Clinton County.[g] He and Rachel were buried in the Center Meetinghouse Cemetery.[b,c]

43... BENJAMIN[5] SCHOOLEY (Samuel[4-3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born the 2d of the 4th month 1788 in Surry (now Stokes) County, North Carolina, and he was living in 1840 in Henry County, Indiana.[a-c]

On the 29th of the 11th month 1809 he married (1) REBECKAH JOHNSON in North Carolina. She was born in Grayson County, Virginia, the 29th of the 9th month 1794 and died the 31st of the 8th month 1832 near Cherry Grove, Indiana, the daughter of Thomas and Ann (-----) Johnson of Grayson County and sister of Susannah who married Benjamin's brother John Schooley and of Rachel who married Benjamin's brother Samuel Schooley[b,d].

Benjamin married (2) in 1834, after the 5th of the 6th month, SARAH DAVIS, who was born the 2d of the 5th month 1801 in Carteret County, North Carolina, and died the 2d of the 8th month 1837, daughter of Joseph and Susanna (-----) Davis.[b,e] In 1839, after the 23d of the 1st month, Benjamin married (3) JEMIMA (WRIGHT) DRAPER, probably the daughter of John and Jemima (Haworth) Wright of South Carolina and Ohio, and widow of Josiah Draper.[b,e] Benjamin and his wife Rebeckah migrated to Ohio in 1812 and settled in Clinton County, where his brother John also lived. They were received at the Center Monthly Meeting there on the 3d of the 7th month 1813, on a certificate from the Mount Pleasant Monthly Meeting in County, North Carolina, dated the 26th of the 9th month 1812.[f] Benjamin is not found listed as a head of a household on the 1820 census for Ohio.

From the Springfield Monthly Meeting in Clinton County, Ohio, Benjamin, Rebeckah, and their children were granted a certificate on the 30th of the 12th month 1820 to the New Garden Monthly Meeting in Wayne County, Indiana, where they were received the 18th of the 6th month 1821.[g] From there the family was granted a certificate to the Cherry Grove Monthly Meeting in Randolph County, Indiana, where they were recieved the 10th of the 4th month 1824.[h] At this time the family remained in Wayne County, where they were enumerated in 1830.[i] From Cherry Grove Benjamin was granted a certificate on the 14th of the 9th month 1833 to the Spiceland Monthly Meeting in Henry County, Indiana, where he and his sons Wilson, Samuel, James, and Milton were received in the 11th month of that year.[e,h] In Henry County Benjamin was enumerated in 1840.[c]

44...NATHAN[5] SCHOOLEY (Samuel[4-3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born in Stokes County, North Carolina, on the 9th of the 1st month 1792, and he died in Clinton County, Ohio, in September 1839.[a-c] Nathan married SARAH STANBROUGH at the Center Meeting of Friends in Clinton County, Ohio, on the 19th of the 3d month 1817. She was the daughter of Solomon and Tabitha (-----) Stanbrough of Clinton County, Ohio,[d] and she died in Clinton County on 26 October 1844.[b-d]

When a young man, Nathan left his home in North Carolina and migrated to Clinton County, Ohio, where two of his brothers also settled. He was received there the 15th of the 2d month 1817 at the Center Monthly Meeting on a certificate from the Mount Pleasant Monthly Meeting dated the 26th of the 10th month 1816.[e] We have a minute from the Center Monthly Meeting which records their declaration of intention to marry which is quoted here with the spellings retained:

> "...for Nathan Schoolly which was red and received Nathan Schoolly and Sarah Stanbrough appeard and decleared thear intentions of mariage with each other. Enoch Wickersham and Samuel Stanton are appointed to inquire into the young mans Clairness relative to others and report to next Meeting..."

On the 26th of the 11th month 1820, Nathan and his family were granted a certificate from the Springfield Monthly Meeting, also in Clinton County, to the Center Monthly Meeting, where they were received on the 20th of the 1st month 1821.[f] The Schooleys lived in Liberty Township, Clinton County, where Nathan was enumerated in 1820 and 1830.[g]

In his will, proved in Clinton County, Ohio, in 1839, Nathan named sons Aaron, Omri, and Benjamin, and daughters Rachel, Mary, Hannah, and Miriam. He seems to have been quite wealthy when he died.[h] His widow may have been the Sarah Schooley who married James Lundy before the 13th of the 10th month 1841.[e]

Both Nathan Schooley and his wife Sarah were buried in Green County, Ohio.[i]

49...ANDREW[6] SCHOOLEY (Judiah[5], William[4], ?William[3], Robert[2-1]) was born about 1762 in Greenwich Township, Sussex (now Warren) County, New Jersey, and he died, probably in Derry Township, Northampton

County, Pennsylvania, between 18 April and 4 August 1814.[a] Andrew married (1) SARAH MARTIN in Greenwich, New Jersey, on 20 May 1787.[b] She probably died in the early 1790s and he married (2) MARTHA ------ who was born 14 January 1777 and died 3 November 1856.[c]

Andrew Schooley moved to Fishing Creek Township, Northumberland County, Pennsylvania. On 1 March 1801 he and Joseph Hendershott purchased the 310 acre estate of Jonathan Jones, deceased, for £600. On 24 August 1805, Joseph Hendershott of Bloom Township, Northumberland (now Montour?) County, sold to Andrew Schooley his interest in the place, being land situated on the northeast branch of the Susquehanna River. On 18 April 1814 Andrew and his wife Martha of Derry Township sold to Ferdinand Ritter of the same place, 200 acres which they had purchased 30 April 1809 from John Fruit and his wife.[a] On 4 August 1814 Martha M. Schooley and Isaac Hendershott were appointed administrators of the estate of Andrew Schooley, late of Derry Township. The following year Martha was also administratrix of the estate of William Schooley of Derry Township, probably her stepson.[a] Martha was probably the Martha Schooley, widow, enumerated in Madison Township, Columbia County, Pennsylvania in 1820, with one male under 10, one 10-16, one 16-18, one 16-26, one female 10-16, and one 26-45, with one person engaged in agriculture.[d] She is not found there on the 1830 census but was listed in Madison Township again in 1840.[e] In 1850 she was probably the Martha Schooley in Montour County.[f]

50...JOSEPH PARK[6] SCHOOLEY (?Judiah[5], William[4], ?William[3], Robert[2-1]) was born in Greenwich Township, Sussex (now Warren) County, New Jersey, 17 August 1785 and he died in Exeter Township, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, 28 January 1875, aged 90.[a,b]

On 10 or 12 December 1809 he married MARGARET BARBER in Greenwich, New Jersey. She was born 25 November 1792 and died 7 June 1865, the daughter of Jesse and Joanna(h) (Shipman) Barber of Greenwich.[a,b] The Schooleys settled in the Wyoming Valley of Pennsylvania, in Exeter Township, Luzerne County, where Joseph was a "prosperous farmer and owned valuable real estate".[a] They went there in 1818, one of the pioneer farming families of the valley. In 1825 Joseph took from the bed of the Susquehanna River a half ton of coal, hauled it sixty-seven miles to Easton, and sold it to a blacksmith for ten dollars.[c] In 1820 Joseph's household in Exeter Township contained three males under 10, one 26-45, two females under 10, and one 26-45, with one person engaged in agricultre.[d] He was also enumerated in Exeter Township in 1830 and 1840.[e]

Joseph and Margaret Schooley were buried in the cemetery in Wyoming, Pennsylvania.[a]

51...NATHANIEL[6] SCHOOLEY (John[5], William[4], ?William[3], Robert[2-1]) was born in Greenwich Township, Sussex (now Warren) County, New Jersey, in 1775,* and he probably died in Exeter Township, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, before 20 March 1837, when his son William sold his interest in the estate.[a]

Nathaniel married before 1801, probably in Greenwich, SARAH -----.[b] Perhaps her maiden name was Laffert, the name of one of her sons. Nathaniel "Schoollby" was listed as part of the militia for "Grannage" Township, Sussex County, in 1793.[c] About 1817 he left Greenwich Township with his cousin Joseph Park Schooley and others and went to Exeter Township, settling near Carverton, in the area then known as Northmoreland. Here on 1 March 1817 he purchased one hundred acres from Joseph Horsfield of Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, which he successfully farmed.[a,d]

Nathaniel's household in Exeter Township in 1820 consisted of one male under 10, one 10-16, one 16-18, one 16-26, one 26-45, one 45 and upwards, two females 10-16, and one 45 and upwards, with one person engaged in agriculture and one in manufacturing.[e] Nathaniel has not been found on the 1830 census.

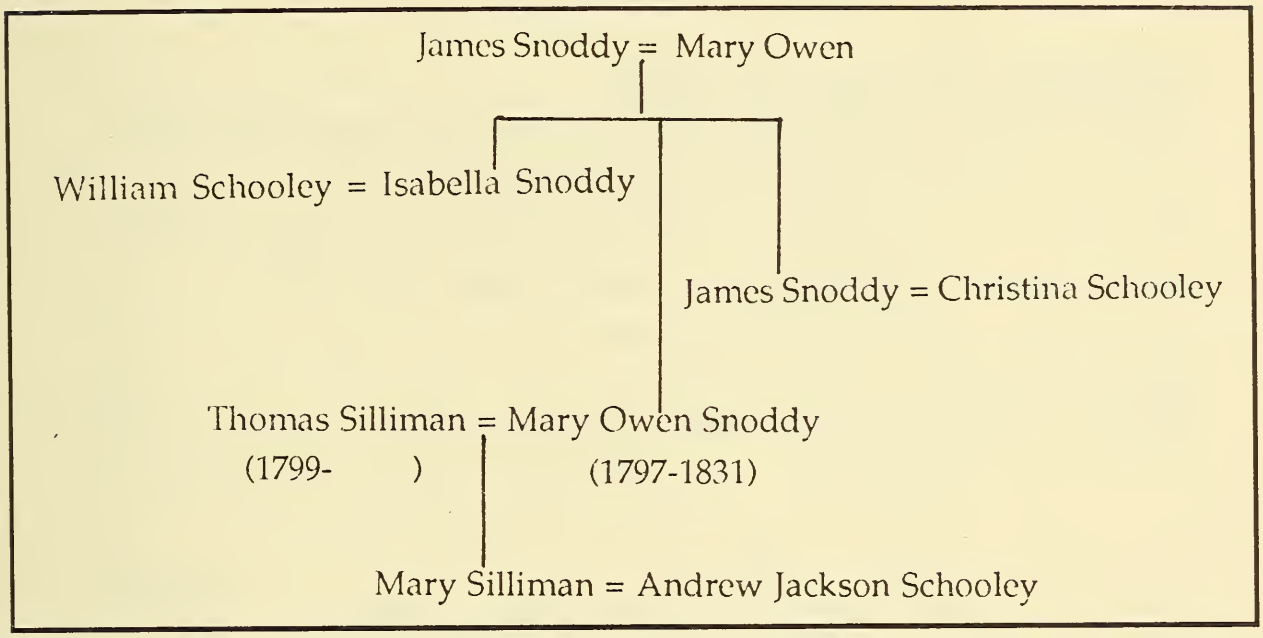
80...WILLIAM[6] SCHOOLEY (William[5], ?Samuel[4-3], Thomas[2], ? Robert[1]) was born in White Deer Hole Valley, Washington Township, Lycoming County (now Gregg Township, Union County), Pennsylvania, on 12 November 1808, and he died 2 August 1880 in the Village of Spring Garden in White Deer Hole Valley.[a-c]

He married ISABELLA SNODDY in February 1825 in White Deer Hole Valley. She was born 27 January 1808 in the same valley and died near there on 30 January 1894, aged 86 years and 3 days, the daughter of James and Mary (Owen) Snoddy and sister of James who married William's sister Christina Schooley.[b,c] The Snoddys immigrated from County Down (or County Londonderry) Ireland, about 1798[a] , and settled in White Deer Valley, in Washington Township, Lycoming County, Pennsylvania.

Mary Owen Snoddy was of Welsh ancestry and died two months short of her one-hundreth birthday.



William Schooley farmed in Washington Township, Lycoming County, where he was enumerated as William "Jr." in 1840.[e] In 1850 his farm was valued at $1500. That year his mother-in-law, Mary Snoddy, was living in his household.[b] In 1860 he was a trustee of the White Deer Baptist Church, as were his brothers John, Joseph, and William.

He had two farms, one of 129 acres, the other of 70 acres, and 50 acres of timber, all near the present Village of Spring Garden. He also owned the store in Spring Garden and another small piece of land with a house and buildings just west of the store. He was elected Supervisor of Township Roads. William and Isabella Schooley were buried in the Washington Presbyterian Church cemetery in White Deer Hole Valley.[a]

82... ANDREW JACKSON[6] SCHOOLEY (William[5], ?Samuel[4-3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born in Washington Township, Lycoming County, Pennsylvania, on 13 May 1815, and he died in Allenwood, Pennsylvania, on 18 January 1892.[c] He was named to honor Major-General Andrew Jackson who had recently won a decisive victory over the British at New Orleans near the end of the War of 1812 and who would later be be elected the seventh President of the United States.

On 25 March 1858 Andrew was married to MARY[5] SNODDY SILLIMAN at the home of her father in White Deer Valley, by the pastor of the Washington Presbyterian Church.[a] Mary was born in Lycoming County on 18 March 1827 and she died 26 July 1898 in Union County, Pennsylvania, the daughter of Thomas[4], (Thomas[3], Alexander[2], Thomas[1]) and Mary Owen (Snoddy) Silliman.

In 1850 Andrew was still living with his father in Washington Township.[b] While still a young man in his late twenties, he made a journey to the northwest, living for a time in Toledo, Ohio, and later in Tipton, Iowa. These places were then frontier towns. In Tipton he became owner of a tract of land about four miles south of that place.

Andrew J. Schooley was admitted into membership of the White Deer Baptist Church on 18 March 1849. His wife Mary, a few years after their marriage, relinquished her membership in the Presbyterian Church and was received into the White Deer Baptist Church on 9 August 1862. Andrew, his brothers Joseph, John, and William, together with S. S. Pawling, John Tate, and James Snoddy, were trustees of this church when in April 1860 Joseph Oakes and his wife Margaret granted the land for the church building. In 1865 Andrew and Mary transferred their membership to the Elimsport Baptist Church.

In 1876 Andrew bought the farm of his father-in-law, Thomas Silliman, Esq., consisting of 150 acres along the South Creek of White Deer Valley in Washington Township, Lycoming County. It bordered the lands of Thomas Silliman, James Snoddy, William Oakes, and Joseph Schooley. On this site Andrew built a lime kiln and opened a quarry for the production of burnt lime.

In 1878 Andrew Schooley was one of the incorporators of the West Branch Mutual Fire Insurance Company which had its home office in Muncie, Lycoming County. His nephew, William Flower Schooley, became secretary of the company.

On 1 April 1886, Andrew's sister Elizabeth Schooley conveyed to him a lot of one acres and forty perches "with the residence and other buildings thereon" located at Spring Garden Mills in White Deer Valley. Here

Andrew's daughters Elizabeth and Mary resided a number of years. Andrew and his wife Mary sold a tract of farm land of about 60 acres near Elimsport to Jacob Lowe in June 1888. One of the witnesses to the deed was John S. Laird of Williamsport, Andrew's brotherin-law and the County Surveyor of Lycoming County for twenty-four years. Andrew and Mary Schooley were buried in the cemetery of the White Deer Baptist Church.

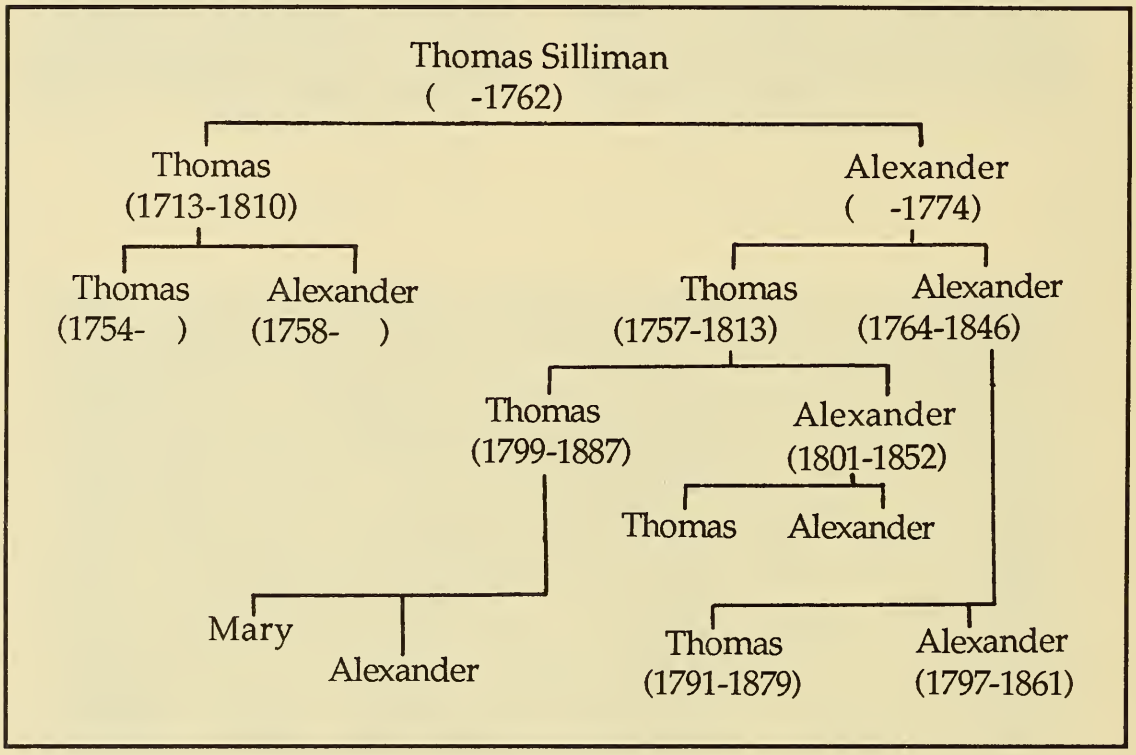
The Sillimans

Because a number of letters and other documents relating to the Sillimans have been preserved, the Silliman family becomes a greater center of importance. In discussing this family one must keep a keen eye on dates of birth and death. The names Thomas and Alexander were used again and again; each Thomas had sons Thomas and Alexander, and each Alexander had sons Thomas and Alexander. The complexity is seen in the graph:



Further, James Silliman had sons Thomas and Alexander, and doubtless there were others. Of course, they weren't all alive at the same time, but with seven of them living in the same community it is needful to keep a watchful eye on dates. Consider this family which became allied with the Schooleys.

The first Silliman in the New World was Thomas (-1762) who arrived in Pennsylvania in 1728, a member of the newly established Hunter Settlement of Presbyterians in Northampton County, a place later known as Mount Bethel. In fact, there were five Silliman families which came to America. In addition to Thomas, John Silliman settled in New Jersey, another John settled in North Carolina, and a third John settled in South Carolina. The one of first concern to this account is Thomas who came to Pennsylvania in 1728. *

1. THOMAS[1] SILLIMAN [Sillyman] died in 1762. He married AGNES----- who died in 1778.

Children:

2. i. THOMAS[2], b. 1713.
3. ii. ALEXANDER
4. iii. JOHN

The estate of the senior Thomas Silliman was administered by his son, Thomas, who gave bond for that purpose March 22, 1763. In March 1773 he petitioned the court of Northampton County for an order to sell some

*His arrival preceded the massive emigration of the Irish people to America which got under way about 1820. After the famine of 1845 the inundation became a stampede. By 1860 there were five times as many people from Ireland in America as there were from England. However, Thomas had arrived some 90 years before.

lands of his father. Agnes Silliman, the wife of Thomas Sr., left a will of the date April 25,1774 which was probated at Easton February 20, 1778.. In her will she is described as of Forks Township Northampton County, Pennsylvania. Among other bequests the will stipulates:

> "the procedes from George Beard's note shall be divided among my three grandsons, Thomas, Alexander, and James"
> She also mentions "my son, Alexander., my son, Thomas....."

Although the place where Thomas Silliman first lived in Pennsylvania was called Mount Bethel, the region was in time divided into two Mount Bethel townships. Upper Mount Bethel became a township in 1787, and the original Bethel became known as Lower Mount Bethel. Very likely the Sillimans and other immigrants settled here because it bore a striking resemblance to the fields and hills of home.

2. THOMAS[2] SILLIMAN (Thomas[1] was born in 1713 and died on 24 February 1810. Thomas was married twice. His second wife was SARAH NELSON, who died before 1789.

Thomas Silliman, the first son of Thomas and Agnes was fifteen years old when he arrived in Pennsylvania with his parents. The name of his first wife is not known. They had five children. His second wife was Sarah Nelson. They also had five children:

In his last will and testament, dated April 24, 1804, when he was a resident of Northumberland County, Thomas Silliman devised as follows:

" I, Thomas Syllyman, late of Forks Township, yeoman, advanced in years.....
unto my grandson, Thomas, the eldest son of my son, James..... to my son , James, and my daughters, Mary, Sarah, and Elizabeth... and to the six children of my son Alexander".

The executors of the will were named:

"my much esteemed friends Robert Moody and John Hutchinson".

The will was probated January 7, 1811. Squire Thomas Silliman died in 1810. This Thomas Silliman and Garret Middaugh, who also died in 1810, were judges of election in Northampton County. Thomas Silliman, along with others had signed a petition to the courts of Easton, Pennsylvania on the 18th of June 1775 requesting that "licences for saloons be denied to catholics as they prompted disloyalty to the cause of the patriots for independence".

Thomas was a Justice of the Peace in Northampton County in 1777 and a member of the Committee of Correspondence of Northampton County in 1775 and 1776.

A letter writtten by the son, Alexander, to his grandmother, Margaret Silliman, bearing the date July 1, 1802 has been preserved. A transcription of this letter with the spelling and punctuation unchanged follows:

On May 17,1802 James and Mary Hunter Silliman of the town of Derry sold their land to the Rev. John Patterson, gathered together their children, their livestock and home furnishings, and embarked upon a journey to the northeast of Erie County, Pennsylvania. Four letters have been preserved which bear the dates 1802, 1807, 1811, and 1815. They were sent back to friends and relatives of James and Mary from their home in Erie County.*

The first of these letters is very much faded and it would seem impossible to read. Through the use of ultraviolet light and much persistence it has been possible to produce a script of it. It was addressed to Mary Sillyman in White Deer Valley..."..by John Silly...." "To the care of Thomas Sillyman"

Fragment of a letter sent by James and Mary Hunter Silliman from Erie County to White Deer Valley:

"August 13 1802 Erie County Greenfield township Loving mother Brothers and Sisters We Embrace this opurtunity of letting you know that me and my family is all in good health at present Wishing these may find you all in the same state We arrived at our New Habitation in four weks and one Day after we started. we had our health very well except Nancy. She was troubled very much with the Sick headache and was not very well for some time after we got Here. The thing was a good deal fatiguing (?) running after the creatures We got all safe out but two Sheep that got poisoned and one the wagon killed and the other we drove nine days and had to leave it we had No Difficulty along the road for anything but horse feed scarce and very Dear. We had to give one Dollar and one quarter for wheat to feed and one Dollar for oats and my whole expen on the road from i started to i arrived We wanted one quarter of a dollar of twenty pound. Wheat is one dollar and one quarter and corn one Dollar. My wheat was greatly Destroyed with the ground Squirrels and Turkeys. I planted five bushels of potatoes the five and sixth of July But the Drought was So hard they did not all get up till August. We had No rain from we got here till the 30th of July. We had got a patch of turnips sowd and our little grain and flax gathered and in Mary says she is Not satisfied and Wonders what the plague entices people to come to Nothing but ..... But for myself I am beter satisfied than expected. If I had got things put in order But that will take some time where so many things are wanting. I have sent the young horse Down with Mr. Sheep and wish Thomas or Alex take a bag or two of rye and get it chopt and give him a couple of little feeds a day to make him up and sell him for me the first opertunity I would be glad if I could get half the price of him in hand so as to send it to me with John Sheep. and desire..... to take pay for the... and their trouble trouble and can feed (?) him for to make what abatement on the price they think proper..... the money to hire a little land cleared would be of great service to me. As it will out of my power to clear any my self against I get away provided for the sheltering of the creatures and an ourselves winter will be here if not sooner please Do what you shall think Best and you will much Befriend me tell friend Charles Brown I have had no opertunity to enquiring about little Samuel but at townly (?) own self who say he does finely but I have not seen Mary although they live within 8 miles of me and I thought to have seen Mary at meeting but Did not But if anything is amis I will let him now by the firstt opertunity or take him home if the Mother will alow me. I can say nothing to allese (?) respecting the country but if John Sheep call he can Better inform than I possibly can No more at present but remains your Dutifull son and daughter Jas. and Mary Sillyman."

*During the Revolutioinary War the coast of Connecticut was ravaged by the British. The towns of New Haven, Greenwich, Fairfield, Norwalk and New London had been burned. Consequently in 1792 the western end of the Western Reserve (which is to say the counties of Erie and Huron) was set aside for the sufferers from this ravaging on the coast of Connecticut, and these lands were called the Fire Lands. Whether there is a connection of this to the movement of James and Mary Hunter Silliman to that territory is not known.

Several things are made clear from this letter in spite of extreme difficulty reading. Obviously travel was very slow and difficult. Nancy, who was then ten years old, suffered from a lengthy sickness, perhaps polio. Keeping track of the animals and providing for them as well as satisfying their own needs was difficult. They found the expenses great. At that time money was counted in two systems, both pounds and dollars. They apparently started out with 20 pounds all of which was used enroute. Think of the ages of the children! Nancy was 10, Alexander 9, James 7, Asa 5 (if he were still living), Mary only 2 years old. Mary Hunter Silliman, the mother, was about five months pregnant with Thomas at the time they undertook this travel.

The next letter was written five years after the first one, dated June 1807. By this time they had a new six weeks old baby, William. Although this letter is very much better preserved, it is 180 years old. The transcript includes the entire letter:

"Northeast Erie County Une 20th 1807

Loving mother brother and sister I am glad of the opertunity of to you and letting you know how our welfare. We are good health at present Bless be God for his mercies. John McCurly brought us word of mother being very unwell when he left you and likewise the sore hurt you got yourself which was very disagreeable news to us. Mary was very unwell through the winter with a complaint in her head so that I did not like to leave home and Lawrence Minigar procured me with the loan of as much money as made a tender and the deed not being ready. It stopped the interest til Mr. Minigar return from Susquehania and if you have your health if you are mir.(?) would do as much for me as to go to Mr. Paterson and get my money. Minigar will bring it to me. I wrote to Mr. Paterson the first of June by Thos. Morhead to try and .....it ready and that one of you or Minigar would receive it and give a clear discharge for the same. I will send a note with Minigar for one hundred dollars and Mr. Paterson will go to Mr. Lairee and lift his obligation for the rest....three hundred dollars is what I expect but whatever Mr. Paterson can give little or much give him a clear receipt for it three hundred and fifty dollars is what is to be paid yet on the land and I thought Mr. Ryan (?) had as much by you that you did not intend to lay out if you couldn't.....it to me so as to clear mine and the next payment that is due to me from Mr. Paterson which will be the first of November come a year AD 1808. You would neither lift it yourself and pay your self and mother or else I will come down at that time if living and able to come and see you both paid. I thought to have been able to payd the fifty dollars myself but the bill the doctor laid in against me for the tending the children that I told you. The doctor left the country and I got very little abatement. I had fifty four and a half dollars to pay land losing the mare I had to give a cow and 20 bushels of wheat and am to give 20 dollaras in money the first of September for another to help the fellow going (?) if it will be any inconvenience to you I do not wish you to send it as I hope I will not be..d..for it til I can make it myself but these.....my fortunes makes us live poorer than I could wish to keep out of town (?) about a ..... Our harvest last season and corn was very good but hay nothing. We have our good appearance grain and hay this creatury (?) and and every appear promising. We enjoy our health very well. We had another son born on the second of May.. of me Urining (?) child. The rest of the children are all in thriving prosperous state. I would have been down this spring but many was sour well before the and child was born and we were somewhat scarce of food for the creatures that I thought it best to take care of them myself and my mares were both having with foal that I had no suitable creature to ride. Mr. Minigar offering to fech me the money if it could be ready. I thought it a favorable circumstance as I have so much need of being at home to work I have nothing more to write but our love to you all. Mary Nancy and allese (all of us) join in sending their love. Grany and Aunty Mary and give mine Thos. and Allesee and tell them we will have a fine frolick our fitting our friends the next time I come down. Give my love to Allise and Mary and all the children and Charlie's family and all enquiring friends.

James and Mary Sillyman

N. B. Give my respects to James McCury and old Lady and let them know that John left my house on the 15 of June for Canada hardy and well after resting himself with us a couple of days and Roberts is well and .....of following him in a few weeks if he does not Marry.

The letter discloses a conflict between the anxiety created by asking too much and the difficulty of being without money.

After another four years had passed, on May13th, 1811 another letter was sent back to White Deer Valley. At this time Nancy, who was ten years old at the time of the journey, was 19, Alexander 18, Mary 11, Thomas 9, and the new son, William, was four years old.

"Erie County Nor East Township May 13th 1811
Loving brother and sister I embrance the opportunity of letting you know that we are all in good state of health at present Blessed be God for all mercies hoping these may find you all in the same State.

Brother Alexander informs me that you have purchased his place. If you should meet with any disappointment in getting your money or find it to be of any particular advantage to Alex or to yourself if you would be pleased to call upon the Rev. Wm Patterson and get what assistance he could make you with convenience or you need should require and your receipt to him shall be a full acquitance from me for the same respect. If life and health continue to be down with you sometime this winter I have nothing to write but the bearer can inform you of Nancy sends her compliments to cousin Ellen and desires her to bestir her self lest she is disgraced by dancing in her stockings without shoes. Mary and the children all send loving respects to you and all enquiring friends My kind love to you especially Thos and little Alex and tell them to have a warm pot of Syder ready for me. No more at present but remains your ever loving brother

James and Mary Sellyman

The fourth letter of the series was written thirteen years after the journey was made to Erie County.

"Nor East Erie County April 20th 1815 Loving brother and sister I embrace this opportunity of letting you know that we are all in good health at present Blessed be God for all his mercies hoping these may find you all in the same state. I have nothing particular to write to you at present Our youngest little boy lay all last summer white with a white swelling in his leg several pieces of the rotted and came out but it appears to be nearly well and we expect he will have the use of it without receiving much surgery (?) We have had no account from any of you since Robert McCurly came last spring. I think a great deal of long to hear from you all. I have never been so long at once without hearing from some of you. Do please to favor me with letter with Mc Curly when he comes I could be very glad to hear from sister Isabel and her family. I have nothing more at present Our friends and acquaintences that are living are all well as far as we know Please give our kind respects to Charles and Wm Brown and their family. Thos Beard and family and all enquiring friends My love to Eleanor Thomas and Allisee Anders (?) Mary and the children join in sending their respects to you all We have got into our new house and wish you and family to come some evening when the nights are some length and drink some Syder and a piece of johnny cake and smoke a pipe of tobacco and give us some of your friendly chat We ramain you affectionate brother and sister

There comes a sense of relief in these last two letters as they reveal the lightening of great burden. The son, William, had endured a bad infection on his leg. The "white swelling" came fifty years before a concept of bacteria and of infection. He may have recovered from this but the time of his death is not recorded. They had moved into a new house, and in spite of the "white swelling" there is a sense of improvement.

There is still another fragment of a letter from Erie County, Greenfield Township. The date is obscure:

"Loving Mother Brothers and Sisters I embrace this opertunity of letting you know that me and my family are all well at present blessed be .....for his mercies hoping these may find you all in the same state I got safe home the Saturday week after I left you and found my family and creatures well as I left them My mare took sick on the road on Sunday with the throat distemper and is very ill and the colt died with it since I came home we have had a very severe winter of snow and the snow at present about Colts Station is between four and five feet deep Foder is very scarce but no cattle died as yet Billy.....aged mine so.....thought it was small that I am but.....

The fifth child of Alexander and Margaret Silliman was Alexander, born in 1764, died in 1846. When he became 17 years old, seven years after the death of his father, it was decided that he would become apprenticed to a tailor and thus learn the "mystery" of that trade. The indenture of this arrangement has been preserved and is presented here:

This Indenture Witnesseth

that Alexander Silyman son of Margaret Sillyman of the County of Northampton and Province of Pennsylvania hath of his own free and voluntary will and by and with the consent of his mother put himself aprentise unto Robert Galloway of the county and Province aforesaid to learn the art and Mystery of a tailor which trade the said Robert Galloway now followeth and after the manner of an Aprentice to serve him from the day of the date hereof for and during the term of two years and eight months next ensuing date hereof during all of which term the said aprentice his said master faithfully shall serve his secrets keep his lawful commands everywhere gladly obey He shall do no damage to his said master nor suffer it to be done by others without giving notice thereof to his said master He shall not wast his said master's goods nor lend them to any without his consent. He shall not commit fornication nor contract matrimony during said term. At cards dice or any other unlawful game he shall not play. Taverns nor alehouses he shall not frequent. He shall not absent himself day nor night from his said master's service without his leave, but in all things behave himself as faithful aprentice ought to do during the said term and the said master shall use the utmost of his endeavors to teach or cause to be taught or instructed the said aprentice in the trade or mystery he now followeth and to procure and provide for him sufficient meat drinke washing and lodging fitting for an apprentice and also to allow him two weeks in every harvest during said term In witness whereof each of the above named parties have interchangably put their hands and seals the 11th day of June in the year of our Lord One thousand seven hundred and eighty one 1781

Alexander Silliman (1764-), who had become a tailor was married in 1787 to Mary Brown (-1833).

They had six children:

i. THOMAS[4], b. 16 Sept. 1791; d. 22 Dec. 1879.
ii. CHARLES, b. 1793; d. 11 Sept. 1878.
iii. ALEXANDER, b. 28 Nov. 1797; d. 16 June 1861.
iv. JANE, b. ca. 1798; d. 1861.
v. ISABELLA, b. 19 Oct. 1800; d. 2 June 1833.
vi. SAMUEL, b. ca. 1802.

Alexander lived for a time in White Deer Valley. On the 19th of May,1806 he was described as of Washington Township, White Deer Valley. He gave a deed to James Scott of Derry Township for 175 pounds.

Soon after the year 1810 Alexander and Mary and their sons, Thomas and Alexander, and other children migrated westward into Beaver County, Pennsylvania.

David, the last of the children of Alexander and Margaret Silliman married Maria ---------.

They had three children:

i. ELIZABETH[4], b. 1797
ii. ISABELLA, b. 1800
iii. MARGARETHA, b. 1802.

Of direct concern to this account is Thomas Silliman (1757-1838), the first child of Alexander and Margaret Silliman, who married Mary Middaugh. This Thomas became known as Captain Thomas. He was born in Mount Bethel Township of Northampton County in 1757 and died in White Deer Valley in 1838. After the death of his father he continued to live in Lower Mount Bethel with his mother. But very soon after his marriage to Mary Middaugh, which took place in 1795, he and his wife and the mother, Margaret, moved to White Deer Valley in Northumberland County, Pennsylvania.

On the "7th of Juan 1796" Thomas purchased of James Cascaden two tracts of land known by the designations of "Hainsburg" and "Deans Farm". Both parcels had been surveyed in 1769* , and the title deeds were described as "lying on the north and south sides of the South Branch of White Deer Hole Creek, county of Berks". On the Hainsburg tract on the north side of this creek Captain Silliman built for himself a very substantial stone house the walls of which were 18 inches thick. Here he lived and reared his family.

*Before this time and for a period of a dozen years there had been no attempt to make any settlement upon this land as the Indians had so effectively cleared out the region that no settlers had ventured upon the bloody ground.

Captain Silliman was a preserver of papers as was also his son, Thomas (1799-). Numerous members of the family were careful savers of letters and documents, and the survey of Deans Farm which bears the date 1769 is in the possession of the author.

A copy of the survey was made in 1773 by the accepted method of the time, that is, by pricking holes in the original paper to establish tracing points on an underlayment. The points could then be connected and thus make a true copy. The survey is reproduced on the next page.

This farm was purchased in 1796, three years before the birth of the son, Thomas, who married Mary Owen Snoddy. The other son of the Captain and Mary Middaugh was Alexander (1801-1852). There were no other children.

Mary, the wife of Thomas Silliman, was the daughter of Garret Middaugh who was born in New Jersey on the 25th of May, 1732 and died in 1810 at his home in Lower Mount Bethel Township near the village of Middaugh in Northampton County. Garret Middaugh had married Nellie Van Fleet in May 1760 in New Jersey. She was born in 1737 probably in Somerset County, New Jersey.

Some letters were received in White Deer Valley from their family who had remained in Mount Bethel. They have been preserved .

A feature of these letters is a reminder of earlier quotations. George Haworth, a neighbor of the Schooleys at Crewcorn Settlement, had written to his family in 1699, and the beginnings were always the same. He had written "hopeing you are all in good health, as I am at present, blessed be the Lord for the same.....". Now the letter which Nellie Van Fleet Middaugh, Mary Middaugh Silliman's mother, sent in 1795 to White Deer Valley, began " we are all in reasonable health at present, thanks be to God for the same, hopeing these lines will find you so.....", and later from Mary's sister, Elizabeth, in 1797, "we are all in good health at present, thanks be to God for the same.....", the same words a year later, and the same words again and again, five, ten, and fifteen years later. Quite clearly the standard practice for the beginning of a letter over much more than a hundred years was the same wording, and it was only in the event of sickness that the opening statement be modified.

"Deans Farm", tract of land purchased by Thomas Silliman in 1796. This survey was prepared August 16, 1769 and is in the possession of the author.

Garret and Nellie Van Fleet Middaugh's letter of Dec. 2,1795 to their daughter and son-in-law, Mary and Thomas Silliman is reproduced here. There was no concern for punctuation and little skill at spelling.

There are several letters written by Mary Middaugh's sister, Elizabeth, which have been preserved for nearly 200 years. Elizabeth married James Edmiston, although the letters were written before the time of her marriage. They are addressed to Mr. Thomas Sillyman in White Deer Valley. There are six of them spanning three or four years.

The letters were never placed in envelopes but were folded and addressed upon the outside.

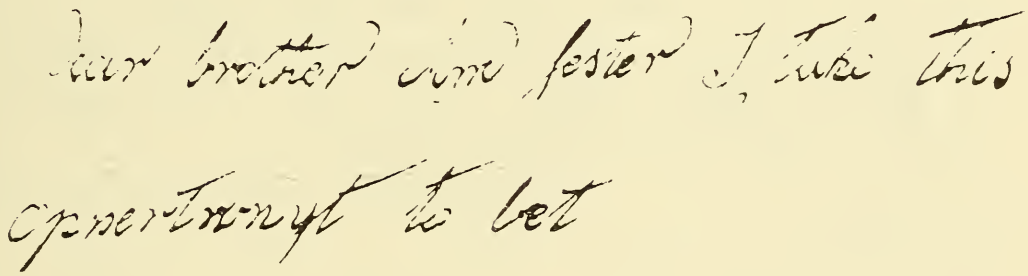
In Whit Deer Washenton Towship

In the care of Mis forgmir

It was almost painful for these people to write. They all had a standard opening statement to let their relatives know that they were all well thanks be to God and hoping these lines would find them also the same. There was a temptation to say very early in the letter that they had no more to add, and then they would think of something significant to insert. Their desire, however, was to assure their kinfolk of their well-being.

The next letter is addressed to Mr. Thomas Sillyman in "White Deer Washington Township in the care of Miss forgmin":



you know that I returned safee home on fryday to the grate joy of My parents and relations and thanks be to god for the same I fond them all in good helth only unkels petrs wife and she miscaried the night before I came home unkel rea is yet living tomy beards famly are all well I have had no acont from our friends below And ples to let our cousens know and cousen richerd in parterclr And also let hom know that I had a fine jorny and thanks be to for all his murses Jhon(?) Juan the 1 1800

Thomas Silliman became an enlisted soldier in the Revolutionary War and later fought in frontier campaigns against the Indians. He entered the serivce as a private and rose steadily in rank to become a captain. A certificate of his service is preserved in the Pennsylvania State Library at Harrisburg. It is quoted in part:

".....certify that one Thomas Silliman was a private in Captain Patrick Campbell's Sixth Battalion, Northampton County Militia, May 14th 1778, Jacob > Stroud, Colonel. April 29, 1782 he was a private first class in Captain Patrick Campbell's Co., Fifth Batallion, Northampton County Militia. 1783 he was a Lieutenant in the Sixth Battalion, Northampton County Militia, under Colonel LaWall. 1785 he was Captain of the 3rd Company, Sixth Battalion, Northampton County Militia under Colonel W. H. LaWall....."

In the same military groups are found other familiar family names: John Sillyman, Robert Galloway (the tailor), John Morrison, James Taylor, James Sillyman, John Alexander, John Middaugh, Garret Middaugh, Benjamin DePue, Peter Middaugh.

From the Pennsylvania Archives it is noted that Thomas Silliman, Sr. and Thomas Silliman, Jr. (Capt. Thomas) in the year 1784/5 and in 1786 bought land warrenties on 400 acres and 600 acres in Forks Township.

In the year 1784 Thomas Silliman and John Morrison, his brother-in-law, agreed to purchase of John Shearer a certain piece of property. This was executed when they were residents of Mount Bethel. The payment was apparently not completed within the time stipulated in the contract as it is indicated at the end of the paper that payment was received in 1790 sixteen years later that the originally agreed upon time. The agreement has been preserved and is in possession of the author.

In the year 1796 Captain Thomas Silliman and Alexander Silliman, Thomas's brother, signed an agreement to divide lands between themselves which they owned in Washington Township, White Deer Valley of Lycoming County. At that date the valley was a part of White Deer Township in Northumberland County. The consideration mentioned in the agreement was 390 pounds for 125 acres. The original document has been preserved.

Thomas Silliman gave a land deed dated September 6, 1811 which states:

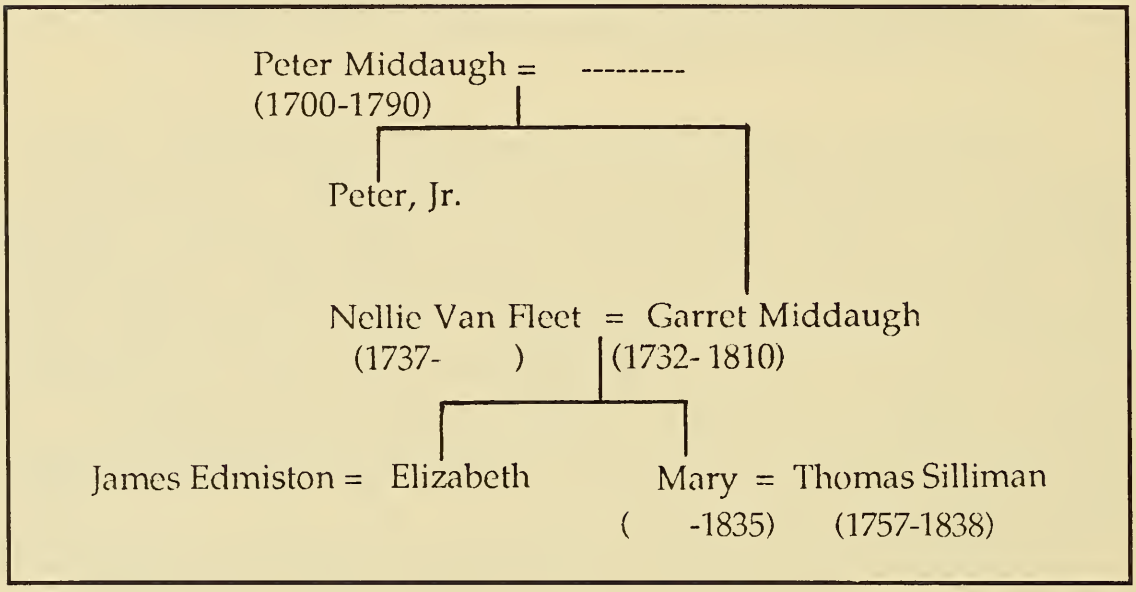
> "Thomas Silliman of Washington Township, Northumberland County and Mary, his wife, to James Edmiston of Lower Mount Bethel Township of Northampton County....."

The deed further states that Garret Middaugh, father of Mary Middaugh, by his will dated 27th of December, 1804, gave to Mary fifty acres of land from the south end of his plantation in Lower Mount Bethel Township. Elizabeth, the younger daughter of Garret and wife of James Edmiston, had qualified as the executrix of Garret's will on August 14, 1810. About a year later by reason of the above deed the old Garret Middaugh homestead was in possession of the Edmistons.

On Martin's Creek in Mount Bethel Township of Northampton County was the hamlet of Middagh. Located here were the farms of Garret and his father, the Hon. Peter Middagh. Garret (1732-1810) was a soldier of the Revolutionary War. Peter Middagh, the father of Garret, was born in Hunterdon County, New Jersey in the year 1700 and died at his homestead near Middagh, Mount Bethel, Northampton County, Pennsylvania in 1790. The Middaghs were among the early Dutch settlers of New York for whom Middagh Street in Brooklyn is named.

Peter Middaugh left a will which was probated in 1790 in Northampton County, Pennsylvania. It named his sons Garret, and Peter, Jr., and his son-in-law, Andreas van Fleet. In 1754 Peter Middaugh, the senior, was a member of the Provincial Council or Assembly of New Jersey from Hunterdon County. The same records disclose that Peter in 1758 was a member of the committee to have the laws of New Jersey printed. Also both Peter and Garret Middaugh in 1772 were property owners in Forks Township of Northampton County.

Garret Middaugh had married Nellie Van Fleet (1737-), and they had two daughters, Elizabeth who had married James Edmiston, and Mary who married Thomas Silliman.



James and Elizabeth Edmiston remained in Mount Bethel. Three letters were written by them to Thomas and Mary Silliman in White Deer Valley bearing the dates 1808, 1810, and 1823. They have been preserved and are here quoted:

Lower Mount Bethel April 28 1823
Dear Sir A favourable opportunity has occurred of writing you a few lines to acquaint you of our all being in a tolerable state of health at present except myslef and I have to be thankfull to Providence for his many mercies to us. I am in about the same state of health that I was one year ago when you left our neighborhood. I have to request you to attend here this Spring if you can make it convenient and if not to write a letter as soon as you receive this as I can pay on one Bond at any that is is (due?). My health will not permit me to come and see you as I shoud wish it will fall to your lot (?) to do what traveling ther is to be done in the transaction of our business and when you come I would request you to bring both bonds along with you as I can probably pay some more than the one at this time. I have nothing more to write you at present but remain your affectionate freand James Edmiston
Mr. Thomas Syllaman Jr.

On the same paper is another letter:

Dear Brother and Sister I take up my pen to inform you .....in but a poor state of health as you will see by the letter to your son and should be very glad to see you here as I never expect to be able to undertake a Journey to your Country and Betsy should be very glad to see Mary but I expect she is not able to come here more than.....is able to go to your country. I have.....to aquaint you.....presnt but you ever loving friend

83...ISAAC[6] SCHOOLEY (John[5], Samuel[4-3], Thomas[2] ?Robert[1]) was born in Grayson County, Virginia, the 25th of the 10th month 1808, and he died in Grandview, Texas, in 1883, aged 75. On the 24th of the 5th month 1827 Isaac married SELAH THOMAS in the New Garden Meetinghouse in Wayne County, Indiana.[e] She was born the 21st the 11th month 1808 in North Carolina and died on 12 July 1891, the daughter of Stephen and Hannah (Mendenhall) Thomas.[d*s]

Isaac and Selah Schooley and their daughters were given a certificate of removal in January 1832 from the New Garden Friends Meeting to the Duck Creek Meeting in Henry County, Indiana. Isaac's parents and his married sisters joined his family in the move to Indiana. After about ten years in Henry County, the Isaac Schooleys moved to Marion, Indiana. By the winter of 1867-1868 Isaac was in Grant Township, County, on the extreme western frontier of Kansas, when he was commissioned a captain in the militia to deal with threatening Indian tribes. He was described as "a careful and prudent officer". In 1868 Captain Schooley was nominated to represent Republic County in the Kansas State Legislature.

Tracing the going and coming of Isaac Schooley is not easy. He was at New Garden Meeting at age 19 when he married Selah Thomas, at Duck Creek in Henry County, Indiana at age 24, then in Grant County , Indiana, but when he was about 40 years old, he was in Clinton County, Ohio where he was there a member of the Board of Trustees for the erection of a new township in the years 1860-62 when he was 52 years old. Yet he was also for a short time in Missouri. Then we learn that "in the fall of 1862 Isaac Schooley settled on 160 acres of land in Republic County, Kansas".Furthermore, in the winter of 1867-8 Captain Schooley's residence was in Grant Township of Kansas where he had been commissioned in the militia.

Isaac and Selah Thomas Schooley had a family of five sons and six daughters (See i-xi below):

James Schooley married MARY PICKETT in Fayette County, Kentucky, on 13 June 1820.[b]

During the War of 1812 James served as a private in Captain Isaac Kelly's Regiment, 3d Regiment of New Jersey Militia, commanded by General Elmer. He enlisted in Mount Holly, New Jersey, on 19 September 1814 for three months and was discharged 22 December 1814 in Woodbury (or near Burlington?), New Jersey.[a]

About 1820 James went to Fayette County, Kentucky, where he headed that year a household consisting of five males 16-26, one female 16-26, and two slaves, with five persons engaged in manufacturing.[c] James has not been found on the 1830 census, but by 1840 he was in Lexington, Kentucky, with two males under 5, one 10-15, one 15-20, one 40-50, one female 5-10, one 10-15, one 20-30, and one 40-50, and five slaves, with two persons engaged in manufacturing and trade.[d]

For his military service, James Schooley of Lexington, age 60, applied for bounty land on 27 May 1852 and received a warrant on 20 November 1852 for forty acres under the Congressional Act of 28 September (or 2 June?) 1850. On 30 January 1856, still of Lexington and age 63, he applied for additional land under the Act 3 January 1855.[a]

7. ALICE; d. 1882.

v. ALICE, b. 4 Apr. 1848; d. 1917; m. ----- HATCH.

It is so often written here that so-and-so was born in a certain year, married at a certain time, had children, and died. The statement tells what is written in court records or in church minutes. That is all. It is important to realize that all these people were babies, then children, then adolescents, then young adults, mature, and sometimes old. They had sicknesses, disappointments, fears and uncertainties, successes and failures, hopes and dreams. Think of the Carpenters. They may have gone to the cemetery six times with their deceased children, Mary Frances Schooley Carpenter perhaps carrying in her arms the infant that she would bury the following year.

102... WILLIAM[7] SCHOOLEY (John[6-5], William[4], ?William[3], Robert[2-1]) was born 26 February 1809, probably in Greenwich Township, Sussex (now Warren) County, New Jersey.[a]

William married (1) CATHERINE LEARCH in 1835. She was born in Greenwich Township on 7 April 1816 and died near Commercial Point, Pickaway County, Ohio, on 5 [or 6?] July 1855, the daughter of Anthony and Catherine Learch.[a-c] William then married (2) MARY -------.[a]

At the time that William married Catherine he was 26 years old. She was nineteen. When the son, Peter, died in his teens the emotional burden had great consequences for the mother. She began to eat excessively. This can be understood when it is realized that her own mother had died when Catherine was still a suckling infant.

Catherine's father kept her alive as he explained "mit der spoon". In later years when tragedy came into her life, she sought to comfort herself by eating. She died at the age of 39 weighing 764 pounds. She is buryed in Pickaway, Ohio.

131...THOMAS HENRY SILLIMAN [7] SCHOOLEY (Andrew Jackson[6], William[5], ?Samuel[4-3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1])was born on 28 July 1860 on the family farm about a mile east of Elimsport in White Deer Valley, Washington Twp, Lycoming County, Pennsylvania, and he died on 24 August 1946 in Highland Park, Michigan.

On 9 March 1889 he married MABEL BEDELL NICHOLS in Pueblo, Colorado. She was born in Delaware, Ohio, on 22 March 1868 and died after a lingering illness of several years on 26 October 1944 in Highland Park, Michigan, the daughter of Franklin Cass[7] (Weisman Clagett[6], Jonathan[5-3], Thomas[2-1]) and Harriet (Bedell) Nichols.

This Thomas was the author of the first edition of Trails of Our Fathers . He was educated in the public schools of Washington Township and a private school conducted by Dr. Yost. He began teaching at the age of eighteen. He was graduated from Bucknell University in Lewisburg, Pennsylvania in 1882 at the age of twenty-two. He continued his studies there and in time became the principal of a grade school in Lewisburg. He then studied law with Hon. J. Merrill Linn, being admitted to the bar in Union County in 1886.

Thomas apparently heeded the admonition of Horace Greely to "go west, young man", and in the same month that he was certified as an attorney he went to Colorado. The author, his grandson, recalls him stating that he arrived there with four dollars in his pocket and upon inquiring about his plight was told: "I found a rooming house where they served meals, paid a week's room and board, and put the rest of it in the bank!"

In 1886 he opened a law practice in Pueblo. He became a member of the Public Board of Trade in Pueblo, Secretary of the Pueblo Mining Stock Exchange, and in 1893 was elected to the State Board of Land Commissioners. In 1898 some friends of Thomas H. S. Schooley forwarded his name for Secretary of State of Colorado on the Fusion Ticket. He was not elected.

In 1899 Thomas H. S. Schooley was commissioned at the rank of Colonel in the Colorado State military service by the then governor of the state, Charles S. Thomas.. A copy of the commission is quoted:

> "The governor of the State of Colorado to all who shall see these presents, Greeting --Know ye that reposing special trust and confidence in the patriotism, valor, fidelity, and abilities of T.H.S. Schooley, I have appointed him Colonel and Aide-de-Camp in the service of the State of Colorado to rank as such from the 1st day of April, 1899. He is therefore carefully and diligently to discharge the duty of Aide-de-Camp by doing and performing all manner of things thereunto belonging. And I do strictly charge and require all officers under this command to be obedient to his orders as Aide-de-Camp. And he is to follow as he may receive them from me or the future governor of the State of Colorado or the superior officer set over him according to the Constitutioin and Laws of the State of Colorado and the rules and discipline of War.
> This commission to continue in force during the time provided for by the Constitution and laws of the State of Colorado.
>
> Given under my hand at the City of Denver this 1st day of April in the year of our Lord, 1899 and in the 123rd year of the Independence of the United States.
>
> Charles S. Thomas , Governor
> By the Governor, Lewis Barnum, Adjutant General."

In 1903 Thomas left Colorado and brought his family to the city of Detroit, Michigan. He became a member of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, his eligibility for membership being established by the services of Captain Samuel Schooley, Thomas Silliman, Esq., Captain Thomas Silliman, and Garret Middaugh. He was a member of the Detroit Historical Society, the Michigan Historical Society, and the Detroit Republican Club.

Mabel Nichols, the wife of Thomas Schooley, had a distinguished career in music graduating from the College of Music of Cincinnati in 1886. She was soprano soloist for the First Baptist Church and the Central Presbyterian Church of Denver, Colorado and the First Methodist Church of Los Angerles, California.

NICHOLS and CASS

The ancestry of Mabel Nichols in not presented in the standard genealogical form, yet it is presented in an easily understood manner.

Mabel Nichols Schooley's ancestry in the Bedell line reaches back to New Jersey through her grandfather, Michael Bedell, who was born April 12, 1798 on Long Hill, Morris County, New Jersey. He married Mary Willis at Niagara , New York in 1822. Mary Willis was born in New York in 1807. Michael and Mary moved from Niagara in 1836 to near the present Bedell's School House in Liberty Township of Knox County near Mount Vernon, Ohio. There Michael died in 1875. Mary died two years later at the age of 68. Michael and Mary are buried in the graveyard of Liberty Chapel in Liberty Township.

Michael was the son of Isaac Bedell who in 1792 married Mary Kinnon, daughter of Thomas Kinnon, Esq. of Morris and Union Counties, New Jersey. Isaac was a soldier of the Revolutionary War, wounded, and later pensioned. He was born in 1761 near Bedell's Bridge, Morris County, New Jersey, the son of John Bedell and Deborah Mulford who was a daughter of Capt. Jonathan Mulford and his wife, Esther Conklin. Deborah was born in 1744. John and Deborah were married there is 1760.

Michael Bedell (1798-1875) and Mary Willis (1807-1877), grandparents of Mabel Nichols Schooley, had five children: Harriet (1841-1912), Warren, Benjamin, Israel, and John. Harriet Bedell, the first child, was born near Mount Vernon, Ohio. She died at Detroit, Michigan March 22, 1912. Warren and Benjamin, brothers of Harriet, were in the ministry. Israel was a physician, and John, a dentist.

Mabel Nichols' father was Franklin Cass Nichols. He was born at Mayville, Chataqua County, New York February 19, 1839. He died at Detroit, Michigan September 2, 1911. Franklin and Harriet were married at Mount Vernon, Ohio on his birthday in 1867. Franklin Cass Nichols, when a boy in his teens, accompanied his family when they moved from Chataqua County, New York to the newly purchased farm near the town of Cardington, Ohio. Franklin enlisted in the military service in 1861 and was a member of Squadron D of the 9th New York Cavalry under Captain Weld and Colonel Beardsley. He was honorably discharged in 1862 and later pensioned. His brothers, Clifton and Joseph, were also soldiers in the Civil War. Clifton died in 1903. His home had been at Springfield, Ohio where he was the owner and editor of The Springfield Daily Republican. Clifton was also the author of a Life of Lincoln.[*] Joseph Wiseman Nichols, Franklin's brother, lived at Dayton, Ohio.

In 1887 Franklin Cass Nichols and his family moved to Colorado in the hope of improving his health. Their lives were somewhat nomadic. They lived for awhile in Arizona, 1897-1900, in California, 1900-1903, in Florida at intervals from 1905 to 1910 at Miami, Orlando, Lakeland, and St. Petersburg.

The father of Franklin Cass Nichols was Wiseman Clagett Nichols who was born March 23, 1801 at Thetford, Vermont. He was married October 22, 1829 in the Presbyterian Church at Ripley, New York, to Fivilla Cass, daughter of Major Joseph Cass (1789-1868) and Tabitha Day (1789-1813) of Westfield, New York. They had married in 1810. Tabitha Day was the daughter of Eliphalet Day and Tuzah Finch. Joseph Cass was the son of Nathan Cass and Phila Southwick.

Wiseman Nichols in 1853 moved from Chataqua County, New York to the town of Cardington, Ohio and lived there about thirty five years. He died at his home in Cardington on April 27, 1883 at 82 years of age. Wiseman Nichols had been a Justice of the Peace of Westfield and a deputy sheriff at Chataqua County. He was a magistrate at Cardington, Ohio, a farm owner, a builder, a school teacher, a merchant, a sheriff, and the mayor of Cardington, 1866-1869. The Nichols School on Nichols Street at Cardington, Ohio was built on a grant of land given by him from part of his farm. Wiseman Nichols father was Jonathan Nichols, Jr. and his mother was Tryphenia Sackett. Jonathan was born at Bolton, Mass. July 25, 1754, died at Westfield, New York April 26, 1841. Tryphenia was born February 17, 1764 at Hebron, Connecticut. Around 1785 she went to Thetford, Vermont where she was a teacher. In December 1791 she and Jonathan were married there. They resided at Thetford until 1813 when they moved with their children in heavy winter weather across New York State to Westfield in Chataqua County. There the entire Nichols family, seventeen in all, were members of the First Presbyterian Church of Ripley near Westfield in western New York State.

Tryphenia Sackett was the daughter of Jonathan Sackett and Hannah Phelps. Tryphenia died in 1844 at the age of 77.

Jonathan Nichols, Jr. who had married Tryphenia Sackett was a surveyor and sheriff in Vermont. He bought land at Chataqua County, New York in 1814. Jonathan was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. He was shot in the thigh when leaping over a fence in the battle of Bennington in 1777, although he did not receive a pension until 1832. It is a surprising coincidence that Jonathan Nichols served in the war 1775-1777 under Colonels Nichols and Bedell. "Colonol Nichols Regiment marched from Winchester, New Hampshire and joined the Northern Continental Army at Bennington at Stillwater July 23, 1777. Serving in this Regiment were Privates Jonathan Nichols and Andrew Nichols."

Jonathan Nichols' parents were Jonathan Nichols and Mary McIlwain who had been married at Bolton, Massachusetts in 1753. The senior Jonathan Nichols was born in Amesbury, Massachusetts in 1719. Mary, his wife, was the daughter of Andrew and Hezediah McIlwain. The parents of Jonathan who had married Mary McIlwain were Jonathan Nichols and Mary Challis. This latter Jonathan had been born in 1697 at Amesbury, Massachusetts. They were married in 1718/19. The parents of Jonathan who had married Mary Challis were Thomas Nichols and Jane Jamison (-1720). Thomas Nichols was born in 1670 at Amesbury. He was the son of Thomas Nichols and Mary Moulton. Thomas and Mary Moulton were married at Malden, Massachusetts in 1655 in the same year they moved to Amesbury.

As previously mentioned Wiseman Nichols (1801-1883) married in 1829 Fivilla Cass (1811-1890). It is fitting now to trace some of the Cass family. Fivilla was born February 17, 1811 at Hartford, Coos County, New Hampshire. She died at Cardington, Ohio September 10, 1890. Both she and Squire Wiseman Nichols are buried in the Glendale Cemetery at Cardington, Ohio near the Olentangy River. Fivilla Cass's father, Major Joseph Cass, also moved from Vermont to Chataqua County, New York and thence to Morrow County, Ohio. He was a soldier in the Continental Army in General Stark's Brigade in the Revolutionary War. He was a captain in Dearborn's Company in 1777 at the Battle of Bennington. Joseph Cass had married twice, first to Tabitha Day and the second marriage to Jane Dickinson. By the first marriage there were born two children: Fivilla and Emogene and in the second marriage to Jane Dickinson there were six children. Joseph Cass was the son of Nathan. Nathan was the son of Jonathan. Jonathan was the son of John. John was the son of Samuel.

John Cass married in 1647 Martha Philbrick. They had eight children: John, Joseph, Samuel, Jonathan, Elizabeth, Mercy, Ebenezer, and Abigail. Samuel, the third son, married Mercy Sanborn. They had four children:

Martha, John, Hannah, and Mary. John, the second of these children, married in 1726 Hannah Grove. They had ten children: Mehitabel and Hannah (twins), Nathan, John, Mary, Hepzebah, Jonathan Grove, Daniel, Ebenezer, and Samuel; The seventh child of this family, Jonathan Grove Cass, was married in 1747 to Abigail Salisbury. They had six children: Sarah, Hannah, Phebe, George, John, and Nathan. The last of these children, Nathan Cass, was married in 1767 (?) to Phila Southbrick. They had four children: Pliny, Joseph, Jonathan, and Judd The second of these children, Joseph Cass (1789-1868) was married in 1810 to Tabitha Day (1789-1813). They had two children: Fivilla (1811-1890) and Emogene (1812-). Fivilla married Wiseman Nichols (1801-1883) and Emogene married Richard Bushnell (-1858). After the death of Tabitha Day, Joseph Cass married a second time to Jane Dickinson and they had six children. Wiseman Nichols and Fivilla Cass were the parents of Franklin Cass Nichols, the father of Mabel Bedell Nichols who married Thomas Henry Silliman Schooley.

Thomas Henry Silliman Schooley and Mabel Bedell Nichols had four children:

i. RONALD (1889- died soon after birth)

(Ronald and Arnold were twins.)

iv. CAMERON O. (1903-1957)

In the year that Nichols was born, 1896, the newspaper reported a noticeable tendency for women's skirts to become shorter, an inch or two above the ankle. In the year that Cameron was born, 1903, the Wright brothers made the first flight in an airplane. A century came to an end between the time of the birth of Nichols and the birth of Cameron. As the new century arrived there were 76 million Americans, 18 million horses and mules, 10 million bicycles, and four thousand automobiles. By the time Cameron was born (1903) 75 thousand automobiles had been produced, although they were considered useless toys.

132...LEANDER[7] SCHOOLEY (Isaac[6], John[5], Samuel[4-3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born in Marion, Indiana, on the 15th of the 6th month 1844 and he died in Chattanooga, Tennessee, on the 20th of the 3d month 1916.

Leander Schooley married ANNA S. DANNEFER on 13 November 1873 in Belleville, Kansas. She was born in Denmark in 1850 and died in Tampa, Florida, in 1889, aged 48, the daughter of Hans Oleson and Mary (----) Dannefer who immigrated from Denmark in 1865.

During the Civil War, Leander enlisted at the age of eighteen and served in Company K of the First Indiana Volunteer Cavalry, mustering out in 1865. He participated in a number of engagements, including Manassas, Culpepper Courthouse, three days at Gettysburg, Petersburg, Yellow Tavern, and Appomatox.

Soon after leaving the army Leander went to Republic County, Kansas, with his father. There he taught school and met a teacher, Anna Dannefer, whom he married. She had taught school in LaCrosse, Wisconsin, before coming to Kansas.

Leander was buried in the National Cemetery in Chatanooga.

THE HIATTS

Joselyn Hiatt was the daughter of John F. Hiatt and Josephine Meek who had been married in 1871 in Howard County, Indiana where she was then teaching school at the age of seventeen. John Franklin Hiatt was born in 1842 near Mooresvillle, Morgan County, Indiana and died at Coldwater, Michigan in 1918. Josephine Meek was born in 1854 in Richland County, Ohio and died in 1923 at Detroit, Michigan. Her parents were William Meek, born in 1825 and Charlotte DuBois Finch who was born in 1814. They were married in 1852 at Richland County, Ohio.

John Franklin Hiatt (1842-1918) and Josephine Meek (1854-1923) had six children:

i. FLORENCE (1872-1948)
ii. JASPER CROFTON (1875-1883)
iii. ELLEN MAY (1878-1968)
iv. FRANK (1882-)
v. HUGH (1885-1969)
vi. JOSELYN (1890-1970)

Florence was born in Tipton County, Indiana. Jasper Crofton and Ellen May were born at Crofton, Michigan. Frank was born at Cadillac, Michigan, and Joselyn was born at Coldwater, Michigan.

The writer wishes to recall Hugh Hiatt, the fifth child of John Franklin Hiatt and Josephine Meek. When the author was a young child he knew from family discussions that Hugh was estranged, that he had severed his ties not only with his brother and sisters, but from his mother as well. This situation brought great pain to his mother. In spite of the attempts to mend a rift that was never understood, a reconciliation was not achieved. Now, some years after Hugh's death, the author seeks to bring Hugh back into the clan by placing his name on the family roster. It is done.

John Franklin Hiatt's father was Uriah Ballard Hiatt, whose background is beclouded. This author remembers that his grandfather, author of the first Trails of Our Fathers , struggled long with the mysteries of Uriah Ballard Hiatt. Grandfather wracked his brain and rapped his knuckles about this problem. Two views emerge, both flawed. A certainty is that he married Angelina Carter in 1841. Some evidence shows that he was born near Leesburg, Highland County, Ohio in 1806, that when he was young his parents moved to Morgan County, Indiana, and that in March 1841 he was married to Angelina Carter, the daughter of Joshua Carter (1779-1857) and Elizabeth Maxwell (-1850). This Joshua was the son of Nathanial Carter and Ann Ramsey of Ash County, North Carolina. Uriah died in Howard County, Kansas in 1872.

Uriah Ballard Hiatt's father supposedly was Joseph Hiatt who married twice, first in 1787 to Hannah Reese, secondly in 1809 to Elizabeth Ballard, a widow.

The Fairfield Meeting certified Joseph's removal to Lick Creek Meeting in Morgan County, Indiana. He was a taxpayer there in 1837 and 1841. Smith and Hiatt operated a grist mill at Mooresville. In 1839 Joseph contributed $50.00 to a fund to build the Methodist Church at Mooresville. He was a soldier in the War of the American Revolution, enlisted in Chester County, Pennsylvania in 1776. He was a fifer in Captain Alexander Johnson's Co. of the Fifth Pennsylvania Regiment, Dec. 16, 1776, and was in service at Boundbrook April 30, 1777.

John Franklin Hiatt

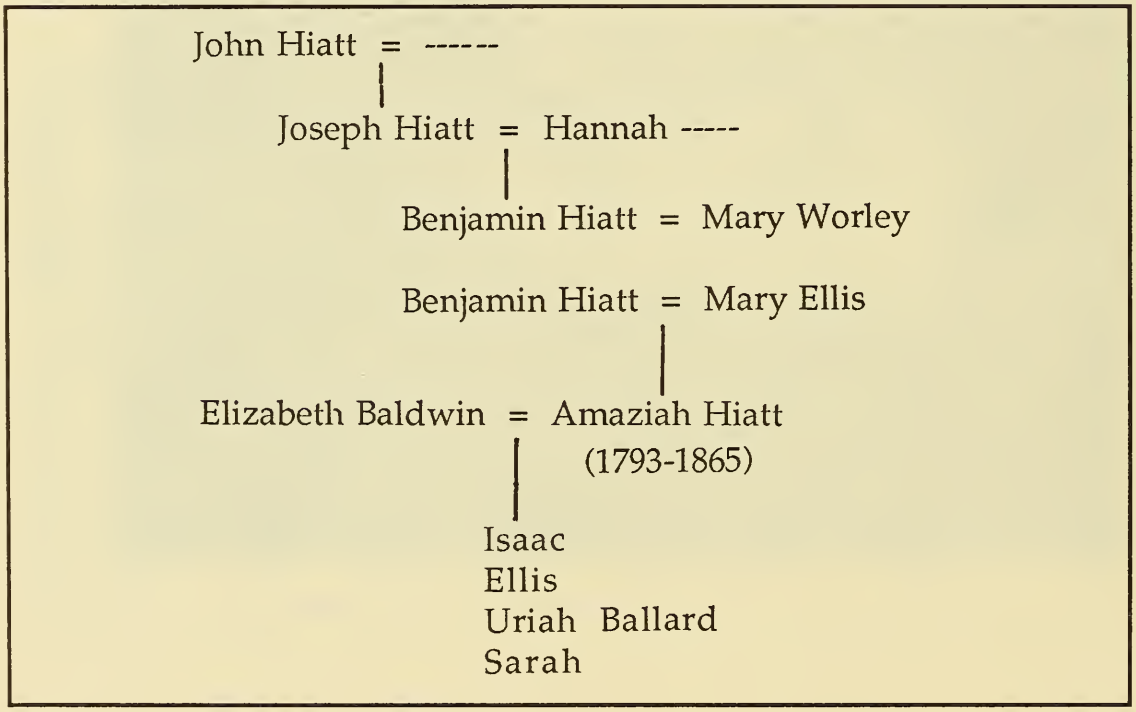
While it would seem that Uriah Ballard Hiatt was born of the second marriage (the marriage took place in 1809) this view is in conflict with the date of Uriah's birth, 1806. One may wonder if Uriah was born of the first marriage, to Hannah Reese, and then adopted as his middle name the name of his step-mother. The matter is conjecture.

Mr. William Perry Johnson of Huntington Park, California did a thorough study of the Hiatts in America. His evidence presents a contrary view of the origin of Uriah. In this scheme it is asserted that Uriah Hiatt was the son of Amaziah Hiatt (1793--1865) and Elizabeth Baldwin who had married Amaziah in 1823. This date of marriage would, of course, be in conflict with the date of birth of Uriah B. Hiatt. However, this line traces the origin as presented in the following graph:



Uriah Ballard Hiatt and Angelina Carter had four children:

i. JOHN FRANKLIN (1842-1918)
ii. ELIZABETH ELLEN
iii. WILLIAM CHAMBERS
iv. JOSHUA HARVEY

The lineage of Angelina Carter (1820-1909) also contains some uncertainties. Angelina Carter was the daughter of Joshua Carter (1779-1857) and Elizabeth Maxwell who died in 1850. Joshua and Elizabeth were married in 1806. Joshua was the son of Nathanial Carter and Ann Ramsey.

There are two seperate listings of the children of Joshua and Elizabeth Maxwell Carter. One shows Angelina to be the last of seven children; in the other she is the first of six children. Possibly they were all of the same group and that there were in that family thirteen children, the first being born in 1808 and the last in 1831. This proposal would stretch the child bearing age of Elizabeth Maxwell to her 45th year! In the following list all of the children are given as a single family.

i. SARAH (1808-) m. 1825 JEPE BALLARD
ii. WILLIAM (1809-) m. 1831 THIRSEZ JOHNSON
iii. NANCY (1811-) m. 1831 BEN HENSHAW
iv. MARY (1813-1852) m. 1832 JEPE YANSEY
v. JAMES (1815-) m. GEMIMA WARD
vi. JANE (1818--) m. ELI SUMNER
vii. ANGELINA (1820-1909) m. 1841 URIAH BALLARD HIATT

viii. JOHN F. (one of twins 1820-) m. 1843 MARTHA PHILLIPS
ix. REBECCA (1823-) m. 1848 ELIJAH PHILLIPS
x. HANNAH (1826-) m. 1855 THOMAS CHILD
xi. BRYON(1828-) m. 1 1854 ELIZATHORNBURGH; m2 1858 HANNAH JENKINS
xii. THOMAS (1831-) m. 1856 EMILY NEWBY

What is known of the Maxwell family comes from uncertain sources. Some suggestions are that the Maxwells were people of wealth, that Joe Maxwell (was that Elizabeth's brother?) "rode horseback to Texas", that his wife died while he was away and that he did not discover this until his return, that George Maxwell was involved in theft, went west, married "a rich Spanish woman" who "used up all of her money and then all of his"! So go the tales. The truth will not be brought to light. Reportedly the family papers were all destroyed by fire at Crofton , Michigan about 1876.

Florence Hiatt, sister of Joselyn Hiatt Schooley, and the author's aunt, traced the Hiatt ancestry through the female lines for eight generations. Because it is traced through the female lines the names change each generation. This study discloses Dutch ancestry. And a touch of Prussian! The names are very different from the English names which have been so common in this account. This ancestry is presented in brief form from 1620 to Joselyn Hiatt Schooley (1890-1970).

Roeloff Jansen of Masterland, Holland (1598-1637) m. Jan 29, 1620 (or 1622) at Amsterdam to Anneke Webber (1605-1663) who was the d. of Wolfert Webber and Annetjen Koch. They had four children:

Nichols Schooley enlisted in the Navy in 1918 and served as a yeoman and disbursing officer on the cruiser Charleston. He was in France and several times at the Panama Canal.

THE BAILEYS

The Bailey ancestry has been traced for several generations and is presented here in outline form.

Captain Samuel Bailey (1740-) m. Ruth Clark (-1815). They had eleven children: Timothy (1761-1841), Stephen, Samuel (-1827), Charles, Hannah, Silas, Clark, Joel, Ruth, Eunice, Whiting.

The first of these children, Timothy Bailey (1761-1841) m. in 1784 Thankful Curtis (1768-1840), and they had eight children: Thankful (1785-1840) who m. Her father was Floyd Adams Sank, b. in Old Allegheny, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania in May 1909 and died in Butler, Pennsylvania in 1972. Her mother was Emily (Hilton) Sank, born in Heidelburg, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania on October 5, 1907., the dau. of George Richard Hilton who came to America from Yorkshire, England at the age of two years. Emily Hilton's mother was Emily Franks who came from Manchester, England at the age of 12.

THE BAXTERS

Janice Baxter, first wife of James Schooley, was the daughter of Fred Carter Baxter (1881-1969) and Maree Welch (1891-1958). Fred Carter Baxter was the son of William Henry Baxter and Agnes Carter. William Henry Baxter was the son of John Baxter and Ann Skinner.

William Henry Baxter and Agnes Carter had four children:

i. FRED CARTER (1881-1969)
ii. EARL m. THEDA BAILEY,
iii. GERTRUDE m. CHARLES BROCK,
iv. DON (-1918)

Don, the fourth of the children of William and Agnes Carter Baxter was in the insurance business in Lansing, Michigan. He died in the dreaded influenza epidemic of 1918.

> One of the tragic features of this disease was the high quota among the young; a quarter of all those who died were children. There was no effective remedy. Various vaccines had been tried but none were successful. All doctors could do was to recommend rest as soon as the symptoms appeared, but sick leave, pay for being absent from work for sickness, was not a part of that day, and those who were beginning to get the disease (especially among the poor) continued to go to work spreading the disease among their fellows. The spread was very rapid. In the morning a school class may have appeared to be a group of healthy children, and in the afternoon large numbers of them would be afflicted. Seventy thousand of the American troops who had been sent to France to go to war were sick with influenze, 23,000 died without being near the battlefield. Before the thing ran its course 20 million Americans had the disease, and half a million of them died. In all the world there were 27 million perished.

When Don Baxter died his brothers and sister had not known that he had "married", yet there suddenly appeared a "wife" who successfully laid claim to all his worldly possessions.

i. SUSAN[10], b. Feb. 2, 1951

ii. SARAH, b. Aug. 29, 1952; m. Oct. 6, 1979 PAUL GERSTEIN who was b. May 6, 1951

Children, surname Gerstein:

1. JACOB, b. March 15, 1980
2. REBEKAH MARCELLE BAXTER, b. 1 October 1982.

iii. RACHEL, b. Aug. 27, 1954; m. Sept. 1, 1979 RODNEY TADDEO who was b. May 12, 1953.

Susan Schooley and Benjamin Wilks

171... NICHOLS B[9] SCHOOLEY (Nichols Bertram[8], Thomas Henry Silliman[7], Andrew Jackson[6], William[5], ?Samuel[4-3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1]) was born in 1925.

Nichols married CAROLYN EARLY in 1950. She was born in 1930.

Children:

i. THOMAS EARLY[10], b. 1951; m. 1973, LYNN MAREK ii. KATHRYN ANN, b. 1953; m. 1973, KARL ANKROM.
iii. JOHN NICHOLS, b. 1954; m. 1973 `, KARLENE HUNTER.

172...RAY WILSON[9] SCHOOLEY (Nichols Bertram[8], Thomas Henry Silliman[7], Andrew Jackson[6], William[5], ?Samuel[4-3], Thomas[2], ?Robert[1])

This chronicle has traced through some more than eleven generations of Schooleys. The youngest member of the family is Rebekah Marcelle Baxter Gerstein who was born October 1, 1982. The account traces the continuous lineage from her grandfather Robert who was born about 1620. Many given names were used again and again: John, James, Robert, Samuel, Isaac, William. The name William has been used nineteen times. There are numerous surnames which are allied with the Schooleys: Hiatt, Nichols, Cass, Silliman, Snoddy, Middaugh, Van Vliet, Lundy, Willson, Wright, Bedell, Baldwin, Carter, Johnson, Meek, DuBois, Baxter. They become too numerous to comprehend. Certain names exhibit charm and sometimes amusement: Wealthan Peace, Muchmore, Dionisia, Petronella, Aquilla, Petrus Edmundus, Thankful Curtis, and Unthank Hiatt. Sometimes the names are bewildering: Preserved Fish, Epaphrodits and Adonijah Foote.

The mind drifts back to that hill in New Jersey--- Schooleys Mountain --- which long ago was viewed as an obstacle to the northward migration of the settlers. No doubt the spring still flows there.
